Preface

The chief duty of an annual staff is to prepare a record of the school year. However, records in themselves may be rather dry and uninteresting. Therefore, it has been the pleasure of the staff of 1928 to weave these records about the stories of Charles Dickens whose writings fascinate both young and old.

Dickens, preeminently a novelist of the people, wrote of life as he knew it in the London streets and institutions. Through his pen he abolished the debtors' prisons, public executions, and the worst practices in private schools. His power of intense imagination individualized more than a thousand characters, a veritable throng, but each identified to the reader by mere mention of the name. A keen and understanding observation of life enabled Charles Dickens to create living characters from the most ordinary people, and stories from the most trivial incidents. The reader, ever conscious of the sympathetic judgment and kindly heart that the author had for his fellow men, is led from one story to another, each new face, new scene, new incident, an invitation to read on.

And if, in musing over the pages of this Annual, our readers find pleasant memories of high school days mingled with characters from the pen of Charles Dickens, an invitation to acquaint themselves, or renew their acquaintance with this master novelist—perchance leading to an interest in all good literature—our book will have accomplished a threefold purpose.

Charles Dickens

Teller of tales,
Creator of characters,
The popular speaker,
And great reformer,
Dickens, the writer for all the ages!
What other man has written such enthralling tales
That disclose so perfectly all human traits
With such a clear insight of tragedy and humor?
O Dickens, writer of writers,
Many an hour have I spent with thee,
Revelling in the deep imagination
Of thy works: of thy "Great Expectations";
Moved by the misfortunes of "Oliver Twist":
Amused by the antics of quaint "Captain Cuttle":
And happy in the triumphs of "David Copperfield."
In the evening
With a volume of Dickens in my hand
And time to dream and dream,
I am content.

Pictures and Tales of London Life

Foreword

In taking this group of pictures for the Annual, the members of the staff have tried to portray as truly as possible the characters of Charles Dickens. People have been chosen from the student body, not for what they have done or who they are, but for their ability to represent a Dickens' character.

The aim has been to present these impersonations accurately in details of costume and setting. This has necessitated the staff's going to many shops for properties. The courtesy of private homes has been extended, and merchants have loaned of their stock in an understanding spirit of cooperation.

As chairmen of committees for the different pictures, the individual members of the staff have developed initiative in the personal responsibility of successfully carrying a plan to completion. Each can appreciate more than ever before the importance of team work. Thus this section of the Annual is presented through the splendid cooperation of fellow students, teachers, and members of the community.

A Christmas Carol

(Published in 1843)

The change wrought in the nature of Ebenezer Scrooge, a hard-hearted miser, constitutes the theme of A Christmas Carol.

During a certain Christmas eve a series of spirit revelations appear to Scrooge in a dream showing him the errors of his miserly life.

One of the most vivid scenes is in the home of Bob Cratchit where he and his family are having a happy day. The thrill of holiday excitement is upon everyone. Bob has just returned from morning services at the church, having taken with him his little lame son, Tiny Tim. Martha, the oldest daughter, is home for the day; Peter and the two young Cratchits have valiantly assisted Mrs. Cratchit to prepare the Christmas dinner and ——"There never was such a goose; its tenderness and flavor, size and cheapness were the themes of universal admiration. Eked out by applesauce and mashed potatoes, it was a sufficient dinner for the whole family. Indeed, as Mrs. Cratchit said with great delight, surveying one small atom of a bone upon the dish, 'They hadn't ate it all at last!' "

The Old Curiosity Shop

(Published in 1841)

Little Nell and her Grandfather Trent live in the Old Curiosity Shop in London. With a feverish desire to accumulate a fortune for Little Nell, her grandfather borrows money to play at the gaming tables. However, he has no luck and loses more than he wins. The dwarf, Quilp, who has loaned the money to the old man, tells Nell that he intends to manage their shop himself and comes there to live.

The child, fearing the dwarf and weighed down by anxiety, persuades her grandfather to go away from London with her. Early one morning they leave the shop, and as they pass noiselessly into the street, they are observed only by Kit Nubbles, a friend of Nell's, who stands back against the wall, astonished at their early and stealthy appearance.

" 'Which way?' said the child.

"The old man looked, irresolutely and helplessly, first at her, then to the right and left, then at her again and shook his head. It was plain that she was henceforth his guide and leader. The child felt it, but had no doubts or misgivings, and putting her hand in his, led him gently away."

The Holly Tree Inn

(Published in 1855)

There was amazement at the Holly Tree Inn one summer afternoon when a coach drove up bringing eight year old Master Harry Walmers, Junior, and Norah, his little sweetheart of seven.

"The young gentleman gets out; gives the guard something for himself; says to the landlord, 'We're to stop here tonight. . . . Chops and cherry pudding for two.'"

The children were shown into the Holly Tree. Master Harry's courage was unfailing, and he was very definite in stating his orders and the purpose of this journey. Norah, however, tired and cross from the long ride, was very indifferent to all questions—particulary that of an elopement, and petulantly refused the attentions of Master Harry. The Boots, Cobbs by name, once a servant in the Walmers' household, was joyfully recognized by the two children and immediately taken into their confidence.

Cobbs gave orders to the hotel servants to humor the runaway couple in all their demands until he could notify Mr. Walmers, Senior, of the children's whereabouts. He went off feeling like a base deceiver because the pair appeared to place so much trust in him.

It did not take the anxious parents long to arrive at the Inn and the runaway couple's elopement was thwarted.

The Chimes

Trotty Veck was a porter of London. His real name was Toby, but because he had such a funny little way of trotting up and down the street, his friends changed his name. His office was to carry messages and parcels for people who did not have the time or the money to send them by post.

Next to his daughter, bright, pretty Meg, Toby loved the great chimes in the tower of the church before which he used to stand. It seemed to him that there were little spirits in the bells who called to him, " 'Toby Veck, Toby Veck, keep a good heart, Toby.' "

One day when Trotty was feeling most discouraged, having been "put down" by the alderman, Meg surprised him by appearing just at noon with his lunch, piping hot.

" 'Why, Pet,' said he, 'what's to-do? I didn't expect you today Meg.'

" 'But here I am, father.' " The girl advanced toward him, and daintily lifted the corner of the basket's cover as she said, " 'Smell it, father dear, only smell it!'

"Trotty took a sniff at the edge of the basket and cried out in rapture, 'Why, it's tripe!'

" 'Because it's New Year's day, father, explained Meg."

And just as Toby sat down to eat his lunch, the chimes rang out "— melodious, deep-mouthed, noble bells —" and this time their message seemed to be, " 'Toby Veck, Toby Veck, job coming soon, Toby!' "

Great Expectations

(Published in 1861)

On the outskirts of a small suburb near London, is the cottage of Joe Gargery the village blacksmith. Here also reside that eccentric character Mrs. Gargery, wife of Joe, and her small brother, commonly known as Pip.

Pip and Joe are "ever the best of friends," having formed a kind of secret alliance against Mrs. Gargery, who is said to have raised Pip "by hand," and, in all probability, married Joe by the force of that same hand. This mutual danger formed a true friendship between the pair that lasted through the changing fortunes of Pip.

On a certain eventful morning, Pip was sitting on his father's tombstone in the old church yard, when his thoughts were suddenly interrupted by the demand of an escaped convict for food and a file. Pip, frightened half to death, agreed to supply both to the convict as soon as possible, and went speedily home. That night at supper the lad, instead of eating his ration of bread, tucked it into his blouse, and Joe, thinking Pip had hastily bolted the food, sought to warn him.

"You know, Pip, you and me is always friends, and I'd be the last to tell upon you, any time. But such a — such a most uncommon bolt as that! I bolted myself, when I was your age — frequent — and as a boy I've been among a many bolters; but I never see your bolting equal yet, Pip, and it's a mercy you ain't bolted dead."

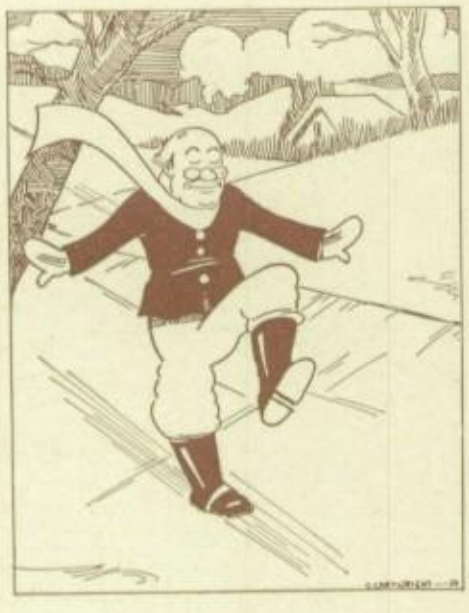
Pickwick Papers

(Published in 1837)



Samuel Pickwick, esquire, was a corpulent, benevolent, middle-aged gentleman, whose scientific sense hardly equaled his simplicity. As president of the Pickwick Club he conducted personal tours of investigation into the outlying districts of London, often finding himself in most peculiar circumstances as a consequence of those investigations pertaining to all manner of things. As a friend to his fellow Pickwickians he was infallible, and, although these ties of friendship often led him on to thin ice—literally as well as figuratively—he was always ready for any undertaking.

During the courtship of Mr. Winkle and Arabella Allen, Mr. Pickwick willingly accompanied Mr. Winkle and Sam Weller to Arabella's garden wall, obligingly clambering upon Sam's back just to assure the modest Arabella on the other side of the wall that it was all right for her to meet the amorous Winkle.

"Mr. Pickwick holding fast to the wall while Mr. Winkle clasped him tight by the legs, they contrived to bring his head above the coping.

" 'My dear,' said Mr. Pickwick, looking over the wall and catching sight of Arabella on the other side — 'don't be frightened, my dear, it's only me.' "

A Christmas Carol

(Published in 1843)

Among the series of revelations appearing to Scrooge in his Christmas dreams, was a scene in the old warehouse of his former employer wherein were enacted the events of a certain Christmas many years before. Just at closing time, Old Fezziwig, laying down his pen and papers, called his two apprentices, Ebenezer Scrooge and Dick Wilkins, to clear the room for a party. "You wouldn't believe how those two fellows went at it!" Away went the boxes and barrels, piled in one corner like so many chips — and all before you could count twelve.

And then — in came a fiddler taking possession of the lofty desk and making an orchestra of it. "In came Mrs. Fezziwig, one vast, substantial smile. In came the housemaid, . . .In came the cook. . . .In they all came. . . . . .one after another, ...anyhow and everyhow."

No sooner there, than away they all went, twenty couples or so, up the middle and down the sides. The fiddler struck up Sir Roger de Coverley. "Then Old Fezziwig stood out to dance with Mrs. Fezziwig. Top couple, too, ...four-and-twenty pair of partners; . . . .people who would dance, and had no notion of walking."

Charles Dickens wrote many short stories not included in the above list. Many of these appeared in numbers of the periodicals of the time. He made it a practice to write one Christmas story a year, and the publications of that season contain several of his best short stories.

Much of his writing was released to the public in installments, various pamphlets appearing from time to time. Readers followed intently the adventures of the different characters, and eagerly awaited the next incidents relating their experiences.

The public came to look upon Charles Dickens as a benefactor, for in their own day they reaped the benefits of the reforms effected by his pen.

Miscellaneous Papers

Mr. Pickwick Decides to Drive a Car

The episodes of Mr. Pickwick are entertaining because they are so typically representative of a certain type of person. Every generation has its Mr. Pickwick. Time does not change the enthusiasm of such people, or lessen their self-assurance. Today they move in a modern world, meeting the demands of modern society—good-natured, somewhat buffeted individuals, failing to profit by previous experiences.

THERE is a repose about Kent Lane in the Borough, which sheds a gentle melancholy upon the soul. Its very dullness is soothing. If a man wished to withdraw from the world, or to remove himself from the reach of worldly temptations—in short, to free himself from any connection with this troublesome sphere, he should by all means go to Kent Lane. It also makes a retreat in which to reflect, and it was the latter inducement which had led Mr. Pickwick, accompanied by his favored domestic, Mr. Sam Weller, into the ugly little byway.

The two had been walking for some little time in silence, for Mr. Pickwick greatly desired to reflect upon his former experiences in this street with one Mr. Bob Sawyer. So deeply engrossed was he in his memories, that it was with a surprise amounting almost to terror that he heard the rasping "Honk! Honk!" of an automobile directly behind him in the narrow way. He lost little time in leaping aside to avoid the oncoming vehicle, but either because of his advancing years, or because of the machine's extraordinary pace, he was not quick enough. Struck quite violently at the bend of his legs, he was forced to a sitting position upon the bumper. In this manner he was carried almost fifty feet before the car was able to make a complete stop.

He stood somewhat stiffly and turned in fury to address a scathing rebuke to the driver. His words, however, were never uttered. Descending from the car was a young lady of most pleasing, though artificial appearance. She had very red lips and cheeks, and a nose of almost ghastly whiteness, which Mr. Pickwick tolerantly recognized as signs of her youth and the modern age. She seemed genuinely sorry, for she was saying, "Oh, I do hope you aren't hurt. You know I wouldn't hurt anyone for anything." She kept reiterating this until Mr. Pickwick could not find it in his heart to scold her.

"That's quite all right," he said bowing politely, at the same time attempting to check the flood of words he knew Sam was about to utter.

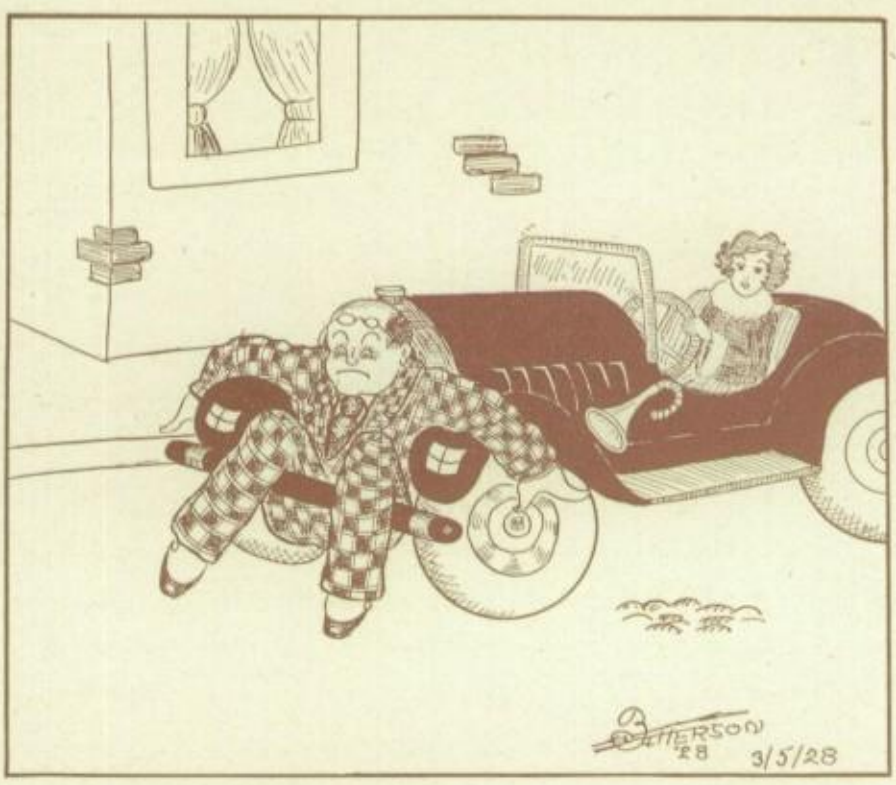
Upon reassurance from Mr. Pickwick that he had undergone no serious injury, the young lady climbed back into her car and disappeared at the same rate of speed at which she had appeared.

"Now, wat can ye say to that?" demanded Sam, gazing after the vanishing cloud of dust. "These times streets ain't safe even to walk in." Mr. Pickwick took his own time to weigh the remark. At length he spoke, dubiously at first, but with growing conviction.



"Sam," he declared, "you are right. These streets are not only very uncomfortable for walking purposes; they have actually become death traps. For a pedestrian of my age who has lost his youthful sprightliness, walking is out of the question; and when one can no longer walk, he must ride. Sam, I have come to the conclusion that I must learn to drive a motor car."

"Eh!"

"Yes, Sam, I must learn to drive. That is my deliberate and irrevocable determination." Here Mr. Pickwick gave a hearty blow with his fist upon the palm of his hand in confirmation of the irrevocability of his decision.

Accordingly, at his earliest convenience on the morning of the next day, Mr. Pickwick, having left explicit orders calculated to occupy Sam for many hours, left his house and walked at a brisk pace until he came to a firm where automobiles were bought and sold. He entered, stepped up to the desk, and in a very business-like manner stated his purpose to a be-spectacled clerk whose jaws moved continually as if he were consuming a perpetual meal.

"Sir," he said, "if you please, it has recently become my intention, and is now my greatest desire to master the art of safely steering one of the vehicles, which I see you sell, upon the public highways. An art it undoubtedly is, though many who profess to have a thorough understanding of it have not the slightest realization of the extreme complexity of it."

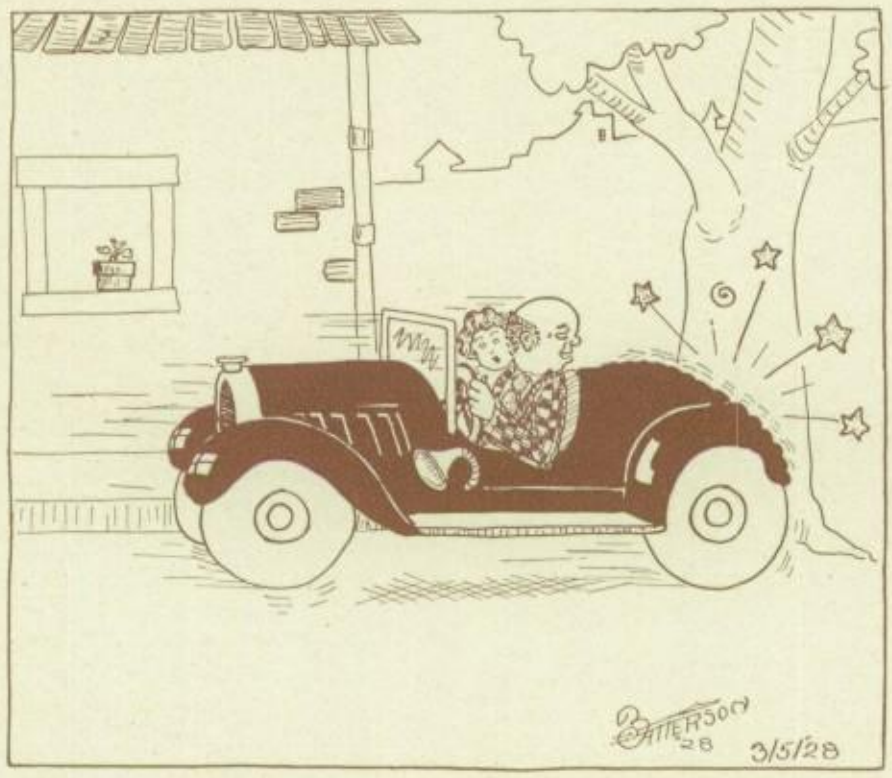
At this point the clerk interrupted with the laconic remark, "Ya mean ya want to learn to drive? What car ya got?"

"I have no car," replied Mr. Pickwick, with dignity. "I merely desire to—"

"Ya gotta have a car." With that the clerk turned away as if he considered any further discussion unnecessary. Mr. Pickwick was about to say something more, when a very pleasant and a very determined feminine voice sounded immediately behind him.



"He does not have to have a car. If he wants to drive, I'll teach him."

Mr. Pickwick turned to see the identical young lady who had appeared to him so striking the day before. He was somewhat taken aback, but recollecting his manners, he bowed and wished her, "Good morning!" to which she replied, "Hello! I hope you're feeling all right." At that the clerk opened his eyes, and then muttered in a peevish tone, "Well, why didn't ya say ya knew Miss Willis? How was I to know ya'd been introduced?"

Mr. Pickwick replied that he couldn't remember being introduced, but that they had certainly met, and he would be very grateful if Miss Willis would be kind enough to help him.

"Sure thing," replied Miss Willis, tilting her nose and turning her back on the clerk. "You come with me."

So it happened that within half an hour Mr. Pickwick found himself swiftly traversing a fairly quiet road and chatting gayly with a beautiful young girl at the wheel of a great green car. At length she stopped. "Well, Mr. Pickwick," she said, "I guess this is good enough. Change places with me."

The lad is spared the pain of witnessing the marriage of his mother to Mr. Murdstone by going to Yarmouth, the home of his nurse, Peggotty. Here he meets Little Emily, who becomes his first sweetheart.

Mr. Pickwick did as he was told, though not without some apprehension. "Now the first thing you have to know is about the gears, and the brakes, and the clutch, and gas, and things. See this long rod with the knob? Well, that's the gearshift."

"The gearshift?" repeated Mr. Pickwick, like a schoolboy learning a new word.

"Yes, and this thing that you step on is the brake, and that, the clutch. You always press on the clutch when you change gears."

Then followed a long conversation concerning the exact position of each gear and how to reach it by "woggling" the gearshift. There was more explanation about the brakes, the gas throttle, the starter, and the various other devices. Then there followed a still longer conversation explaining the explanations, at the end of which Miss Willis pronounced Mr. Pickwick ready to try his luck.

"See if you can start it," she suggested, whereupon Mr. Pickwick turned on the ignition and stepped gingerly upon the starter. The result was the gratifying, but to him the terrifying hum of the motor.

"Fine," exclaimed Miss Willis. "Now put her in low." Mr. Pickwick promptly pressed the clutch, but he was forced to ponder quite a while before he could determine just where he had better pull or push the gearshift. At length he decided upon the lower left-hand corner, and as luck would have it, he was right.

"Now take your foot off the brake, give her some gas, and we'll go." Mr. Pickwick did, and they went; but not in the least the way Miss Willis went. Their progress was nothing but a back-breaking series of jerks.

"Keep your foot steady," the girl commanded.

"My foot is steady, but the throttle's not," cried Mr. Pickwick in terror. Gradually, however, as their speed increased a bit, the car ceased its antics and behaved quite as a well-bred automobile should. Mr. Pickwick squeezed the wheel tightly and focused his eyes on the road ahead. In spite of all his efforts the car insisted on swerving from one side of the road to the other. He was becoming decidedly alarmed, but Miss Willis was calm.

"You're doing fine," she assured. "Do you know where second is?"

He nodded. "Then shift."

Mr. Pickwick thought he remembered distinctly that second was in the upper right-hand corner, and that is where he moved the gear. But very evidently something was dreadfully wrong. Instead of going ahead, as he had been led to believe would be the case, this car sprang backward. Miss Willis, with

After his mother's marriage, David's home becomes unbearable to him, because of the way Mr. Murdstone treats him. Finally his stepfather sends him away to school. It is on this trip to the new school that the old coachman charges David with a proposal of marriage for the nurse, Peggotty, sending word by the boy, "Barkis is willin'."

great presence of mind, yanked the emergency brake and twisted the wheel to avoid a collison with a tree directly behind them. This maneuver brought the car to a sudden stop which stalled the engine. The experience also proved quite too much for Mr. Pickwick. His hands were trembling considerably and his forehead was moist.

"Too bad," Miss Willis soothed, "but that's nothing. You just shifted wrong. You got into reverse. Perhaps, though, we might end this lesson and have another tomorrow."

"Sensible girl," thought Mr. Pickwick, heartily agreeing with her.

But no sooner was he away from the wheel and standing safely on the ground than his determination to learn to drive revived ten-fold. He would take a lesson on the morrow at any cost—yes, at any cost.

Man Is Great Hearted

His first lesson concerning charity and kindness taught Silas Pent that neither, seemingly, has a place in this practical, thoughtless world. When a child, he had spontaneously tried to protect a homeless cur tormented by a group of alley toughs. His kindness incurred only rebuffs and sharp stones from the ruffians. Thus it was that he became outwardly embittered, continually suppressing his good impulses for fear of disapproval by his fellowmen.

Yet, crush it down though he would with his practical mind, the craving for helping others welled so strong behind his rough exterior—born of necessity for protection—that he did good secretly, as a dishonest person goes about his nefarious labors—by night, and anonymously.

Passed forty, long, struggling year. . . . . .

* * * * *

The Purple Bugle, as a country inn, was like many—a large, many-gabled place, with diamond-shaped windows of smoke-begrimed glass; a huge front, weatherbeaten by many years; and a stoop about which hungry dogs continually kept each other company.

Silas Pent, the innkeeper, was like many a jolly country inkeeper—sound of body, bulgy of muscle, slow of step. But he possessed a disconcerting eye, and a saturnine countenance—a drooping mouth; sullen, cynical lips drawn thin; hard—apparently—grey eyes, with straight-cut lids that brooked no

Mr. Murdstone is so jealous of David's hold on his mother's affection that he tries to make life as hard as possible for the boy. He writes to the head-master at the school telling him many malicious things about the lad, and asking that a sign be pinned on him to make him ridiculous before the other boys.

sentiment; brows, heavy and black, leaping upward in a critical manner; a low, broad forehead, brutal and unbending. A hard man—hard, brutal, and practical—to the eyes of the world. "Close-fisted, stony-hearted, and judging of his fellow men after his own shortcomings," thought the villagers.

* * * * *

One rainy night, when customers were few, and naught but a few coals glowed on the great hearth, brought a fiddler and his seedy bear to the Purple Bugle Inn.

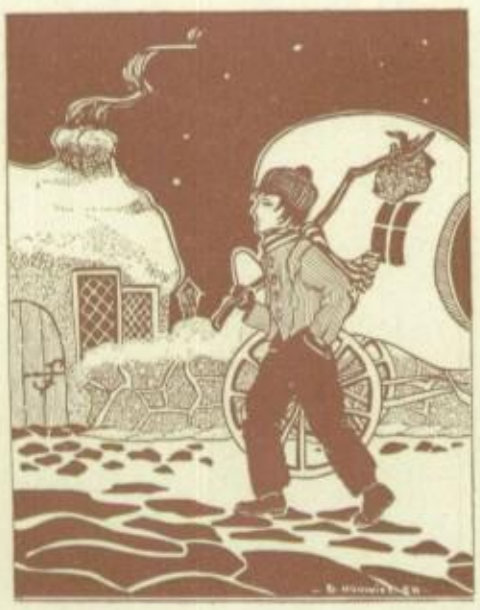
He was a dreamer, a philosopher, a shrewd analyst, this fellow with the bear and fiddle—a homely philosopher whose greatest delight was found in traveling about, learning more each day concerning his fellow men—studying, thinking. He thought he knew a great deal—this shrewd fiddler. In fact, he thought he had met all types, and weighed them—selfish men, egotistical men, wise men, fools. But he was yet to know another type of man. . . . . .

This fiddler collected a few coppers by the antics of his bear, and by playing dance tunes for the villagers; food and lodging he furnished for himself and his animal by helping with chores about the inn.

It was the third day of his stay. During his master's absence, the bear, investigating, as bears will do, discovered a comb of honey belonging to the innkeeper, and promptly made off with it. The philosopher returned and as a duty, paid for the honey from his slender purse, then tied the bear to a tree, soundly beating him, while the villagers crowded around. When he stopped and turned away, the fiddler caught the eye of the innkeeper who was standing on the outskirts of the crowd. His arms were folded, and his lips were pressed tightly together, as if he were holding his emotions in check. The philosopher wondered . . . . and bided his time . . . . And late that evening he chanced to see the innkeeper, with silent tread and wary eye, carrying some juicy meat to the bear. The fiddler was puzzled—and a little worried.

* * * * *

A widow and her children were starving in their cottage on the outskirts of the village. The man with the bear, passing by one grey morning, had heard the cries of the hungry ones, had investigated and heard a sorry tale of the father's death, and an empty larder; he had gone away, promising relief. When he had broached the subject to Silas Pent, his answer was a disagreeable scowl.



David learns that his mother has died broken-hearted, unable to endure Mr. Murdstone's harshness. The man takes David from school and puts him to work in a warehouse. The hard work and uncouth companions make the boy so very unhappy that he runs away to find his Aunt Betsey.

"Bah! Believe that? Not I. No doubt 'tis all a catch—food hid away —clothing torn of a purpose—onion tears—forget it, man! Come, a mug of ale—life is short!" A moment's pause, then: "By the way, where is this hut?"

The following day the philosopher, repassing the widow's hut, espied the youngest child sucking a turkey bone. To the innkeeper he said: "Someone has taken pity on the widow and her children."

A look of bitter amusement; the usual signs of distrust. "Bah! You're seeing things, my fine fellow! You have too much faith in humanity. No doubt the food was stolen—I'm missing a fowl—but that will be seen to later. Live man, live—live as I have lived—live and learn."

* * * * *

Late that same night. A shaft of moonlight splashed yellow on the rough floor, the fire had burned out—these the traveler noticed as, awakened by a tread, he sat up and stared into the semi-darkness from a settee where, weary, he had lain himself for the night. A figure stirred against the wall of the great, silent room. The traveler caught his breath sharply as a knot snapped in the fire; he crouched lower, and watched, breathlessly, as the figure moved a pace toward the door, and stopped. Another pace —another silent pause. At last—a quiet unbolting of the door; it swung open on its greased hinges, and the figure, burdened, now the traveler noticed, with a covered basket, stepped out into the shadow of wall, and stood closely against it.

The watcher, curiosity aroused, himself repeated the procedure of the mysterious one, following the dark clad person from shadow to shadow, from patch to patch of brilliant moonlight, till at last, satisfied as to identity, he retraced his steps. The figure had been that of the innkeeper; his burden, provisions; and his direction, that of the widow's hut.

The following morning, impelled by his curiosity, the fiddler arose early and hid in a clump of bushes near the isolated hut, until the widow appeared, started at sight of a mysterious bundle on the doorstep, crossed herself in thanksgiving, picked it up and reentered her shack. At noon that day said the fiddler to Silas Pent: "Someone has left provisions for the widow on her doorstep. Someone, I believe, from this house of yours. Man is great hearted."

"Seeing things again. A dream, man—nothing but a dream. Man is selfish, my fine fellow! And man is shrewd, egotistical. Live, man, live—live as I have lived—live, and learn."

He has a long, hard trip, and when he finally reaches his aunt, he is very dirty. Miss Betsey is bewildered, and, not knowing what to do with David, she asks Mr. Dick, her lodger, for advice. "Well," said Mr. Dick, "if I were you I should wash him."

The fiddler paused in thought. Here was a new type of man, to be sure. He had not known so much as he thought—probably there were new adventures before him. And, with a philosophical smile, and a weary shrug of his shoulders, the traveler—philosopher—fiddler, jerking the bear to his feet, bent his steps toward new adventures—new people—new cities—a greater understanding. . . . .

Fog

The green waves beat on the rocky shore;
And the foam flew upward, whitely.
The warm sun gathered the spray and bore
It up from the breakers, lightly.

A breeze came by in a mood for play,
And it ruffled the wavelets slightly;
It danced and sang on the sand all day
With a graceful air, and sprightly.

It spied the cloud when the sun was low,
And high from the water bore it,
And called on the winds to help it blow
The mist from the sea before it.

The cloud passed over the treeless sand,
And it passed the oaks in the valley;
But at the pines in the hilly land
It was pleased, and paused to dally.

It settled down with an easy grace
On the hillside, like a feather;
It held the trees in its cool embrace,
And they nestled close together.

They stood half-hid in the misty cloud
Like Naiad-nymphs in a fountain;
And just the tips of their branches bowed
When the breeze blew over the mountain.

—Virginia Phillis.

Miss Betsey takes care of David, giving him a good education. Years later, after David is married and in his own home, his aunt comes there to live, finding great joy in David's little daughter, who now bears her name.

In this novel, Charles Dickens again illustrates his marvelous ability as a novelist, portraying characters that will continue to live in the mind of the reader.

Scenes from Graduation Exercises, June, 1927

Great Expectations differs from most of Dickens' writings in that there are fewer characters, making the plot more closely connected.

Commencement Exercises, June 15, 1928

Ten short years have passed since the signing of the Armistice,—years which have been so filled with the joys of Peace and Prosperity that we do not stop half often enough to realize what they really mean to us. This year's commencement pageant will force us to pause for one brief hour, and consider the role which America can and should play in the world movement toward Peace.

America, the Melting-Pot of the Nations, will be represented by groups of girls in peasant costumes dancing their native dances. A colonial group there will be representing the pure American stock; Scotch lassies who will dance the Highland Fling accompanied by Bagpipers; and Dutch, Swedish and Italian girls, Russian, Spanish and many others,—a riot of color and a gayness of spirit so typical of the Old World folk dance. Peace, portrayed by Eleanor Revelle, enters accompanied by happy little children, and joyously advances toward the merry groups, but as she nears them, suddenly there is a crash in the music, a Call-to-Arms is sounded and from the opposite side of the field twelve armored men, typifying the Spirit of War, come straight toward Peace. She is hurled to the ground, the children are crushed, and the terrified groups fall to their knees in prayer. A solo, "Let Us Have Peace," is sung by Donald Novis. A trumpet call rings out; America enters, accompanied by her attendants. Florence Young of the John Muir Technical High School is to portray this role. Pleadingly the little children make their way toward America, while the peasant girls hold out their arms in hope and prayer, as Betty Nagelvoort reads the prophecy from Isaiah that some day "Nation shall not rise against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. . . . and a little child shall lead them. Unfurling her starry banner, America sends a few of her followers with the children, and under the protection of that flag they go boldly against the Spirit of War, which shrinks in terror before them. Each warrior lays his sword at the feet of Peace and cowers to the ground. In triumph the music rings out:

"Dawn, dawn in the East! Dawn, dawn in the East!
The trumpets of war have ceased!
The flocks and herds on hill and plain shall graze again!
Hark! holy melody thro' all the land,
Peace and love! Peace and love!
Oh, country mine! Oh, country mine!
We live for thee! We live for thee!"

Little children lead Peace forward, as "Ring Out, Sweet Bells of Peace" is sung. America welcomes her, gives the large American flag which she has carried until now to a little child, who in turn places it in the arms of Peace. In the meantime the Joys of Peace and Prosperity run in and dance in glee, as America and Peace liberate the doves of peace which the children have brought to them.

Two Senior girls, Pauline Fuller and Marion Schroeer, distinctly representative of the class, descend the steps and welcome these two symbolic figures, while the Valedictorian, Mary Jenkins, gives her speech, which is really a pledge from the class that their whole-hearted effort will be to forward the peace movement. "America, the Beautiful," is sung by a double male quartette, as Peace and America go to the top of the stage, where Peace is enthroned at the top of the world, with America at her feet. During this time a great Human Flag is formed by some two thousand girls on the east bleachers directly behind the stage, patriotic girls present large flags to the Seniors, then the distribution of flowers, and the Commencement is over.

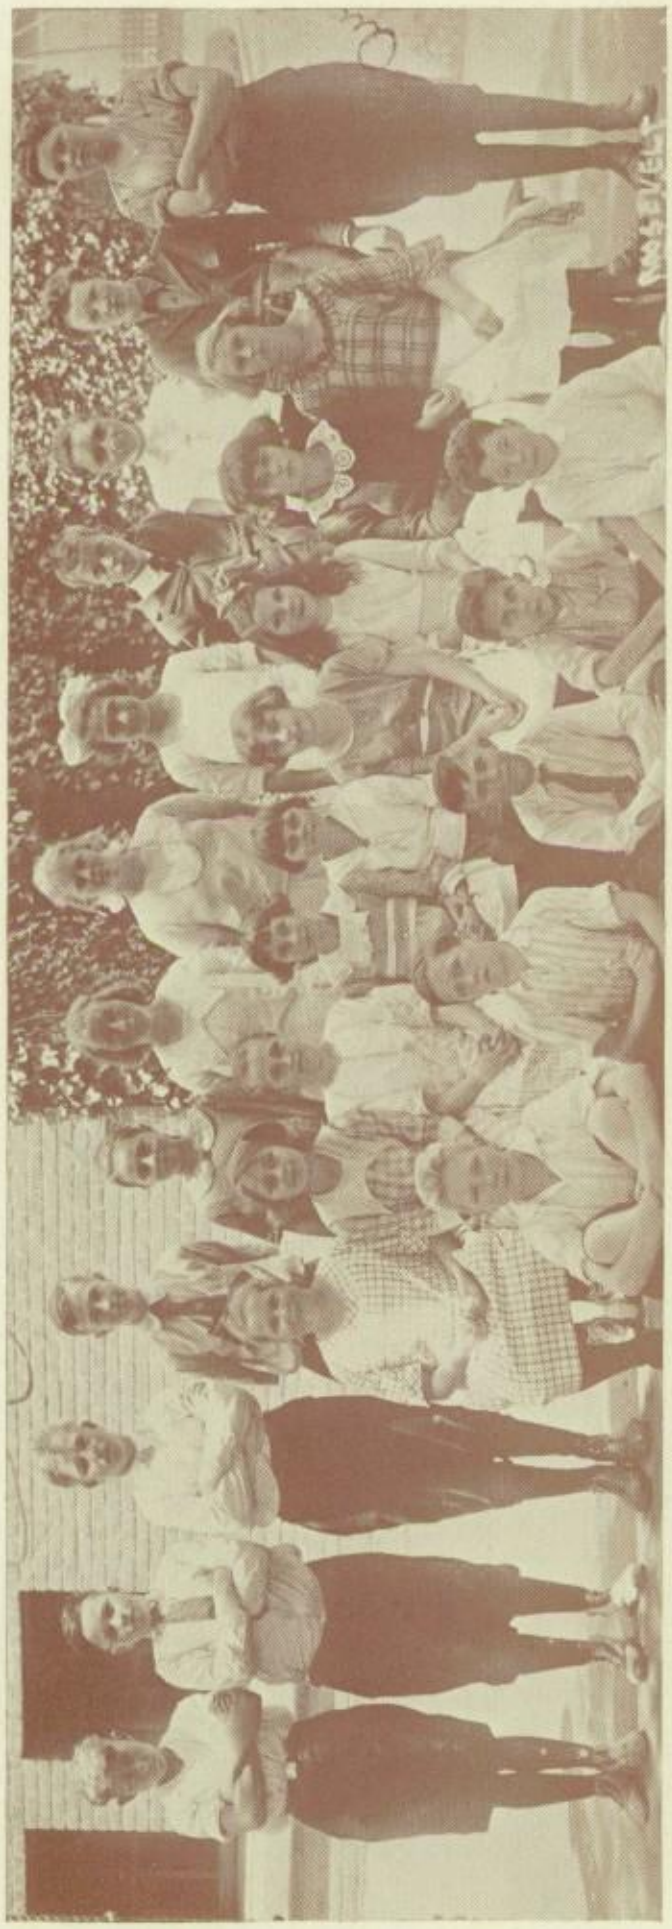
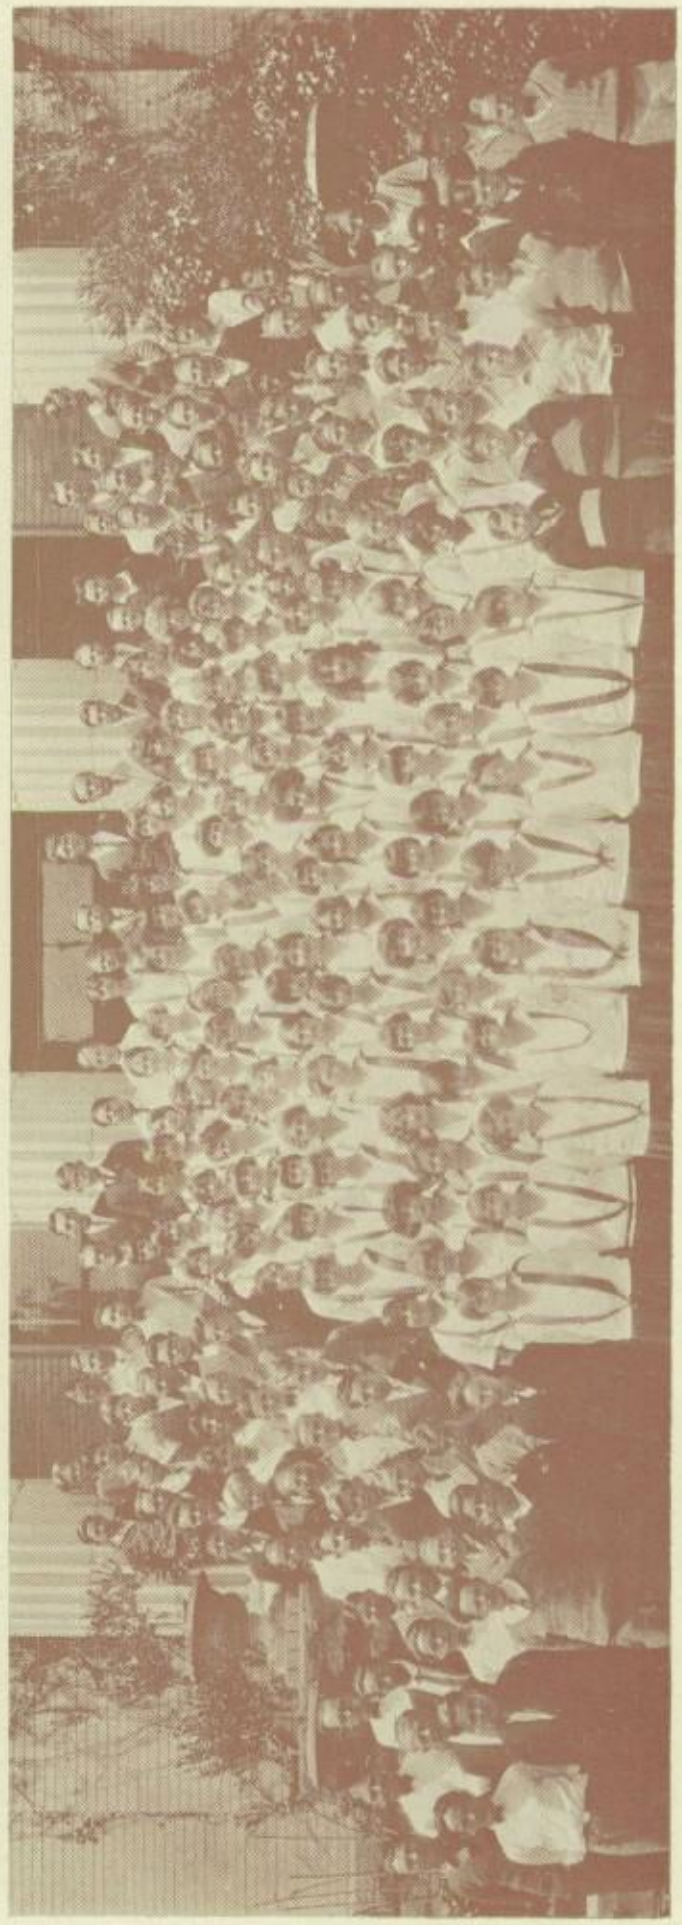
The book is a striking story, void of any false pathos or undue emotion.





Who the Dickens?

It is one of the great books which successfully relates the real value of true friendship.

Class of '28

Toward the future and its promise
We draw nearer day by day,
Each to you our Alma Mater
Now we pledge ourselves to stay
True and loyal to the standards
You have taught us on our way.

Ever in our hearts shall linger
Ideals steadfast, true and straight;
Guiding, lifting, leading onward
Helping mold our future's fate,
This your gift to 'Twenty Eight.

—Constance Bennett

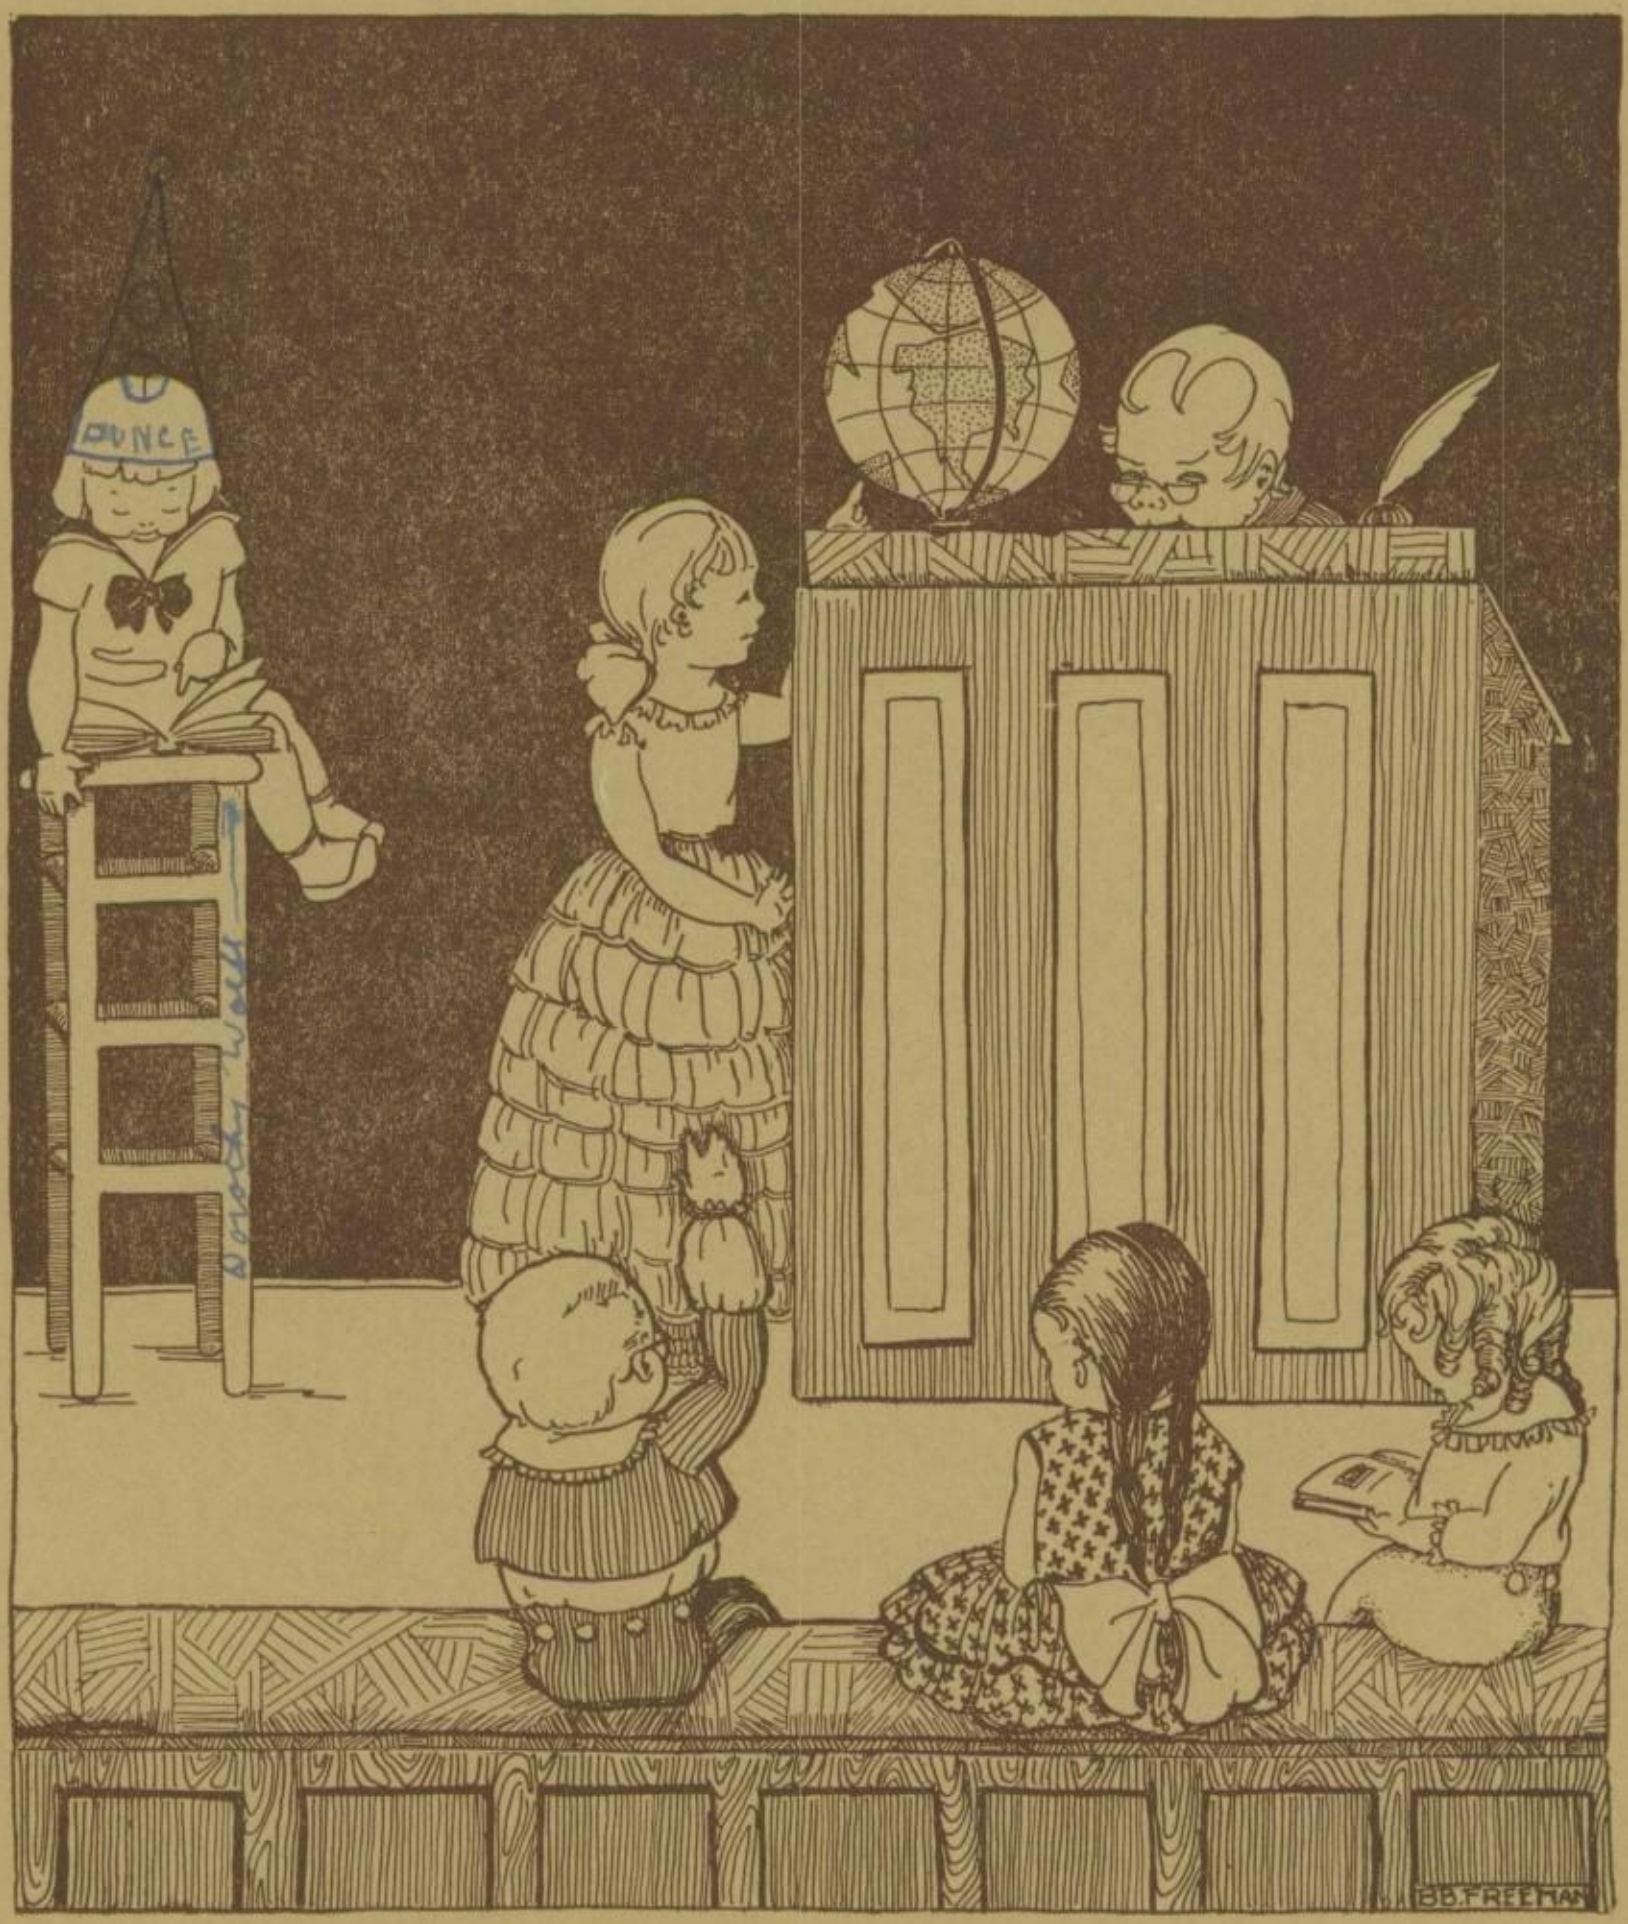
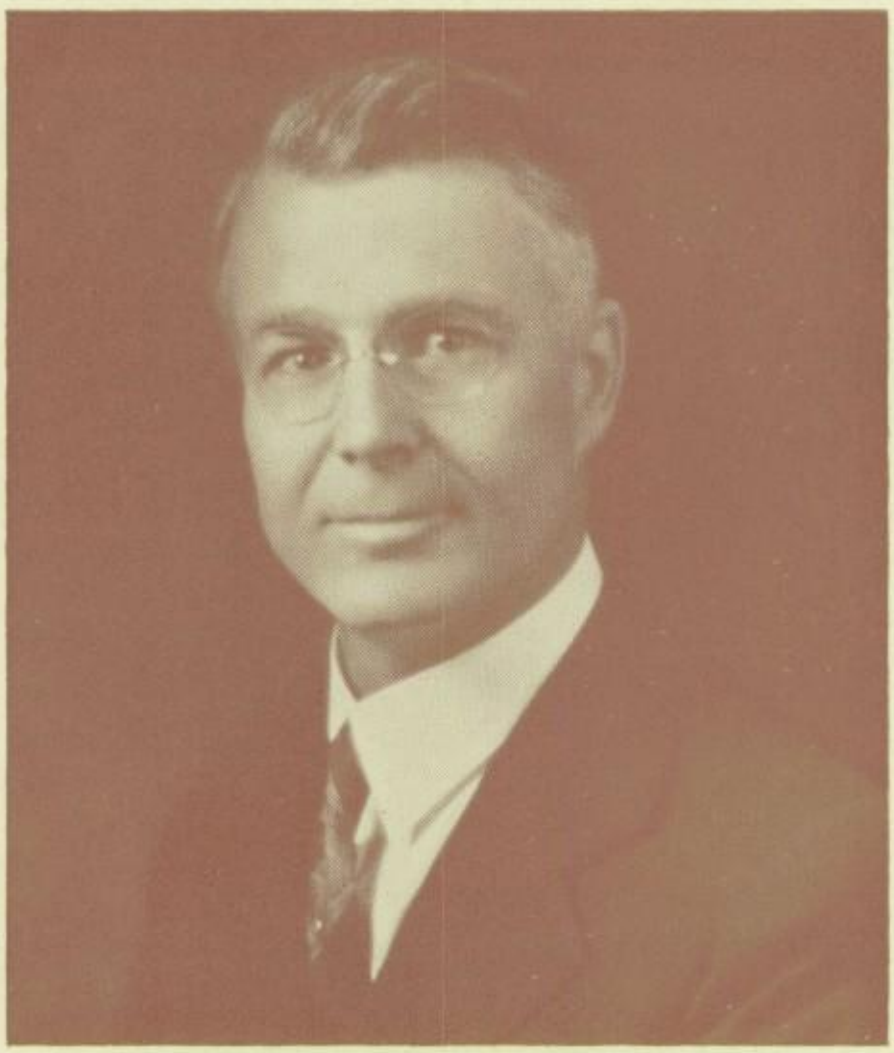
May the members of the Class of 1928 have the joy and company of a true friend to help them realize their Great Expectations.



Our Mutual Friend



To the Students of Pasadena High School I extend my hearty appreciation for their loyal support and cooperation during the first year of my principalship, and my sincere good wishes for a bright and prosperous future for all.

The work of the Commerce Department is divided into three main branches—accounting, secretarial work, and merchandising. Students entering the department are required to emphasize one of these three lines of work in order to have a definite vocational training.

Practical work is stressed throughout the commerce course. The department endeavors to keep in touch with the business community. Business and professional people address individual classes, or the department as a whole, and many excursions are conducted to such places as the Hall of Records, Hall of Justice, San Pedro Harbor, Los Angeles First National Bank, and several other important business institutions.

Offering work in literature, composition, oral English, dramatics, debating, and preparation for oratorical contests, the English Department, with a faculty personnel of twenty-seven members, reaches a great number of students. The revision of the course of study, the construction of a sixteenth century Shakespearean stage, and the organization of monthly departmental meetings with representatives of the English departments of the junior high schools and Los Angeles high schools are among the special accomplishments of this school year.

The Household and Fine Arts Courses, although organized together, have their own individual branches of work. There are three teachers for the art, three for household art, and three for household science. The first group offers instruction in the fundamental principles of art, cooperating with the other departments by making posters, signs, place cards and programs for them. Several first and second prizes have been won by individuals in the classes who have entered work in outside contests. Frequently, students of the department are called on by outside organizations for art work.

One year of home making is required of all girls in the high school. This can be taken in either the junior or the senior year. Luncheons and teas are served to clubs and classes in the Model Apartment by these girls.

Continuous activity on the part of the Language Department as a whole, including the three Language clubs, has established it as one of the wide-awake departments of the school.

Social and service activities include an entertainment for the Modern Language Association of Southern California in October; a P. T. A. program in which each of the high school and junior college clubs took part, and a lecture by Dr. Charles E. Kany, of the University of California, entitled "A Musical Journey Through Spain."

This book proved a success in the United States as well as in England, and was followed the next year by "Pickwick Papers."

Faculty

LIBRARY

Winifred Evelyn Skinner, Head

Margaret Baker — Eleanor Marie Homer — Helen Louise Taylor
Mabel E. White

Pasadena High School Library was first organized on its present basis when this school was moved from the old John Muir building, (now the Benjamin Franklin,) to this plant, although a library with a chairman in charge had been maintained for several years before. It was first housed on the third floor in what is now the typewriting room. Ten years ago it was moved into its present quarters. Many students assist in various capacities to carry on the work of this department. The number of books issued yearly is 110,000—a larger number than many small city libraries issue. The library is crowded with students until late afternoon. In the evenings it is used by junior college students.

DEPARTMENT OF MECHANICAL ARTS

Walter W. Martin, Head of Department

Francis A. Appleton — Arthur F. Hall — Oscar Lesley Heald
Frank C. Bodine — Murray W. Haws — Alfred C. Wilcox

The Manual Arts Department offers a variety of vocational work that enables the mechanically inclined student to find his particular place in life, and also furnishes a form of educational handwork that will aid in the development of students in other courses.

The motto of the department is, "Learn by Doing"; accordingly, real problems are contnually being worked out in the various sections of the department. A visit to the wood shop, the forge shop, and the machine shop gives concrete evidence of the accomplishments of the students working under the direction of the department faculty members. Courses also are offered in mechanical drawing, architectural rendering and sketching, and shop mathematics.

DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS

Peter W. Stoner, Head of Department

Mary L. Clark — Frank J. Gilloon — Marguerite Reinert
H. T. Clifton — Russell M. Guthridge — F. Grace Webster
Dorothy B. Fretter — Lucy E. Leaming — Edith H. Witherell
Edna Plummer

With courses in mathematics varying from elementary algebra to astronomy, this department offers students majoring in this subject a complete preparation for the college courses necessary for scientific professions.

That the Mathematics Department is steadily progressing is shown by the use, in tenth grade geometry, of the maximum, average, and minimum, or three-track system. Field work and excursions provide interesting outside work for the advanced classes.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC

Lula Claire Parmley, Head of Department

Allen Ray Carpenter — Amy Grau Miller — Hubert H. Parker
Carolyn M. Reed

During the year 1927-1928, the Music Department has taken part in both school and community activities. In addition to presenting "The Maid of Tokyo," as the annual opera, the Glee Clubs have presented programs for community affairs. Several assemblies have been presented, one of the most enjoyable being the Christmas pageant. The year's work will be concluded with the presentation of the Commencement music.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION

William K. Dunn, Head of Department

R. Frank Baker — Claude W. Hippler — Hazel Cooper McNatt
Dorothy Bates — Hortense M. Hough — Harry B. Milholin
Roscoe H. Brown, M.D. — Elizabeth Jensen — Everett F. Niday
Edith S. Gillette — Mabel Stockwell Kay — Gertrude C. Seabolt, M.D.
Loreta A. Henricks — Mildred Mary Margadant — Virginia Shively
Charles Hastings — Leland C. McAuley — Jean Alexandria Young

With the year 1927-1928 the Physical Education Department is benefiting from a period of construction and improvement. The recently completed girls' gymnasium with four floors, a club room and rest room, as special features, was put into service. A new locker room for girls, with shower equipment, steel lockers, and steel dressing rooms, was completed.

In the boys' division a new system of instruction was inaugurated wherein each class receives instruction in seasonal activities, gymnastics, and apparatus.

"David Copperfield" is supposed to be the most autobiographical book which Dickens wrote. While not an absolutely true sketch of his life, many of the more important characters and scenes in it were known and experienced by him.

Faculty

DEPARTMENT OF PRINTING AND JOURNALISM

John Paul von Grueningen, Head of Department

John K. Leberman — Gladys L. Snyder — Rex Truman

Emphasizing the value of student supervision, the Printing and Journalism Department places a maximum of responsibility in the hands of students enrolled in the course. School publications, such as the Chronicle and Annual, are prepared by student staffs, who also assist in the mechanical work.

Special accomplishments of this nature in the past year include the addition to the Chronicle staff of a student make-up editor and assistant, who direct the makeup of the paper, and parts of the Annual.

DEPARTMENT OF MILITARY INSTRUCTION

Lt. Col. George H. White, Head of Department — Sgt. William B. Morgan

Offering instruction in command and leadership, rifle marksmanship, scouting and patrolling, military courtesy, and map reading, the Military Department has completed a year of progress. Special accomplishments of the past year include the increasing of enrollment from 60 to 215 students, an entertainment for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund, the development of a championship rifle team, excursions to Fort McArthur and the battleship fleet, and a half day maneuver. The unit consists of four companies, and a band of thirty pieces.

DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGICAL SCIENCE

Mabel B. Peirson, Head of Department

Elizabeth Jane Butler
Ruth Lillian Conrad
N. Ellen Denning
Malcolm H. Finley
John George Griffith
Charles E. Hicks
Lester E. Hitchcock
Margaret Hodges
Mary Louise Kendall
C. Verona Rockwell Kerr
William G. Kohner
Jane Ina Meikle
Margaret Stason
Graham Eugene Wilson

The Biology Department has existed as a combined department for seventeen years, and now consists of eighteen teachers. It offers the subjects of general biology, physiology, bacteriology, botany, and zoology in both high school and college grades, with forestry and landscape gardening in college. This gives a very wide choice as compared with most other schools.

Next year there are to be offered rather complete vocational college courses in landscape gardening, forestry, and biological laboratory technique.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICAL SCIENCE

Bailey William Howard, Head of Department

O. Gaylor Dressler
George Forster
S. Webster French
Adelaide Jameson
William D. Leech
George Eugene Maroney
Abbie O. Stoddard
Archie Milton Turrell
Henry Irving Weitzel

Physical Science Department was organized as a separate department in September, 1921. In addition to regular college chemistry and physics offered with the coming of junior college organization, the department now gives college courses in industrial electricity, applied chemistry, chemistry for nurses, and geology.

One of the outstanding accomplishments of this year was the demonstration exhibit, occupying thirteen rooms in the Science building. The exhibit was given to aid biological science students in selection of their future science courses.

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL SCIENCE

Roscoe Louis Ashley, Head of Department

Clinton Otto Bay
Earl D. Davis
Florence Dorothy Diment
Katherine Fleming
Mary Alice Hasting
Katherine J. Kenaga
Pearl Kibre
Lura Alice Mercer
Winnefred Millspaugh
Mabel Knowles Perry
Norma V. Scheidemann
Merle Smith Templeton
Mildred Wellborn
Elizabeth Wheeler
Fred Garfield Young

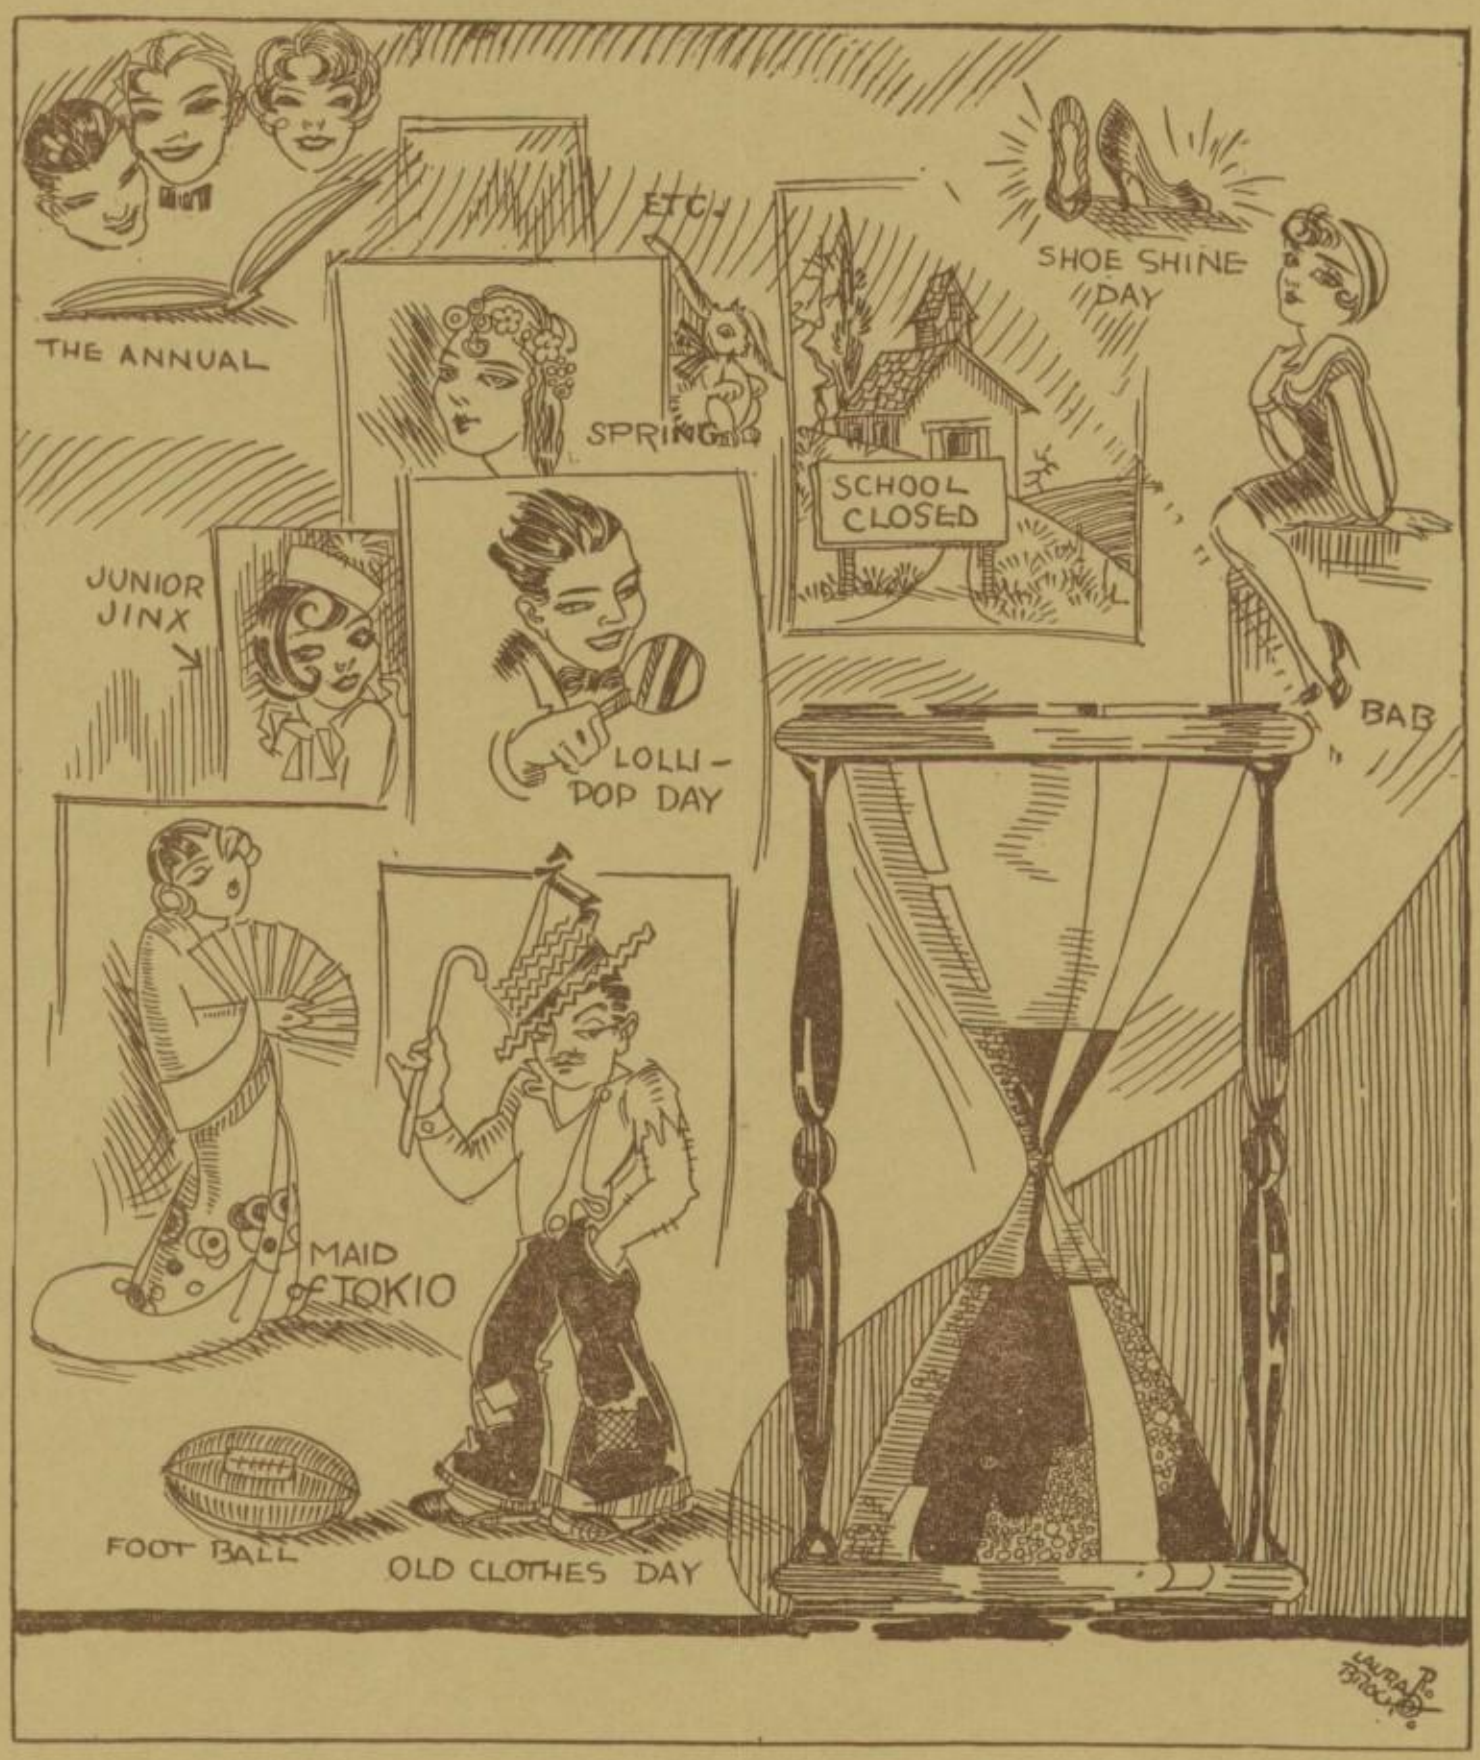
Since its organization in 1906, the Social Science Department has carried out the "advanced study of socialized organization or inter-relations." Successful experiments have brought about the presentation of current event and historical films to social science classes almost every week. Debates on the relation of Pasadena Junior College to Pasadena High School brought about special student investigations on that subject.

CLERICAL DEPARTMENT

Beatrice Cook
Margaret Frey
Bess Hangliter
A. Lucile Ladd
Jessie P. Landes
Louise Mitchell
Frances Donan Patchett
Ruth Smith
Walter E. Wilcox

The members of the Clerical Department come in contact with both faculty and students. Their cooperation facilitates and makes possible many projects.

His books did much to abolish the deplorable conditions in English schools and prisons. A great favorite with all English people, he was deeply mourned when he died at Gad's Hill Place on June 9, 1870.



All the Year Round

Extracts from the Diary of a Senior

September

12—School opened today. Met all my old friends, if any.

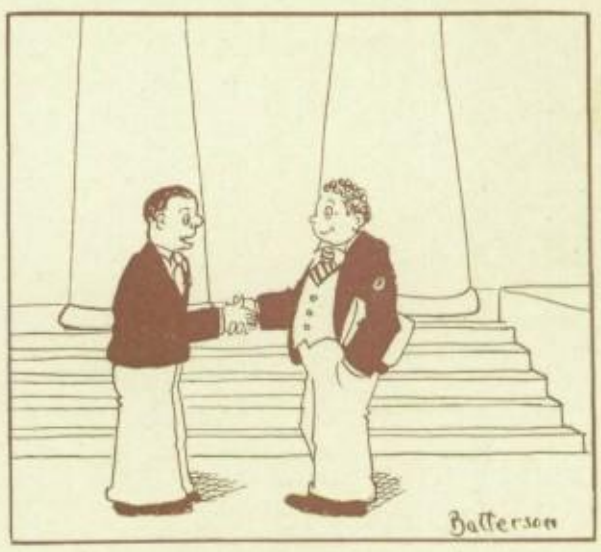
13—Sophomore welcome assembly. Worst crop yet.

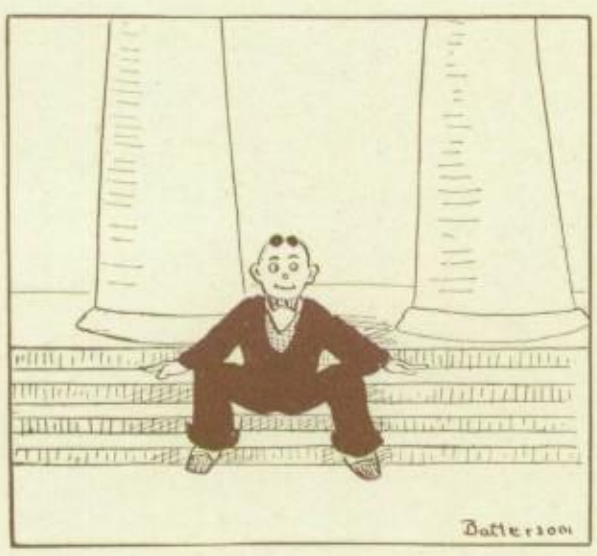
15—First Boys' League meeting.

23—They called the first senior meeting. Sat on the front steps.

27—Today they held a football rally. The girls are certainly going to enjoy the yell leaders.

30—Field day. Eric surely played a great game.





25—There was a real live Indian at assembly today. Had to sit on the floor so that some girls could have my seat on the bleachers. Sun awful hot. Do wish the auditorium could be fixed for use again.

27—Another assembly. The Blue Blazers were heard as far back as the fifth row.

31—Girls' Halfowe'en Party. One doughnut and one glass of cider were all the girls were supposed to have.

October

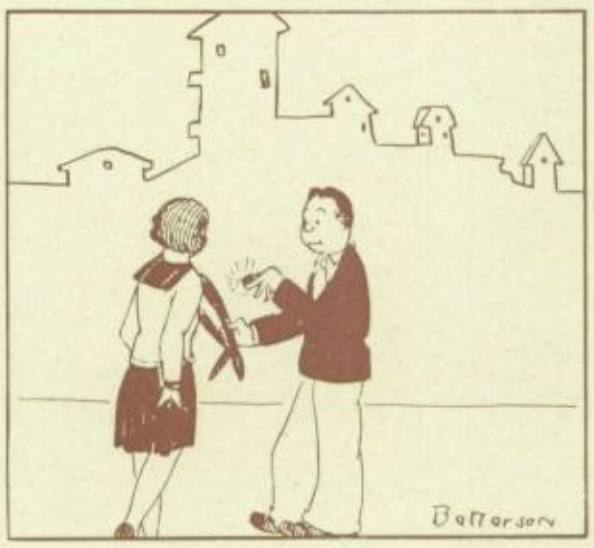
3—First Thrift day. I had to borrow a penny from Grace to make 100%.

5—Hippler organized a cross-country team. Another bunion derby.

7—We played Whittier in football and won in the last two seconds.

19—I bought my senior class pin and gave it to Betty to wear.

21—Honor Society meeting. I would have gone if Miss What's-her-name hadn't flunked me in history.



November

4—Advisory president's meeting. I was the only one in advisory so I had to go.

8—They took a collection in Boys' League for the Thanksgiving baskets today.

9—Read the next one. This doesn't really matter.

11—Special Chronicle for the Santa Ana game. The staff sold papers and got some practical experience.

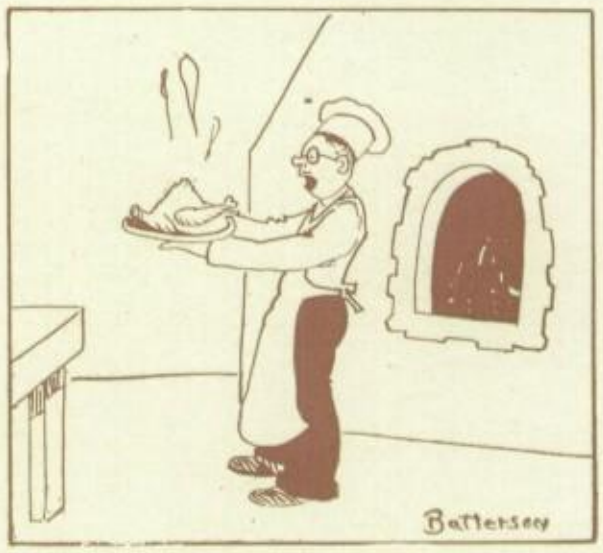
Charles Dickens had written twenty volumes for Household Words. He had a dispute with one of his associates and decided to write a new series with a new title. After some consideration he decided to call his new works, "All the Year Round."

18—Hoops, my dear, and all the girls are wearing 'em. The first bonfire in five years, thanks to Bob Carney, Joe Stout, Carl Cartwright, and myself.

19—We beat Long Beach. No kick coming; it was a pass.

23—Hooray! Thanksgiving vacation starts today.

28—Started back to school today. Fourth period teacher wouldn't wake me up so I was late for lunch.



DECEMBER

2—Our varsity played Huntington Park in the play-offs for Southern California championship. Anyway we finished the season with two Coast League championships and almost three.

9—Carl got a date with Letha, the poor nut.

12—Clean speech week started today. Had to get out the arnica.

13—The tryouts for "Bab" were held. I tried out and got kicked out.

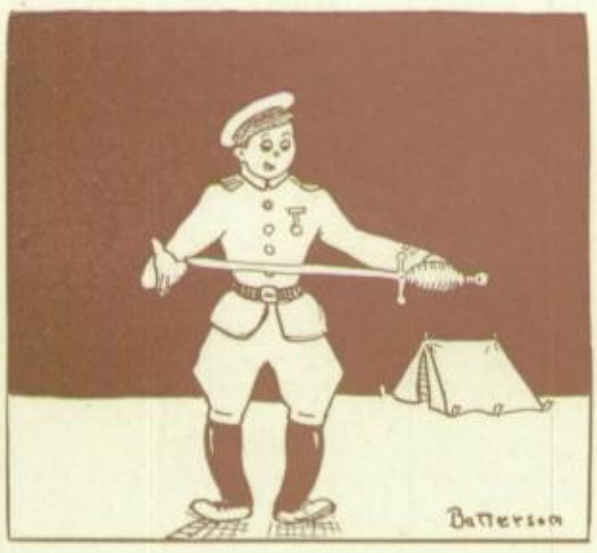
16—Christmas vacation starts today. Now for a real vacation and some sleep. There was a splendid assembly, "Why the Chimes Rang."

JANUARY

3—Came back to school for another hard grind. Ho, hum!

5—Guess I'll have to start my term report.

6—Announced that the stage will not be usable this year.



10—Got my senior proofs today. Another appointment on the 25th.

17—The Hi-Y and the Lettermen's Clubs are supporting the R. O. T. C. Guess I'll join with the rest of the commissioners.

24—Creatore and his band walked all over the stage, but it didn't break through.

27—Final election for commissioners. Cartwright and Richardson had lots of competition (?).

The first number of "All the Year Round" appeared on April 30, 1859. The sales of this article were large enough to repay all the money he had advanced for the printing establishment and also to leave him 500 pounds.

February

13—Got my assembly seat today. I really don't need one.

15—The R. O. T. C. campaign is on. Bow-legged men have no business joining.

17—Debate with L. A. High. They won.

20—Marge says that "Bab" is nice. Got a ticket to see her this afternoon. Good-bye, dollar.

24—Class "C" track men held a meeting. Guess I'll go out this year as it may be my last chance.

14—Last day for pictures for Annual. All the advisers arrived with their clubs.

19—Was absent today. Hiked to Millard's Canyon.

23—First league baseball game with Whittier today. We didn't win, but may next time.

April

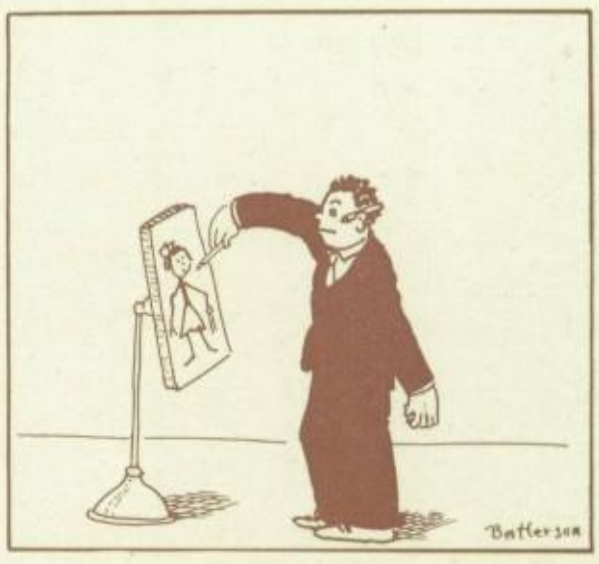
13—Lollypop day. I'll bet I'm as sick as two dogs tomorrow.

March

2—We won the Southern California lightweight basketball playoffs. It was a pretty good old team.

6—The administration closed the campus for good today. Now I can only eat during lunch periods.

8—Got two tickets for "The Maid of Tokyo" today.



14—Coast league track meet. Long Beach won. We were fifth.

20—Shakespeare Contest. "Shoot, if you must, this old gray head, but spare my country's flag." Press convention at Whittier. Oh, those guides!

26—Chalk talks are quite the thing. Wish I could chalk as well as I can talk.

27—Civies day. Wore my colored glasses. May day party at the Bleeker House. J. C. presented "Quality Street."

These volumes were almost the exact counterpart of that which they replaced. "The Tale of Two Cities," "Great Expectations," and "The Haunted House" were some of the articles which appeared under the new title.

7—Had a fight with my girl today. She won.

15—Slight attack of spring fever. Slept all day.

18—Senior party. Lots of entertainment and good music.

30—Memorial Day. Marched in the parade with the R. O. T. C. Missed a senior sing.

30—Handed in my term report for sociology. Another month's work done in two days.

May

3—Golf team played Glendale. They sure made the divots fly.

4—Student body entertainment. Laura LaPlante in "The Cat and the Canary."

5—Girls' Play Day.

June

4—Final exam. week. They won't be final for me.

6—Senior sing. Something was out of tune besides the piano. I believe I'm meant for solo work.

8—Got my Annual.

11—Practicing for commencement for the rest of the week. Best day so far this year.

13—Senior play. Geraldine was so stubborn that she wouldn't go with me.

15—I commenced today. Graduation was held at the Rose Bowl again.

16—Got a job working for the park department.

This set was a great success. It was bought and read by everyone. Publication of this series continued uninterrupted until the death of Dickens. After his death, they were continued under the management of his son.

"THE MAID OF TOKYO"

A Japanese garden resplendent with springtime cherry blossoms, a talented cast, beautiful music, charming dances, marvelous direction, and exquisite lighting effects combined to make "The Maid of Tokyo," 1928 production of Pasadena High School and Junior College music department, one of the most successful presentations ever given in Pasadena. Approximately 200 high school and junior college students participated in the musical comedy on the evenings of March 15 and 16, at the John Marshall Junior High School auditorium, under the direction of Miss Lula C. Parmley, head of the music department.

Donald Novis and June Etienne, whose voices blended excellently, took the leading roles; Mr. Novis as the rich young American visiting in Japan, and Miss Etienne as Cherryblossom, supposedly a Japanese girl. Donald Jones and Dorothea Benson took the second leads, interpreting their parts well. Smith Dawless as Kokemo, the Japanese guardian of Cherryblossom, did a splendid piece of character work. Harry Fosdick aptly played the part of Togo, a disdainful Japanese politician. The prologue, a dream of loveliness with its background of Fujiyama in the moonlight, featured Mary Novis as the Moon Lady singing "The Japanese Sandman," while Leland Clark in pantomime, skillfully represented the Sandman. Remington Olmstead and Irwin Rust also won commendation on their portrayals. The professional tone of a 36-piece high school and junior college orchestra, together with the high school chorus, was especially noteworthy. Assisting Miss Parmley in the production were Miss Katherine Kester, dramatics; Miss Mabel S. Kay, costumes; Miss Loretta Henrichs and Miss Elizabeth Flint, dancing; Harlow J. Mills, accompanist, and H. H. Parker, incidental orchestral music, and assisting music department faculty, Mrs. Amy Grau Miller, Miss Carolyn Reed, and Mr. Allen Ray Carpenter.

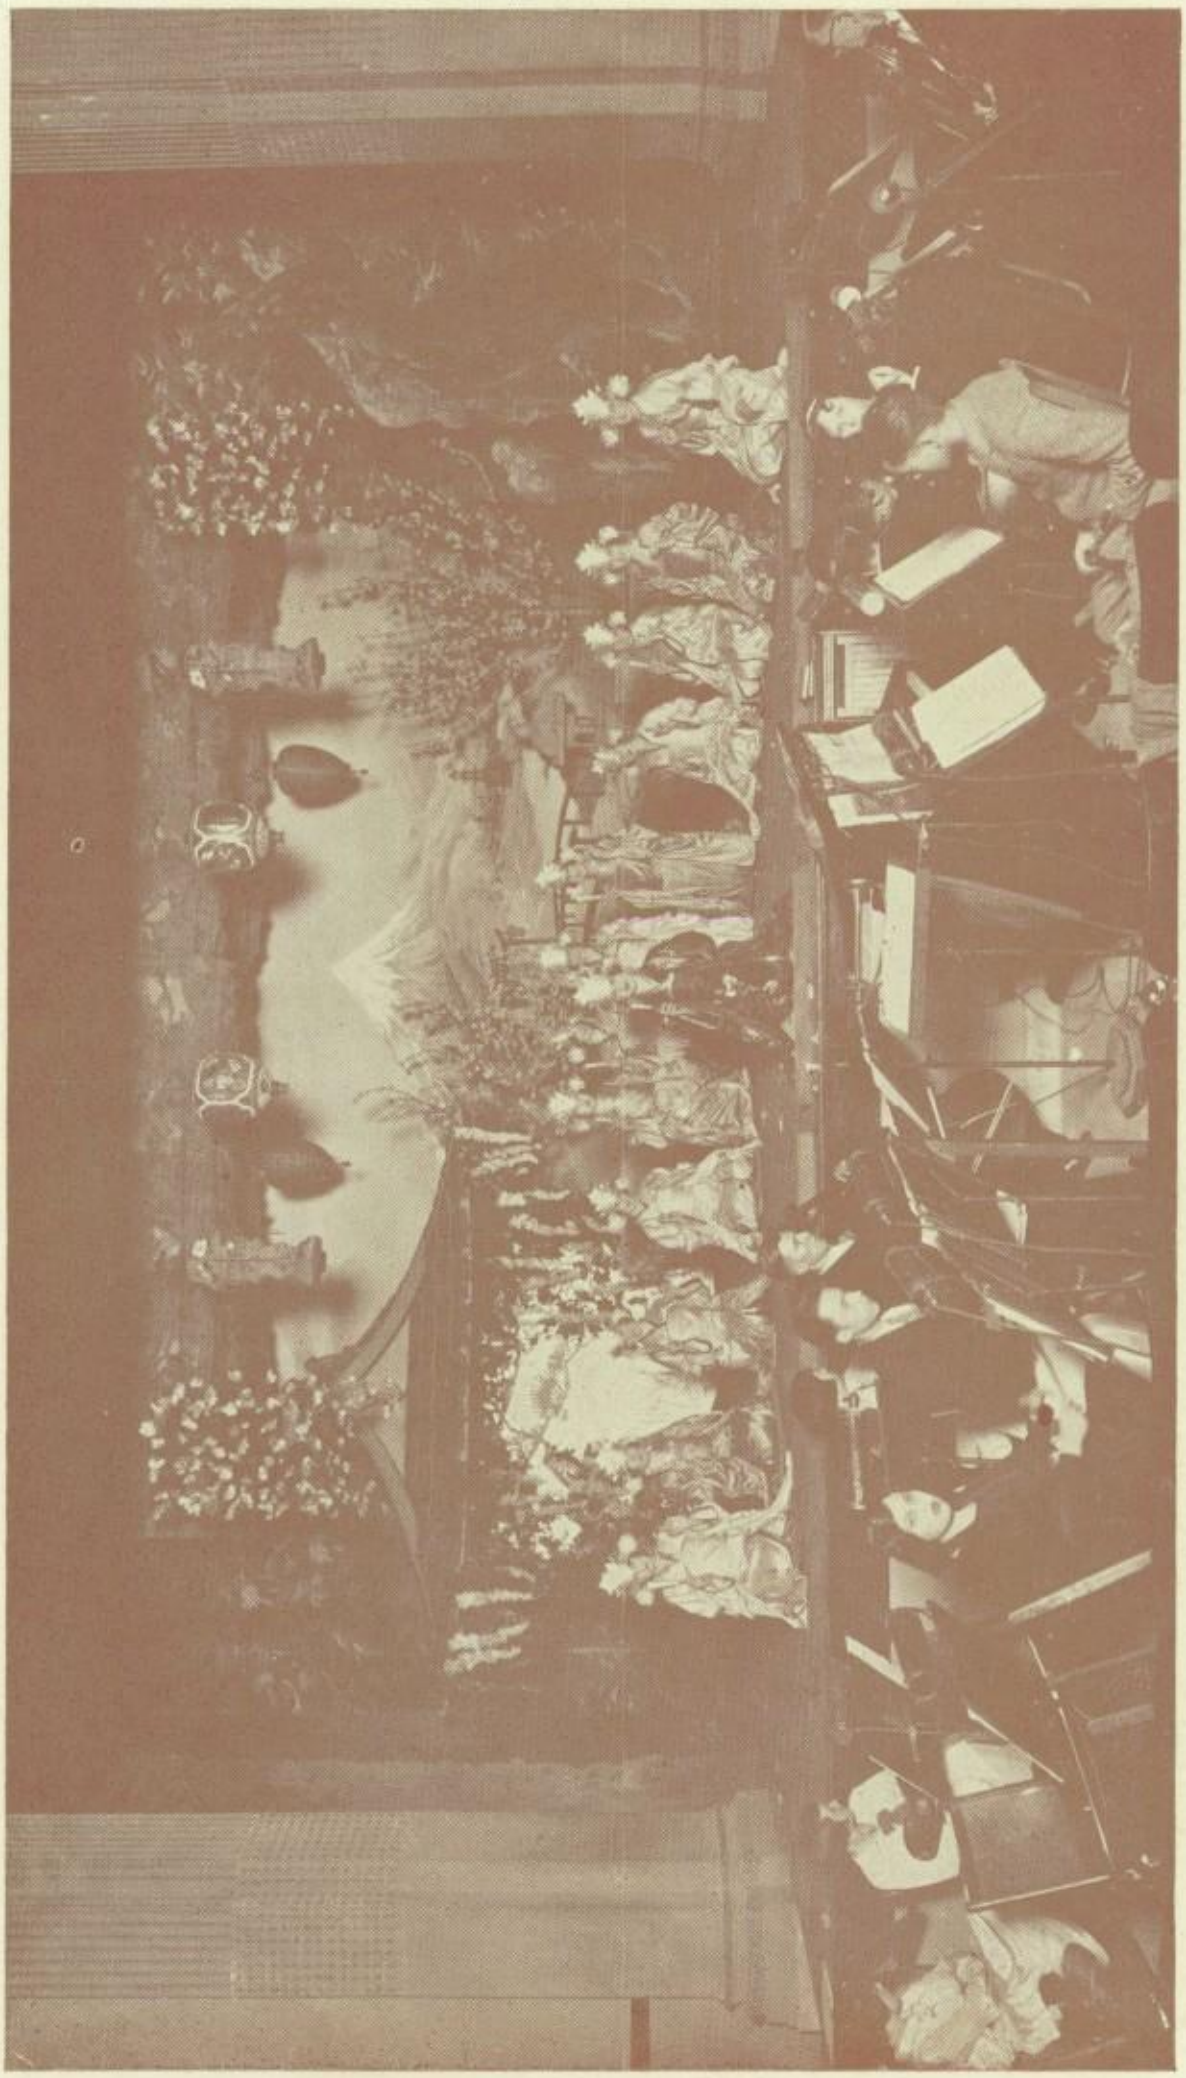
PRINCIPALS IN CAST OF "MAID OF TOKYO"

Left to right, top row: Smith Dawless, Harry Fosdick, Remington Olmstead, Irwin Rust, Dorothea Benson, Donald Jones, June Etienne, and Donald Novis.

"The Chimes" is one of the books Dickens wrote to show the condition of the poor in England. It tells of the adventures of Trotty Veck, his daughter Meg, and her fiance, Richard.

FINALE, ACT III, "THE MAID OF TOKYO"

The book, opening, shows Trotty waiting on the church steps for his daughter Meg, who is to bring his lunch. Trotty sometimes feels hungry and cold, but if the Chimes ring, he is cheered and becomes braver.



GEISHA GIRLS, "THE MAID OF TOKYO"

Meg brings his lunch, and while he is eating, she tells him that she is to marry Richard on New Year's Day. A little later Richard appears, and the three discuss the future.

Faculty

MISS LULA C. PARMLEY

Since coming to the Pasadena High School five years ago, Miss Lula C. Parmley, head of the music department, has established a high standard of musical work in the community as well as among the high schools of the state. She has directed the production of five highly successful light operas, and has made school music a feature of the annual commencement exercises. Under her supervision the enrollment in the music department has practically tripled, and has taken an important place in the activities of the school.

HUBERT H. PARKER

A graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, and for twelve years a member of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, Hubert H. Parker is a highly qualified member of the music department faculty. He has been at Pasadena High School for sixteen years, and has classes in orchestra and band in addition to giving special individual instruction during spare hours. Mr. Parker's true love of music is evidenced by his interpretation and direction of orchestral scores.

ALLEN R. CARPENTER

Mr. Carpenter was formerly a member of the famous "Stroller Quartette," that traveled over the North American continent a number of years ago. After a very successful tour, he studied voice culture abroad, later returning to the United States as an instructor in vocal music. Although having taught but a short time at Pasadena High School, his accomplishments have been pronounced.

MRS. AMY GRAU MILLER

During her two years at Pasadena High School, Mrs. Amy Grau Miller has proved herself a valuable member of the music department. Through her unusual musical ability and splendid training, she has successfully introduced class instruction in piano at Pasadena High School, presenting several successful piano recitals and building up keen interest in piano classes.

MISS CAROLYN REED

Miss Carolyn Reed came to Pasadena High School in February, 1927, to instruct classes in piano and history of music. During the time that she has been with the department, Miss Reed has built up considerable interest in her particular line, music history and appreciation, and in the overflow section of the Girls' Glee Club; namely, the Hi-Lo Club.

While they are talking, several of the town officials emerge from the church, and, when they see Trotty eating there, begin to lecture him for eating such food—much better than he deserved, they thought.

Seventh row: Miss Parmley (director), Wollam, Carberry, Pittroff, Benson, Orr, Zediker, Secrest, Winn, Spencer, Mann, Mills (accompanist).

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

The artistic interpretations and the beautiful tone quality have, for the past year, characterized the work of the Girls' Glee Club, causing favorable comment in both high school and community circles. The ensemble is unusually striking and of a quality rarely found in a high school glee club.

The interest of the organization and the quality of its work are but reflections of the conditions which prevail in all activities of the music department. A great deal of credit is due to Miss Parmley for her expert direction of the group, which, at the present time, consists of sixty-five girls.

During the year 1927-28, the Girls' Glee Club presented programs at clubs, school assemblies, the Parent Teachers' Association, and various churches. The organization also took an active part in the Christmas assembly and "The Maid of Tokyo," in addition to presenting programs over radio station K. P. S. N.

When the men find that Meg and Richard are to be married, they say discouraging things to them. After a time the three are allowed to go.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

Sixth row: Grattan, Singer, Mueller, Shapiro, Spindt, Anderson, Replogle, Zimmerman. Bottom row: Manley, Wood, Clark, Stout, Mr. Carpenter (director), Nevins, Rust, Olmsted, Strutt, Rockwood.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

During the year 1927-28, the Pasadena High School Boys' Glee Club, under the direction of Allen R. Carpenter, has enjoyed a highly successful season. The club has a membership of approximately sixty boys.

Their most notable achievement was the chorus work in "The Maid of Tokyo." The club has also presented programs at the Shakespeare Clubhouse, the Calvary Baptist Church, the Holliston Avenue Methodist Church, the Constitution Oratorical Contest in the Pasadena High School auditorium, and programs over radio station K. P. S. N.

The purpose of the club is to give all students who are interested in vocal work an opportunity to develop their voices under expert instruction.

Trotty, in delivering a letter, learns that one Will Fern is to be "put down" for being a vagabond. Trotty warns him and gives him shelter in his cottage for the night.

Fifth row: Briano, Bruce, Lloyd, Mr. Parker (adviser), Howland, Whitelaw, Bartlett, Siewert, Grotton, Miller, Bothell, Wild. Sixth row: Welts.

ORCHESTRA

The Orchestra Classes of Pasadena High School, under the supervision and personal direction of Mr. Hubert H. Parker, offer an extensive opportunity for all students who are interested in music.

A great variety of good music is used for study material, ranging from good marches, classic dance forms, and varied concert pieces, to light and grand opera selections, standard overtures, and symphony movements.

The Orchestra has numerous opportunities of serving the school. During the past year it has furnished music for "Bab," the Bauble and Bells play; "The Maid of Tokyo," the annual operetta; "The Stubbornness of Geraldine," the Senior play, and commencement exercises. It has also played with the Junior College Orchestra in the Junior College play, "Quality Street."

That night Trotty dreams: Richard and Meg are not married; Richard becomes a drunkard, Meg an old maid. Fern is imprisoned; his only relative dies. Trotty falls out of the church tower and is killed.

In the morning Meg assures him it was just a dream. When the New Year at last arrives, the Chimes ring out, Richard and Meg are married, and all are happy.

The Pantomime of Life

Dramatics has had a very prominent place in school activities this year.

Bringing to a close the dramatic productions, the Senior class presented "The Stubbornness of Geraldine," by Clyde Fitch, on the evening of June 12 and 13. The play was staged under the direction of Miss Elizabeth E. Keppie, who was responsible for the success of the production.

"Bab," by Edward Childs Carpenter, was presented as the annual production of the Bauble and Bells Dramatic Society on the evening of February 25. A very large part of the success of the production is due to Miss Katherine Kester.

Several other productions were given by the Bauble and Bells Dramatic Society throughout the year. The plays given were: "Why the Chimes Rang," by Elizabeth A. McFadden; "A Christmas Chime," by Margaret Cameron; "When It's Spring," by Phoebe Hoffman"; "The Trysting Place," by Booth Tarkington; "Speaking to Father," by George Ade; and "The Empty Room," by Virginia Phillis. "A Christmas Chime" was an amusing story of a young man, who has difficulty in convincing the girl he loves of his affections. The cast included: John Nutter, Martha Riherd, Gladys Buckner, and William Wilson.

"When It's Spring" was an entertaining story of a foreigner trying to persuade the girl he loves to marry him. The cast was composed of: Kate Sullivan, Gordon Lester, Arthur Casebeer. The cast of "The Trysting Place" included: Roney Williamson, Don Van Camp, Helen Wilder, Dorothy Wolfe, Havin Miller. Those taking part in "Speaking to Father" were: Graydon Spaulding, Barbara Stevens, Dorothea Ferns, John Krumm, and Donald Matson. "The Empty Room" included: Geraldine Anderson, Mary Jenkins, Eleanor Rowley, Virginia Phillis, and John Dean.

Two plays given during Shakespeare week to celebrate the author's birthday were "Exits and Entrances," and "The Boy Will."

The advanced dramatics class presented two skits from "Pickwick" at a dinner of the Dickens Fellowship. The Dickensian characters were portrayed by: Gordon Smith, Mary Jenkins, Elizabeth Friend, Lyndell Reed, Gertrude Jensen, Juanita Miller. Miss Keppie was in charge of these plays and scenes.

Miss Elizabeth Keppie

"We revel in pantomime. A pantomime is to us a mirror of life—this very circumstance is the secret cause of our amusement and delight in them."

"BAB"

"BAB"

The Bauble and Bells Dramatic Society, on the evening of February 25, presented in the John Marshall Junior High School auditorium, a clever four-act comedy entitled "Bab," written by Edward Childs Carpenter. Miss Katherine Kester, faculty adviser, directed the members of the cast.

The play was the annual presentation of the Bauble and Bells Dramatic Society. Each year, besides giving short skits, an entire play is presented for the purpose of raising money. From the proceeds a gift is generally contributed to the school.

The play, an adaptation of the story, "The Sub-Deb," by Mary Roberts Rinehart, is a humorous tale of a young girl just out of school, who believes that she is sufficiently sophisticated to direct the family affairs. Meanwhile she falls in love, which leads her continually into difficulties.

MISS KATHERINE KESTER

As the principal parts were all taken in an excellent manner, it is difficult to place the laurels upon any one person. The work of Florence Smith, in the role of "Bab" was exceptionally well done, and she had a difficult role to portray.

She was supported by John Dean, who, as Carter Brooks, had an excellent stage presence and played his part in a delightful manner. Thomas Wright, in the role of the Honorable Clinton Beresford, was particularly successful in stressing the English accent. Ted Hatlen, as Eddie Perkins, also added fun for the audience by his antics.

Dickens wrote the "Pantomime of Life" to show that each person in his own station presents in himself a little pantomime complete with scenes and characters of his own experience.

Florence Huston as Leila, Arthur Casebeer as Mr. Archibald, and Eleanor Rowley as Mrs. Archibald, carried their parts out in an excellent manner. Others who deserve outstanding mention are: Bernice Petheram as Jane Raleigh, and Bruce Woodard as Guy Grosvenor.

The rest of the cast is as follows: William, Irwin Rust; Hannah, Virginia Phillis; Corinne, Esther Strickland; Molly, Lila Wing; Louise, Martha Riherd; Isabel, Persis Hacker; Myrtle, Mary Jenkins; Tom, Gordon Smith; Everett, Carl Cartwright; Gerald, Eric Strutt; and Bob, Murray McDougal.

Another unique play that was given before the student body assembly on December 16, was "Why the Chimes Rang," by Elizabeth Apthorp McFadden. The Bauble and Bells and the Music Department combined to make the play a success. The production was one especially appropriate for a Christmas assembly, inspiring one with the spirit of giving.

An unselfish lad gave his gift without thought of reward—and that is "Why the Chimes Rang."

He gives a few examples, characteristically employed, to delight the audience of the pantomime.

"The Boy Will"
Left to right, top row: Casebeer, Dean, Anderson, Secrest, Petheram.

"Exits and Entrances" was given by Miss Keppie's Advanced Dramatic Class on April 24, 1928. The cast: Tragedy, Dorothea Ferns; Comedy, Gale Bliss; Launcelot Gobbo, Barbara Ferns; Rosalind, Juanita Miller; Celia, Margaret Pittroff; Juliet, Kate Sullivan; and Nurse, Evelyn Anderson.

"The Boy Will" was presented in assembly April 26, 1928, by Miss Keppie's Senior Dramatics Class. It pictured the life of Shakespeare in a highly impressive manner. The parts were taken by Arthur Casebeer as Giles, John Dean as Peeble, Dorothy Secrest as Ann Hathaway, Bernice Petheram as Will Shakespeare, and Geraldine Anderson as Mrs. Shakespeare.

CAST OF "STUBBORNNESS OF GERALDINE"

"THE STUBBORNNESS OF GERALDINE"

The Senior Class of Pasadena High School will present "The Stubbornness of Geraldine," by Clyde Fitch, on the evenings of June 12 and 13. The play will be directed by Miss Elizabeth E. Keppie, dramatics instructor.

The theme of the play is drawn from Ralph Waldo Emerson's lines, "The only way to have a friend is to be one." This proves quite true in the case of Geraldine, as she is friendly to all.

The play opens on a boat returning to America, which is filled with an immensely entertaining crowd of voyagers, each one an admirable portrait, drawn in a masterly fashion. Many interesting situations arise through Geraldine Lang, who is the central figure in the comedy-drama. She falls in love with a Hungarian count, also on board the same ship, and in an attempt to straighten out her difficulties, she becomes involved in highly amusing incidents.

The brother of Count Kinsey, several years before, had been involved in a very notorious scandal. Herr Caulman is recognized as Count Kinsey by Geraldine's governess. The governess confides in two of Geraldine's friends who, in turn, try to break the existing friendship. Through her stubbornness and her faith Geraldine proves the man of her choice is true.

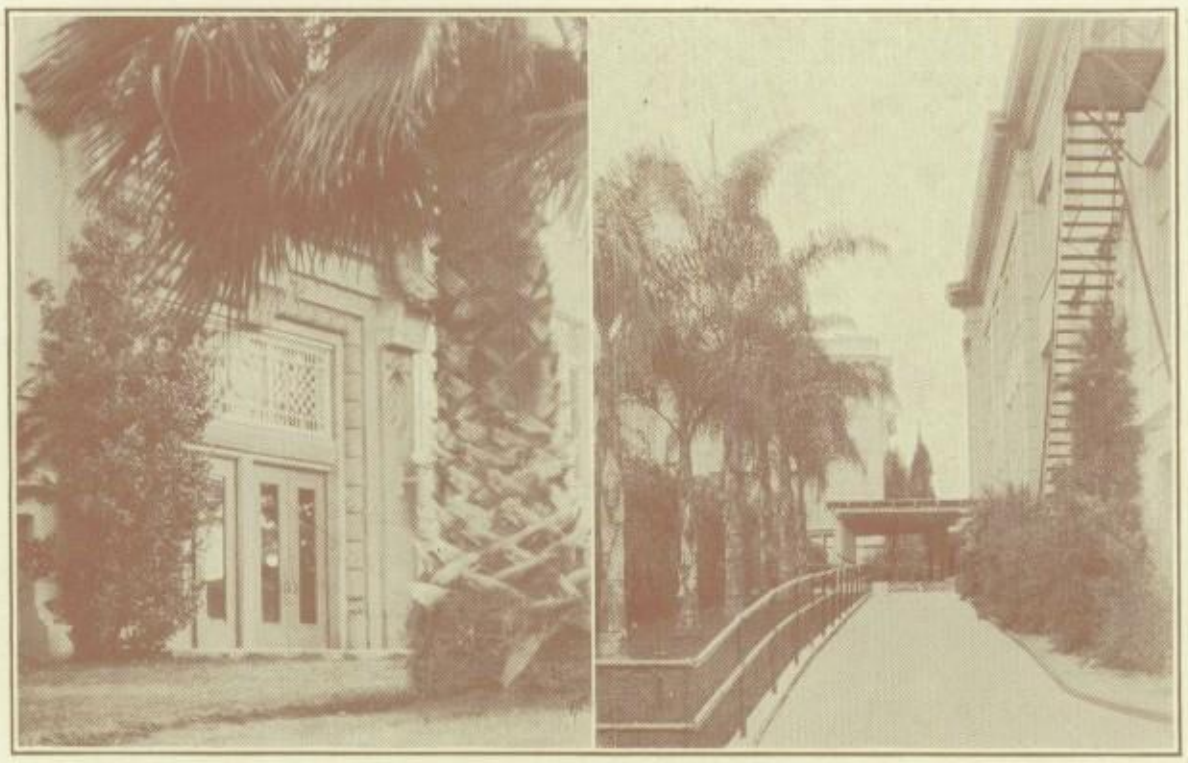
The cast is as follows: Geraldine, Dorothy Secrest; Understudy, Geraldine Anderson; Count Kinsey, John Dean; Understudy, Bruce Woodard; Lord Tilbury, Russel Forsythe; Understudy, Fleetwood Jefferson; Vi, Mary Wark; Understudy, Bernice Petheram;

"It is very well known to all playgoers and pantomime-seers, that the scenes in which a theatrical clown is at the very height of his glory are those which are described in the play-bills."

Fraulein, Esther Strickland; Understudy, Elizabeth Friend; Stewardess, Lyndell Reed; Understudy, Elizabeth Friend; Lady Passenger, Donna Montooth; Understudy, Helen King; Mrs. Jars, Elizabeth Friend; Understudy, Helen King; Mr. Jars, Arthur Casebeer; Understudy, Murray McDougall; Mr. Wrighton, Irwin Rust; Understudy, Charles McNeil; Mrs. Wrighton, Geraldine Anderson; Understudy, Isabel McLain; Mrs. Mathewson, Evelyn Anderson; Understudy, Kate Sullivan; Steward, Gordon Lester; Man Passenger, Ewing Konold; Understudy, Merle Matter; and other minor parts furnishing atmosphere.

The committee chairmen are: Publicity, Ewing Konold; Business, Gordon Lester; Costumes, Helen King; Stage, Isabel McLain; and House, Lyndell Reed.

The senior play class was organized three years ago by Miss Elizabeth E. Keppie. The reason for the organization was that a group of individuals could work better in a class, than a group working irregularly after school. The class each year has functioned successfully in the play undertaken.



SETTINGS FOR MANY SCENES

"Now it is a most remarkable fact that precisely this sort of thing occurs in real life day after day, and nobody sees the humour of it."

Shakespeare Contest

Seven years ago the Shakespearean Contest was established by the Oral Arts Association of Southern California for the purpose of creating interest in Shakespeare's plays. The winners of this contest go to the Annual Southern California Contest at the Community Playhouse.

The winners of this year's contest are: Girls, Bernice Petheram; and Boys, Arthur Casebeer.

Doolittle Contest

Three years ago the Doolittle Contest was established by the parents of Ruth Doolittle in memory of their daughter. The purpose of the contest is to award those who have made progress in Shakespeare memory work. The winners of this year's contest are: Girls, Lyndell Reed; and Boys, Irwin Rust.

The essay is based on the well-known statement of Shakespeare that all the world is a stage and all the men and women merely players. We are all actors in "The Pantomime of Life."

George Silverman's Explanation

Forensics in Pasadena High School, during the year 1927-1928, has been divided into two distinct parts, namely, oratorical contests and debates. Throughout the year, forensics has been steadily pushing to the front in school activities: Pasadena joined the Southern California Debating League again; the debating class had 29 members; the public speaking classes grew in numbers; more students tried out for the contests than ever before in the history of the school, which resulted in finding much excellent material, even in the lower classes; another subject was added to the list of events, "Outlawing War," a national contest; and the support of debates and contests showed a marked improvement over the spirit of former years; Pasadena High School established close contact with the other schools of Southern California by means of the Forum Federation meetings, held every fourth Wednesday evening in Los Angeles, when all the Forum organizations discuss certain topics.

The Forum Club has been the most active club in Pasadena's oratorical work. The persons mainly responsible for the advancement of oratory are: Howard Packard, Commissioner of Debating, first semester; Nelson Dodge, Commissioner of Debating, second semester; Mrs. Irene Sage Peters, Director of Public Speaking; Mrs. Helen M. Stone, Debating Coach and Chairman of the Forensics Committee, consisting of Miss Jessie K. Paxton, Mrs. Marguerite K. Prince, Earl Davis, and Miss Katherine Kester. This committee, in order to maintain a high standard of platform deportment and stage presentation, instituted the system of competitive organization assemblies, the winning club each semester to receive a silver loving cup. Mr. Harbeson also has been most loyal in his support of forensic activities.

The advance of forensic work at Pasadena High School since 1920 is worthy of consideration. Eight years ago the Davis-Hall Contest was the only oratorical contest held. Since that time the G. A. Nelson Contest, the Constitution Contest, the Advertising Contest, the Calvin T. Littleton Extemporaneous Contest, the Redlands Declamation Contest, and the "Outlawing War" Contest have become established activities. The number of pupils participating in the final contests this year totals almost fifty, when but six could be persuaded to try out for the 1920 Davis-Hall Contest.

The outlook for 1928-29 is promising because many people who have become interested in forensic activities during the present year are returning to continue the work next year. The debates and contests held this year have given many students opportunities to develop their forensic abilities.

The class of 1928 is proud of the progress of forensics in the school. The subject is, indeed, a worthy one, for "Without words, where would we be?"

MRS. IRENE S. PETERS

MRS. HELEN M. STONE

George Silverman, as a child, was raised in a cellar; but upon the death of his parents he was sent away to the country, where he grew up. He went to college, where he studied for the ministry, gaining a reputation for himself as a being from another world.

During the year 1927-1928, the debating classes totaled twenty-nine members. Out of this number, eighteen took part in some outside debates, which shows clearly the policy of our coach, Mrs. Stone—to give everybody a chance at debating for the experience, rather than for the honor of winning several debates with the same team throughout the year.

Our first league debate was with Inglewood on November 18. The question was, "Resolved: That the United States has been unjustified in its interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine since 1890." Gertrude Hengerer and Howard Packard upheld the negative side at Inglewood, losing two to one; while the affirmative team, composed of Glenn Reed and Nelson Dodge, debated Inglewood at Pasadena, also losing two to one.

On February 9, we had our second league debate, a simultaneous one with Huntington Park. The issue was, "Resolved: That installment buying as practiced in the United States during the last decade, has had harmful social and economic effects." Gertrude Hengerer and Nelson Dodge debated at Huntington Park, losing two to one. Gladys Buckner and Howard Packard represented Pasadena at Pasadena, winning the decision.

On February 17, Los Angeles High came to Pasadena for a practice debate on the issue, "Resolved: That the present jury system in California should be abolished." Ewing Konold and Walter Gockley represented our school. Los Angeles won, two to one.

South Pasadena High, on March 9, was next on the question, "Resolved: That failure to exercise the electoral franchise should incur a legal penalty." Delbert Brown and Preston Austin put up a real fight; however, the decision went to South Pasadena, two to one.

The last league debate was held on March 23, at Long Beach. The issue was on that argumentative question, "Resolved: That the direct primary should be abolished in local and state nominations." Gladys Buckner and Walter Gockley were our representatives, and lost by a two-to-one vote.

Our last practice debate was held on March 26, with Compton Union High School, on the jury question. Lester Clark and John Dean debated at Pasadena, losing the decision; Harriet Lechert and Delbert Brown spoke at Compton, winning theirs.

A baroness, hearing of his reputation, hires him to teach her daughter. In the course of his tutoring he falls in love with the girl, although he does not reveal it. He has another pupil, a handsome young man, who is poor but of a good family.

Oratorical Contest Winners

The Davis-Hall Contest

Geraldine Anderson

This season the fourteenth annual Davis-Hall Contest took place in November. Each year a general subject is assigned, concerning which the contestants must present their material; this year the subject was "Progress in World Peace." The contest is sponsored by M. W. Davis and J. W. Hall, business men of Pasadena. First and second winners of the contest each receive a gold medal. Geraldine Anderson, speaking on "Disarmament," won first place in the 1927-28 contest; Helen Ward's oration, "Wings of America," won second place. The other finalists were Elizabeth Friend, Theodore Hatlen, Virginia Gollatz, and Hampton Macomber. The first winner of the Davis-Hall Contest goes to the Southern California Oratorical Contest.

Constitution Contest

Theodore Hatlen

Because so many students of P. H. S. enter the contest, our school is a district in itself in the great National Constitution Contest. In the 1927-28 finals, six students took part; three of these were awarded winning places. Theodore Hatlen, the winner of first place, represented P. H. S. in the Times Semi-Final Contest, placing second there. Virginia Gollatz placed second, and Geraldine Anderson third, in the district finals held here at the school on March 29. The three others in this contest were Elizabeth Friend, William Northrup, and Frank Dische.

Redlands Declamation Contest

William Northrup

The Redlands Declamatory Contest was started in 1912 as a feature of the Declamatory Day at the University of Redlands. A silver cup is awarded each year to the winning school, the one winning it three times being allowed to keep it permanently. San Bernardino and Pasadena had each won it two years, until this year, when San Bernardino won it for the third time. William Northrup represented Pasadena High School on May 11, at Whittier, where the contest was held. The speech delivered was Sydney Gulick's "Battleships or Friendships."

Littleton Extemporaneous Contest

With "The Presidential Personnel and Issues" used as a general subject, eighteen people competed on June 7 for first place in the Littleton Extemporaneous Contest.

Started in 1925, this contest has had eighteen people in the finals each year since then. Those who took part in the 1927-28 contest were: Thomas Anderson, Jack Baille, Delbert Brown, Lester Clark, John Dean, Nelson Dodge, Virginia Gollatz, Theodore Hatlen, Gertrude Hengerer, Jack Kindell, Jack Layng, Daniel Marston, John Marshall, Douglas McMann, Howard Packard, Morey Smith, Frank Wengren, and Edward Welch.

Although George Silverman loves the girl, he realizes that he could never marry her, so he tries to bring the young man and the girl together, as they are both his ideals of life. He succeeds, finally marrying them.

G. A. Nelson Contest

Using as a general subject, "Achievements in Contemporary History," the G. A. Nelson Contest, established in 1925, was held on March 13. Five people took part: Helen Ward, Thomas Anderson, Geraldine Anderson, Howard Packard, Ewing Konold, and Theodore Hatlen. Helen Ward and Thomas Anderson took first and second places, respectively.

Advertising Contest

At a banquet of the Advertising Club of this city, held on May 21, at the Constance Hotel, eight speakers competed for first place in the Advertising Club Contest. Mr. Charles Sydnor, an officer of the club and a teacher at Pasadena High School, had charge of the contest. Those who spoke were: Frank Dische, Jack Layng, Robert Meade, Thomas McMann, James Scott, Lois Shattuck, Maurice Stanley, and Eric Strutt.

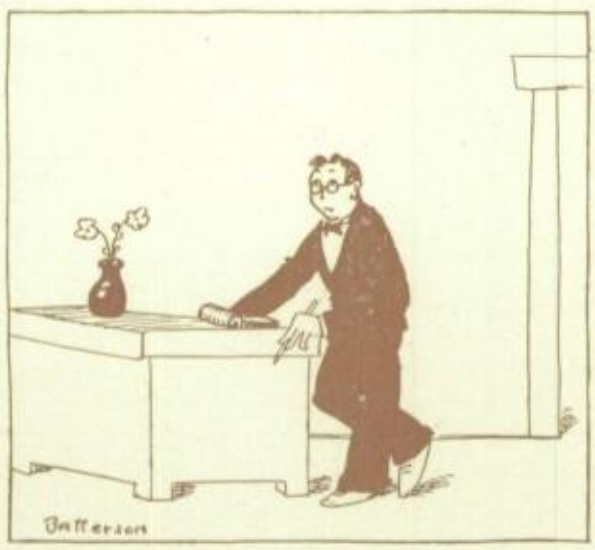
Southern California Oratorical Contest

Having won the Davis-Hall Contest for Pasadena High School, and the group contest at Whittier, Geraldine Anderson represented the school at the Hollywood Bowl on May 25, in the Southern California Oratorical Contest. Because of the interest aroused, so many people took part that it was necessary to hold group elimination contests, from which six people were finally chosen to compete.

Outlawing War

Sponsored by the National Society for the Prevention of War, the "Outlawing War" Contest was first held on May 22. The first prize was a bronze medal awarded here at the school, while the best two orations from each school were sent to Washington, D. C., where they were judged for content only. Six finalists appeared in this contest: Merle Matter, Howard Packard, Dauphin Paine, Lois Shattuck, Frank Wengren, and Robert Wood.

The two papers sent from Pasadena High School were written by Frank Wengren and Dauphin Paine.



The Speech-Maker

Upon breaking the news to the baroness, she assaults him as being worldly, and announces to the world that he has been paid to make the marriage. Broken in heart, he writes his explanation revealing his life and the reason he married the two, hoping that readers will believe him and understand the reason for his actions.

American Notes

This has been one of the most successful years in the history of publications at Pasadena High School. Both the "Chronicle" and the Annual" have received marked recognition, and student interest in those projects has been noteworthy. In addition to the regular issues of the school paper, the "Chronicle" staff published five extra editions at intervals through the year.

In the national yearbook contest held by the Department of Journalism at the University of Minnesota, the "1927 Annual" was awarded first place rating in the first class division. At the Southern California high school press convention, held at South Pasadena in the fall semester, and Whittier in the spring, the "Annual" took the highest awards offered. At the state convention held by Stanford University at Palo Alto, the yearbook won second place.

At Stanford, the news story submitted by Clarence Vetterli, editor of the Chronicle, was judged as best. Again, at the South Pasadena convention this story won first place.

Another honor was awarded to Donald Perry, make-up editor of the "Chronicle," for his article on "The Development of Street Lighting." This prize was won at the Southern California convention, held at Whittier High School.

Two special editions of the "Chronicle" were put out during the year. For the Santa Ana game in the Rose Bowl on Armistice Day, a two-color paper was published and sold at the Stadium. Extra editions were later put out during the mid-year student body elections.

Humor for the year was supplied by two "Crazy Chronicles." The first, published early in the fall semester, was sold for the benefit of the "Chronicle" fund; the second was put out late in May by the Gargoyle Club.

An old tradition was revived when the Pasadena Evening Post was written and edited by the high school and junior college students belonging to the Deadline club. The same group later published a humor magazine.

In order to receive an accurate estimate of the rating of Pasadena High School's publications, the "Annual" and the "Chronicle' have again been entered in the National Scholastic Press Association Contest conducted annually by the Department of Journalism at the University of Minnesota.

Reporting

Dickens, in "American Notes," has recounted, faithfully and fully, his favorable and unfavorable impressions of America gained on his first visit to this country.

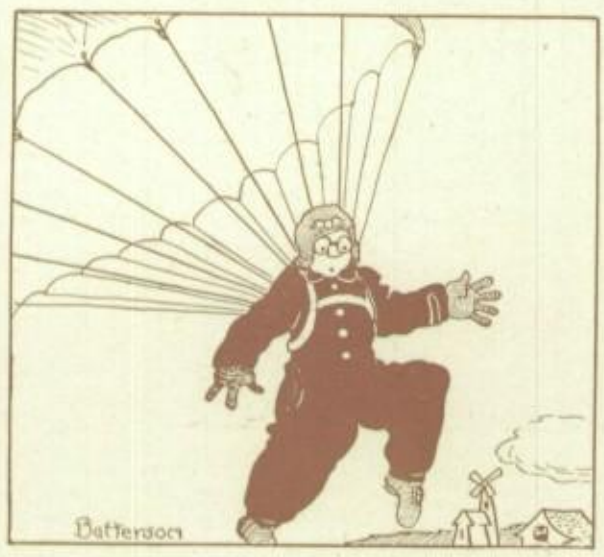
Additional members: Chamberlain, Charshall, Conover, Dieble, Elston, Hall, Hayes, Haywood, Ivans, Kancofe, Klaucke, Leach, Thompson, Ward, Workin, Wilson.

AERO CLUB

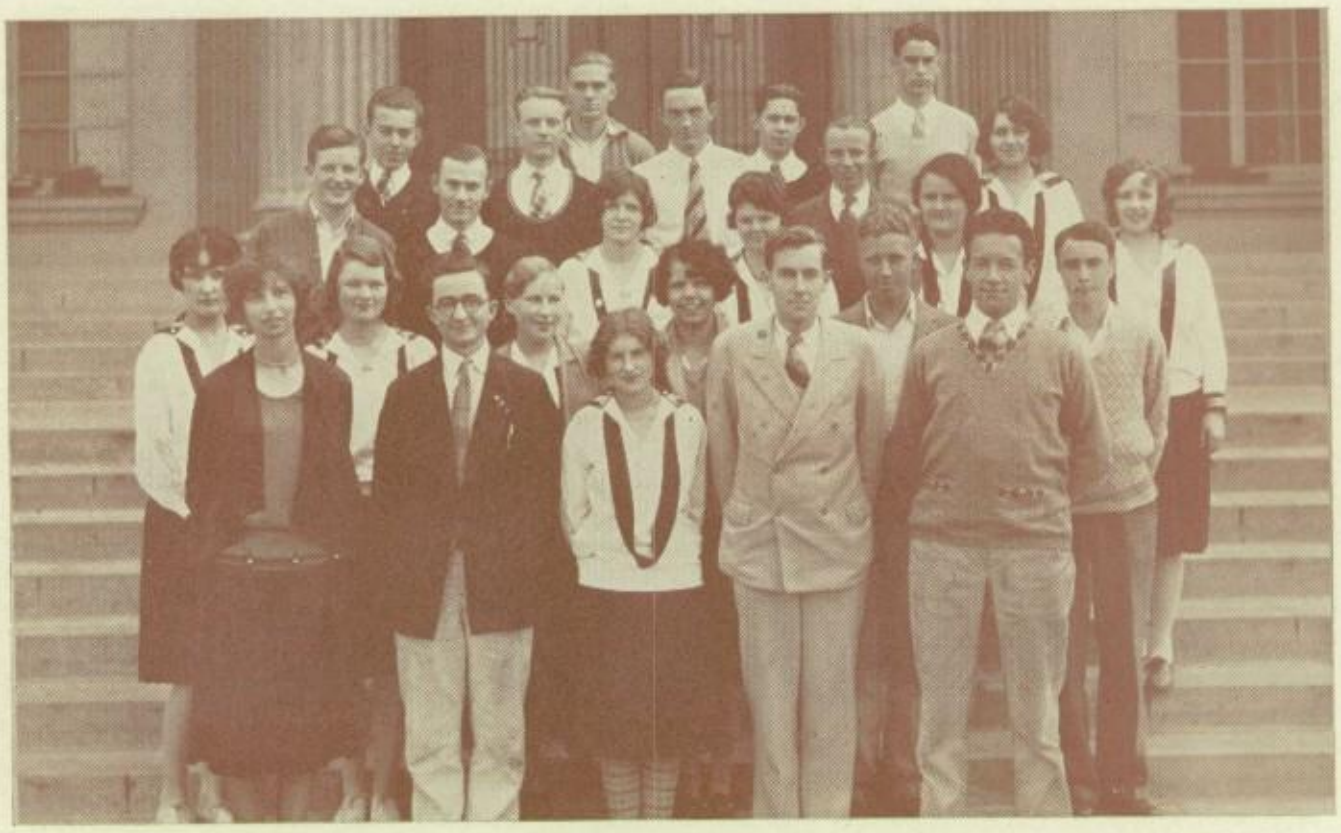
Since the seventeenth of September, 1927, the new Aero Club has been very active in sponsoring programs and excursions. The club was established for the purpose of furthering interest in aeronautics. To accomplish this end, many well known men have been obtained to speak to the organization.

Among the activities of the club since its organization are: A lecture by Professor Merrill of C. I. T.; a talk on aviation by Pasadena's aerial policeman, Mr. D. E. McDaneld; an address on "Aviation of the Future," by the president of the Aero Club of C.I.T.

Two excursions have also been sponsored by the Aero Club. The first was to Ross Field. Each member was taken up for a ride in an airplane. The second was to the Glendale Airfield, where the students were allowed to go through the facory in addition to enjoying a second ride in an airplane.



About this time Jingle appears, steals away the lady's heart, and elopes with her.



AESCULAPIAN

The Aesculapian Club is a new organization at Pasadena high school, being organized in January of this year. The purpose of the club is to create an interest in medicine and in supplementary professions. The programs put on by the club have proved interesting and valuable to its members. Some of the programs presented are: A talk on "Professional Ethics," by Dr. Charles D. Lockwood; Miss June A. Ramsey, director of nurses at the Pasadena Hospital, spoke on "Nursing as a Profession." An excursion to Dr. Lockwood's X-ray room was also among the interesting achievements of this organization.

The main project of the club during the past semester was to sponsor a course in first aid. This course was given by Dr. Harry Upshaw. First aid certificates were awarded to the students who successfully passed the tests.

Following these events, Mr. Pickwick and his companions go to Eatonswill.

ANCHOR AND SAIL

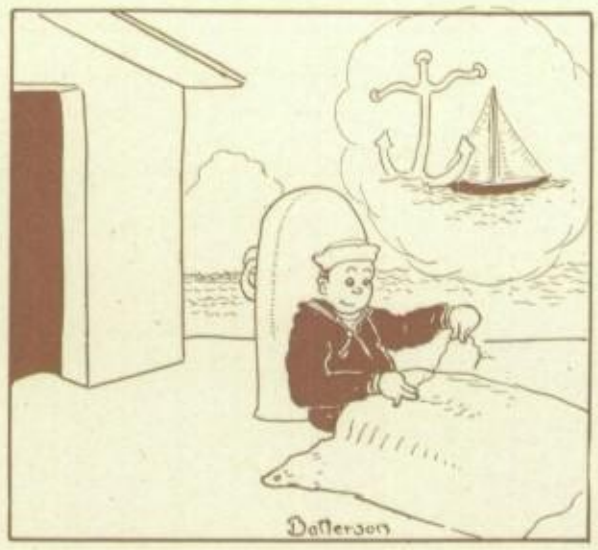
ANCHOR AND SAIL

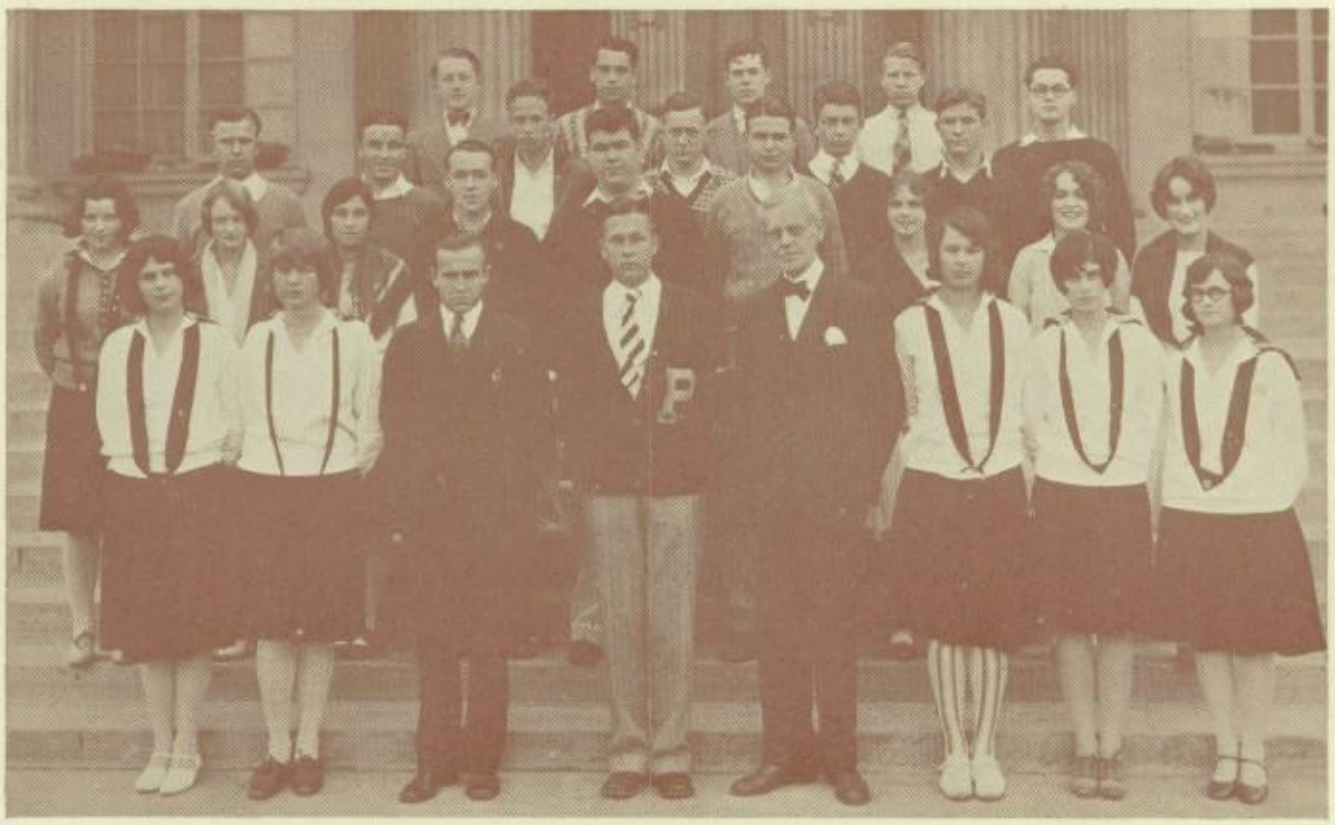
Among the first of the many clubs that have organized this year, is the Anchor and Sail Club. This is a novel club, being the only one in the school to take up a study of ships and the problems of navigation.

When this organization was first formed in November, only fifteen charter members made up the enrollment of the club. Since then, interest has gradually increased among the students in the purpose and activities of the club, until its membership has become almost double that of its charter members.

The major activity of the club this year was an excursion to Balboa beach, under the supervision of the club adviser, Mr. McAuley.



There they become involved in a spirited election, and are very instrumental in the final results.



ARCHITECTURAL CLUB

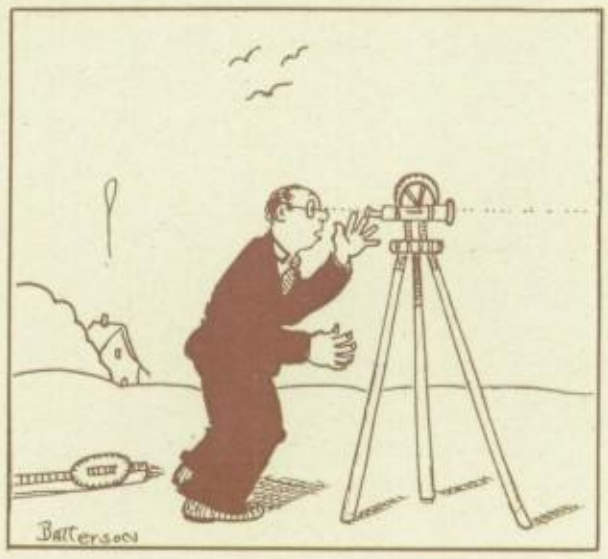
ARCHITECTURAL CLUB

Having been organized for over six years, the Architectural Club is one of the oldest organizations in Pasadena High School. The activities of this year have equaled, in interest and instruction, those of previous years. An exhibition at the Hollywood Museum, sponsored by the Southern California Architectural Association, was attended by the members of the club. The regular meetings have also been interesting. At one, Mr. Cyril Bennett, of the firm of Bennett and Haskell, spoke on "Qualifications of an Architect of Today." At another meeting, Myron Hunt, an architect from Los Angeles, discussed the architectural history of the United States.

This year, as in years past, the club sponsored an architectural contest. The contest was judged by Mr. F. H. Haskell. Three loving cups were awarded to the three leading contestants.



At a costume ball in Eatonswill, Jingle is encountered again and is chased to Bury St. Edmonds.

ATHLETIC MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION

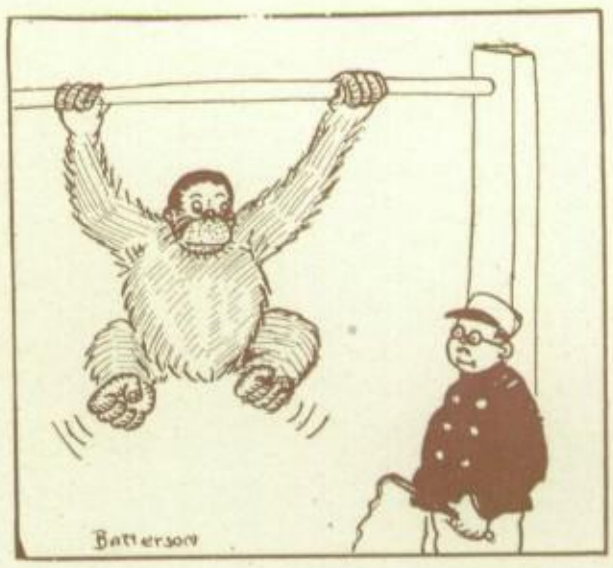
ATHLETIC MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION

The Athletic Managers' Association was established some three years ago. The purpose of the club is to promote interest in athletics. Membership in this organization is limited to boys who have served the school in the capacity of manager of an athletic team. Coach Harry B. Milholin, football mentor, is faculty adviser of the club.

The sports which the members of this association managed are: Varsity football, Tarr, Wotkyns; lightweight football, Kemper, McComb; varsity and midget track, Zaikowsky, Bodine; tennis, Tarr; water polo, Koch; swimming, Rothenberg; baseball, Casserlee, Wotkyns.



Following this second pursuit after the joker, Pickwick and Sam Weller find Jingle and his servant, Job Trotter, are too shrewd for them.

BAUBLE AND BELLS

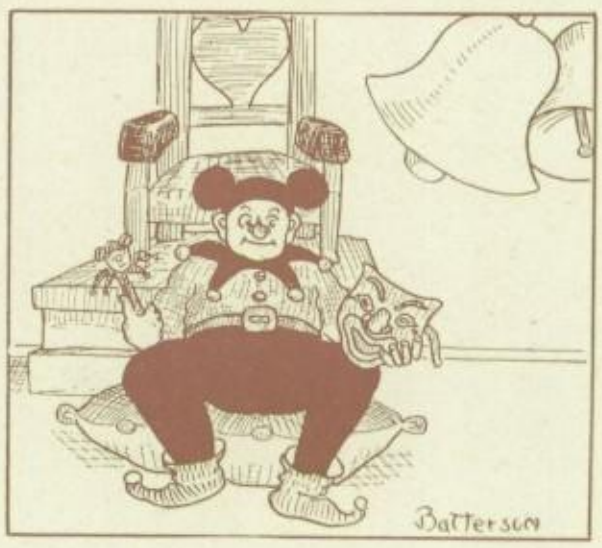
BAUBLE AND BELLS

Six years ago the Bauble and Bells Dramatic Society was organized to promote an interest in dramatics and to give practical experience to its members. Each year since its organization, this club has presented an annual play. This year "Bab" was chosen. The money raised by this play was donated to the Scholarship Fund and the "Annual" fund.

It is also the custom for the society to give several one-act plays each year. The plays given this year were: "Why the Chimes Rang," by Elizabeth A. McFadden; "A Christmas Chime," by Margaret Cameron; "When It's Spring," by Phoebe Hoffman; "The Trysting Place," by Booth Tarkington; "Speaking to Father," by George Ade; and "The Empty Room," by Virginia Phillis.



By an anonymous letter from Jingle, the rather simple Pickwick was lured to the grounds of a ladies' school.

BIG "P"

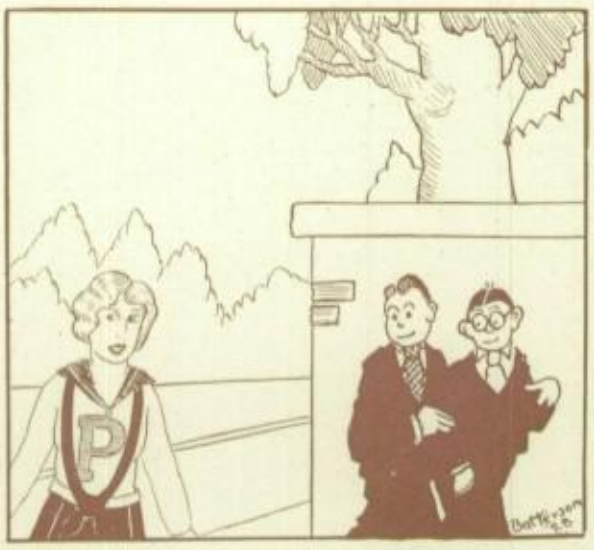
BIG "P"

Girls recognized as the best athletes of the school form the membership of the Big "P" club. Membership in this organization is obtained through gaining points in the rating system established by the Girls' Athletic Association. The attainment of this honor is the goal of every girl athlete.

As the purpose of the club is to arouse interest in girls' athletics and to foster good sportsmanship and school spirit, any girl who is to become a wearer of the emblematic Big "P," must be approved by the teachers of the physical education department.

In addition to participating, with the G. A. A., in the competitive assembly presented on April 17, the girls held two outstanding parties for the purpose of initiating new members.



Blundering into a spinster's bed chamber, he and Sam are arrested.

BIOLOGY CLUB

BIOLOGY CLUB

The Biology Club was organized in 1920 by students interested in Biology. The purpose of the organization is to promote interest in Biology. Membership is open to all students who are interested in the purpose of the club. Each semester the members sponsor an excursion. The first semester, Mount Baldy was the scene of this event. The club has grown rapidly in membership as it has increased the interest of students in Biology. The club members also enjoy the excursions sponsored by the Biological Science Department. During the past year, members have also taken a great deal of interest in securing rare-plant contributions for the pond.

They are taken before a magistrate whom, they learn, is being imposed upon by Jingle and Trotter.

CLIO CLUB

Left to right, top row: Johnson, Knowles, Burden, Kimble, Rothenberg, Rowens, Clark, Lester, Krakower, Penny, Plotkin. Second row: Jensen, Preble, Blanchard, Hendershot, White, Stroller, Fifield, Metcalf, Strutt, Huntley, Nagelvoort. Third row: Jenkins, Friend, Davies, Hubbard, Heliotes, Rice, Williamson. Fourth row: Dibble, Gregg, Wheeler, Huston, Minick, Raab, Ely, Leach, Krost, Todd, Casperson, Tracy, Garst, Strickland, Spencer. Fifth row: Newton, Carson, Younglove, Blick, Ives, R. Williamson, Woodard (P.), Revelle (S.), Miss Kibre (adviser), McClymont, King, Phillis, Petheram, Marodes (V.P.), Shapiro. Additional members: Heidner (T.), Coffin, Duthie, Gillis, Hollingsworth, Hughes, Lewis, Nold, Pow, Wing.

CLIO CLUB

To promote a greater appreciation and interest in historical subjects is the purpose of the Clio Club, which was organized in March, 1927. Any student is eligible for membership who has received a recommended grade in history.

Last semester the club gave a very interesting assembly, with Miss Eleanor Miller as the speaker. A talk about "China," by Mrs. E. F. Harrison; a talk about "The Trip Around the World," by W. J. Foote; and a lecture on "Japan," by Mrs. S. E. Arnold, provided entertainment at the monthly club meetings. Some of the other activities of the club were: A theatre party to see the play, "Abraham Lincoln," by John Drinkwater; sponsoring the showing of several historical pictures; contributing to the library two sets of Perry pictures; and a gift to the Scholarship Fund.

Informing the magistrate of these circumstances, they are able to even the score against Jingle.

COMMERCE CLUB

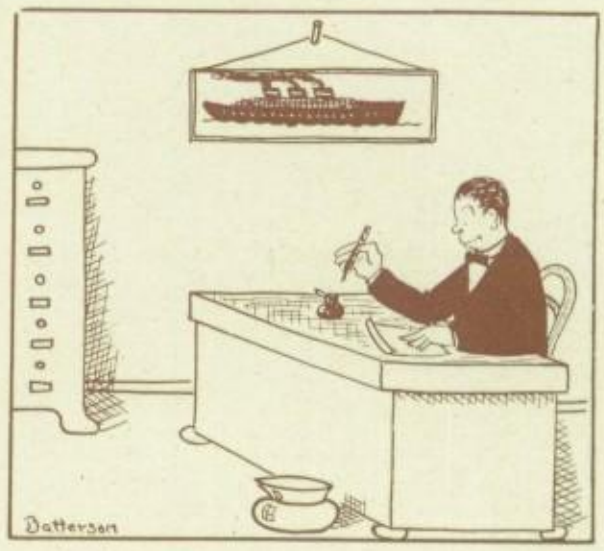
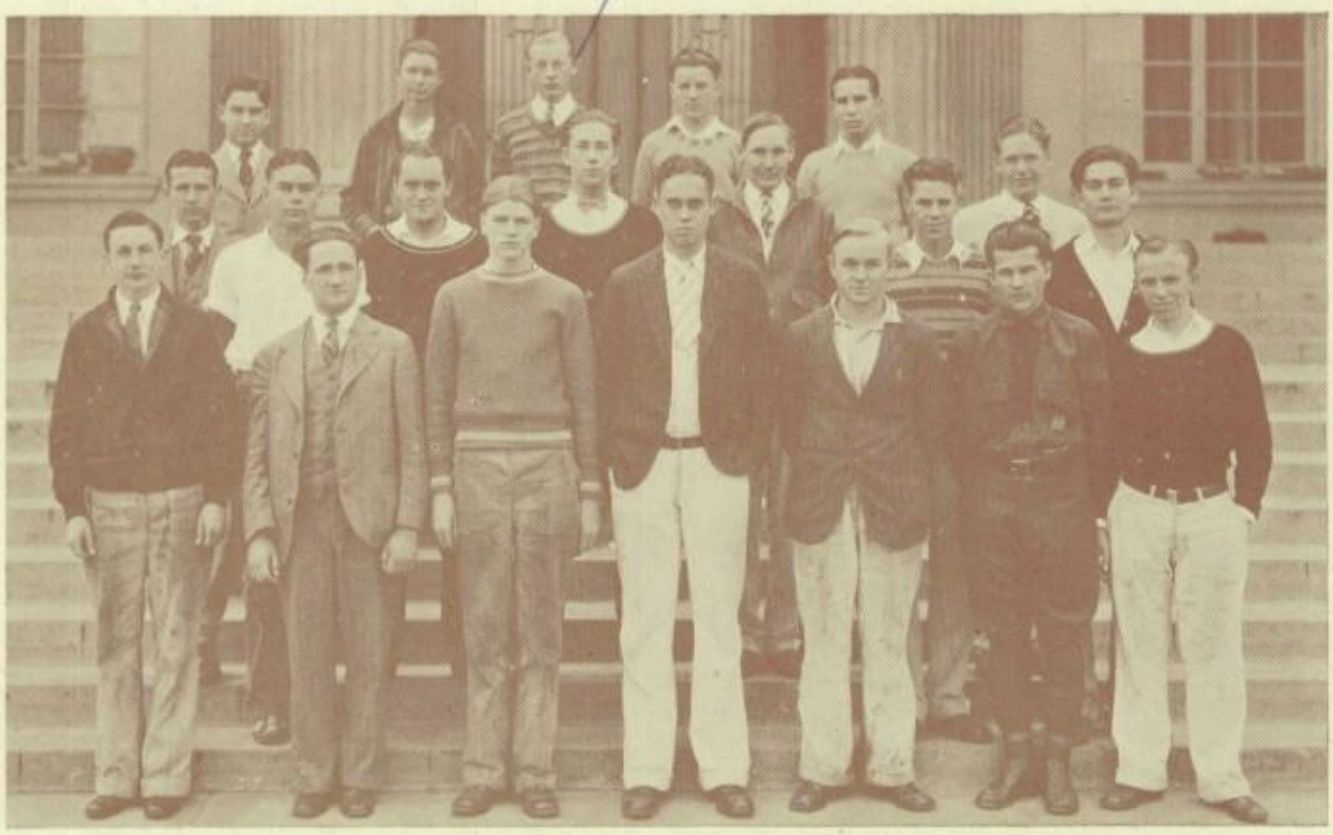
COMMERCE CLUB

Established a few years ago at the popular demand of students interested in the practical business of making a living, the Commerce Club has grown steadily in size and importance. The program of this organization includes both business, or instructive meetings, and social gatherings. One of the most important instructive programs was a speech on "How to Make Safe Investments," by Mr. Pease of the California Security Loan Corporation.

One large social function is held each semester. The first semester the club enjoyed an evening party at the home of one of its members. The second social activity was an excursion to the beach in the latter part of May. A large number of the members also take advantage of the numerous excursions sponsored by the commercial department.



On the return trip to London, Pickwick and Sam Weller stop at the White Hart Inn.



FORESTRY CLUB

FORESTRY CLUB

The Forestry Club has also had its share of interesting activities this year. The purpose of the organization is to aid in the protection of national forests. This year, with the help of the United States Forestry Service, the club put on an elaborate display that lasted from the twenty-sixth of March to the sixth of April. This display took place in the window of the Model Grocery and Department store, and was one of the most important undertakings of the club since its organization.

During the first semester, the members took a hike to Dawn mine. On this trip the group had an opportunity to study the problems of reforestation on the south slope. An interesting time was also had while exploring the old mine.

Sam visits his friends here, having been taken from this inn by Pickwick some time before.

FORUM CLUB

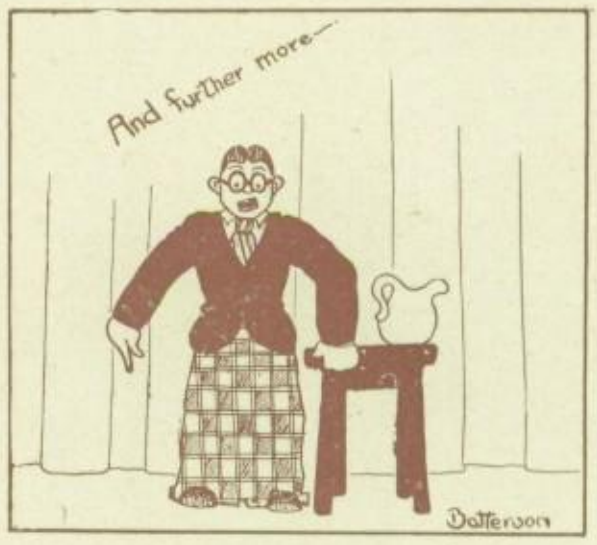
Inviting students to throw off their cloak of timidity and try out for public speaking and debating contests, the Forum Club has done much in raising the forensic standard of Pasadena High School. In this organization are to be found the orators, readers, and debaters of the school. This year Pasadena again entered the debating league, and the Forum club, through its courteous behavior to contestants from visiting schools, gained the good-will and friendship of those schools.

Each month an evening meeting is held at which discussions on current topics of interest take place. The Pasadena club has also been an active member of the Southern California Forum Federation. Some of the activities of the organization during the past semester are: Sponsoring debating, and oratorical contests; presenting a mock debate in assembly; giving a debate in assembly on the question, "Resolved: That the High School and Junior College should each be placed on its own campus."



They finally reach London, where Pickwick tries to tell his landlady, Mrs. Bardell, of his new servant.

GARGOYLES

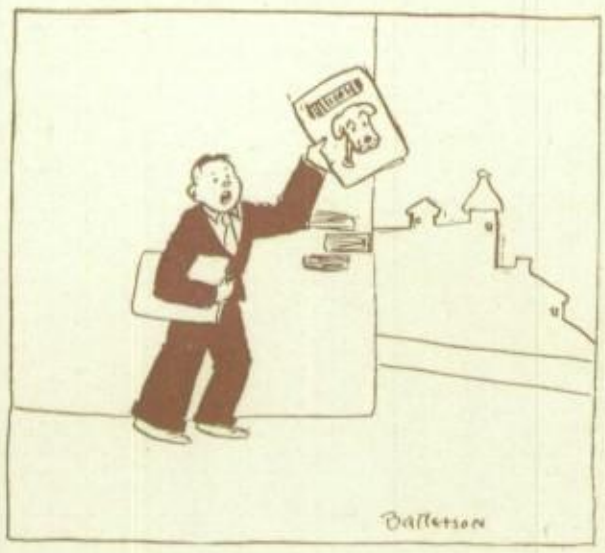
THE GARGOYLES

Out of the two groups, the Cartoon and Press clubs, in the fall of '27, grew a new organization to be known as the Gargoyles. Similar interests and the opportunity of furthering progress in the literary field by combined efforts brought about the amalgamation.

The first officers elected were: Robert Wynters, president; Clarence Vetterli, vice-president; Neal Batterson, secretary; Ted Hatlen, treasurer. John K. Leberman, instructor of printing, was unanimously chosen faculty adviser.

Several school meetings and one evening party were given during the autumn semester. The Gargoyles assisted materially in the final preparation of a special Armistice number of the Chronicle. Although not a club project, the mid-season scandal sheet, "Wednesday Wash," was written and set up by a staff composed of Gargoyle members. At the closing of school in June, the club gave the students a hilarious summer send-off with a last edition of the Crazy Chronicle.



In telling her about him, he says he is tired of living alone and that his intentions are—

Front row: Petheram, King, Cobb, McCrary, Wheeler, Bugbee, M. Hart (S.), Arnold (V.P.), Hengerer (P.), E. Hart, (T.), Reid, Starrett, Klingman, Patterson, Blick, Corson, Miss Gillette (adviser).

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

In upholding the highest ideals of sportsmanship, in increasing interest in girls' athletics, in promoting friendship among its members, and in encouraging a spirit of service to the school, the Girls' Athletic Association is performing a real service to the school. In order for a girl to be a member, she must make one hundred points in athletic events. After every sport a spread is given for the girls and the awards are made. During the year several hikes and a skating party were enjoyed.

The large banquet which comes at the end of the year marks the end of the year's activities. At this banquet, awards are made also, including the cup which goes to the class winning the most points in all sports for the entire year.

And Mrs. Bardell, thinking he is proposing to her, faints in his arms.

GIRLS' RIFLE CLUB

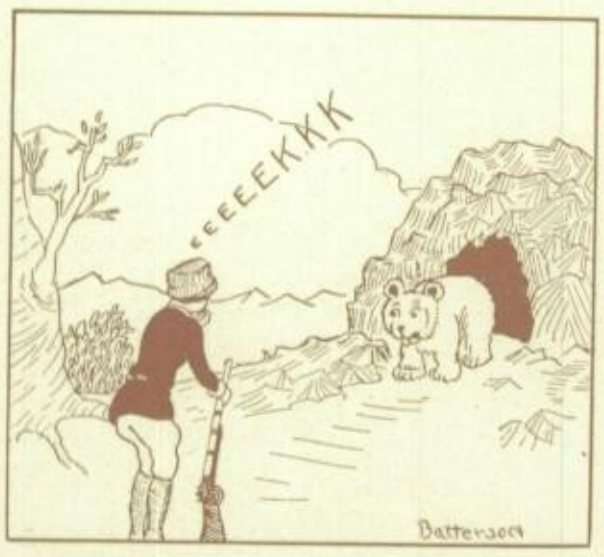
GIRLS' RIFLE CLUB

An enviable record has been attained by the Girls' Rifle Team during the past year. Eight shooting matches with schools as far east as the Western High School, Washington, D. C., to the McKinley High School, Honolulu, have been sponsored by this club. In only one of these eight matches has the local rifle team been defeated. The results of these matches are as follows:

Hollywood H. S.	2505	Walla Walla H. S.	2523
Pasadena H. S.	2555	Pasadena H. S.	2555
Los Angeles H. S.	918	Western H. S.	482
Pasadena H. S.	934	Pasadena H. S.	469

Polytechnic H. S.	899
Pasadena H. S.	921
McKinley H. S., Honolulu	775
Pasadena H. S.	921



Among the social activities of the club were an initiation at Glen Ranch the first semester, and a beach party at Crystal Beach, during the second semester.

At this most inopportune moment, Pickwick's friends arrive upon the scene.

HI-TRI

To uphold the principles of the Young Women's Christian Association, to serve the community, the state, and the nation, to promote world fellowship and foster international amity, is the three-fold purpose of the Hi-Tri Club.

Membership is not restricted, as any girl who is willing to accept the purpose, slogan, and code of the club is eligible.

Three Friday evenings each month interesting group meetings are held, during which swimming, basketball, and handcraft are enjoyed. A business meeting is held the second Friday of the month.

The club was represented at both the Southern California mid-winter conference in Hollywood and the semi-annual national conference in Sacramento.

The Club makes another visit to Dingley Hall, and a partridge hunt is organized.

HI Y

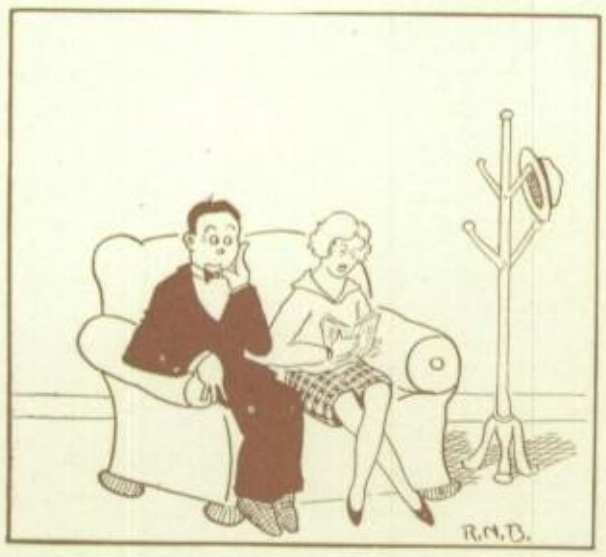
HI Y

To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character, is the purpose and ideal of the members of the Hi Y.

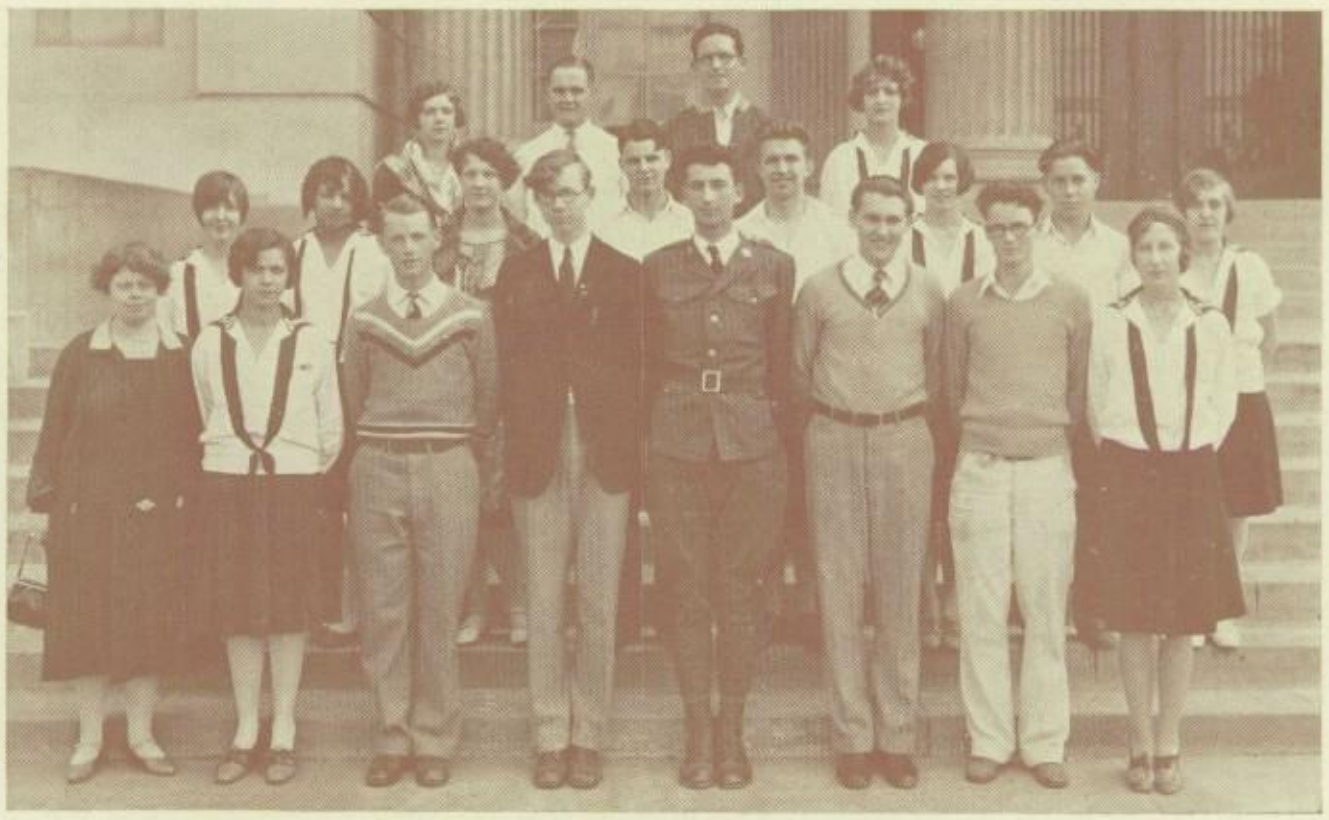
Always prominent in school affairs, the Hi Y did a definite service to the school when it took the lead in securing recruits for the R. O. T. C. Another project of the organization was to aid in charity work at Christmas time.

The club has also enjoyed several social functions, including a Mothers' night the first semester, a Ladies' night, and a hay ride out to Devil's Gate Dam during the last semester.



For twelve years, the Hi Y has been one of the best known high school clubs. Each year the members of the club, in order to extend their creed as far as possible, have taken a definite interest in school activities.

Pickwick, tiring of the hunt, trespasses upon a private estate and is put into the town animal pound.



JUNIOR DICKENS FELLOWSHIP

Observing the one hundred and sixteenth anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens, the members of the 1928 Annual staff, with the help of Miss Eleanor Miller, organized a Junior Dickens Fellowship, a branch of the world-wide Dickens Fellowship.

The object of the Fellowship is to further interest in the writings of Charles Dickens, and to help in social uplift work, the keynote of all his writings.

On the evening of February 27, the Fellowship attended a "Cratchits' Christmas Dinner," given by the Pasadena branch of the Dickens Fellowship at the Universalist Church.

On March 6, the Shakespeare Club invited ten members of the Fellowship to attend an entertainment featuring skits from some of Dickens' writings.

At an evening meeting of the Fellowship, Judge J. H. Merriam gave a talk on Dickens, portrayer of human character.

He again returns to London, to find that Mrs. Bardell has filed a suit for breach of promise; he proceeds to take steps to fight it.

Formed for the purpose of promoting an interest in the Spanish language and customs, this club has attained prominence through the cooperative interest of its members. The advisory programs, given once a month, are educational as well as entertaining. Two parties are held every semester; one, for the purpose of initiating the new members into the club, and the other for the purpose of uniting the members by an evening meeting.

It is the custom for the organization to help the Mexican pupils of the Fremont School. This year a Christmas program was presented. This was a novel accomplishment because it was produced entirely in the Spanish tongue. Membership in this club is open to all eleventh and twelfth year Spanish students, and all such students are cordially invited to join.

In the meantime, a happy Christmas is being enjoyed at Dingley Dell as Isabella Wardle becomes Mrs. Trundle.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Celebrating its third anniversary, this club has continued its active and interesting programs. From a charter membership of fifteen members the enrollment has grown rapidly until at the present time there are sixty members. The purpose of the club is to promote and further interest in French literature, language, customs, and people. The meetings are conducted entirely in French. Some of the activities the club accomplished this year are: presenting three French flags to the school; contributing a substantial donation to the Scholarship Fund; adding some interesting volumes to the school library. The requirement for membership in this organization is that the student must have successfully completed two years of French.

LETTERMEN'S CLUB

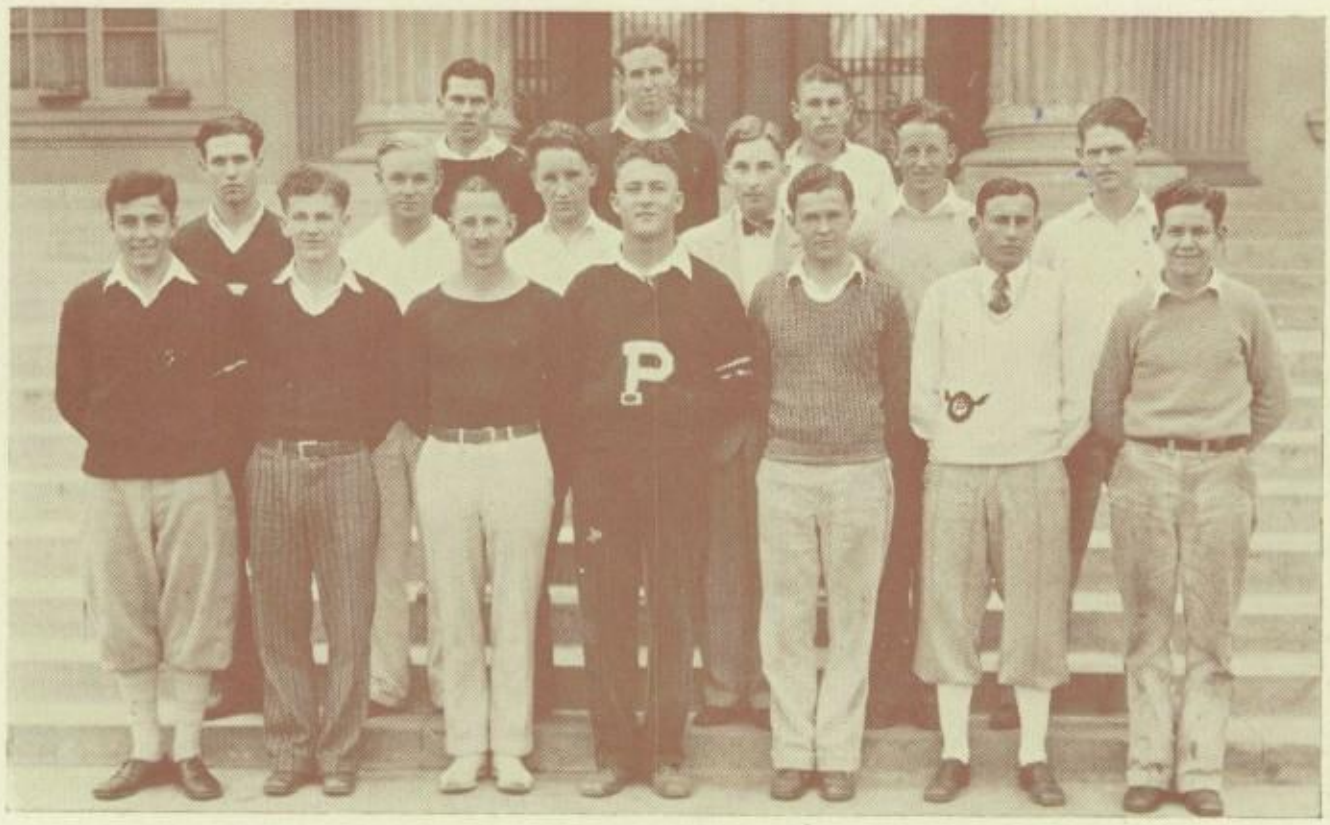
Boys who have earned letters by athletic service at Pasadena High School form the membership of the Lettermen's Club. The organization was founded in 1921 for the purpose of bringing together boys interested in athletics. This year the constitution of the club has been amended to include a feature that is new at Pasadena High School. Boys who win their letters in minor sports only are forced to wear their letters, or emblems, on their lettermen's sweaters, while the boys who earned their letters in major sport competition may wear their letters or not, as they choose. In this manner a distinction is made between minor and major sport lettermen. This feature has been adopted in most schools, but this is the first year it has been considered at Pasadena.

In addition to these two romances, Winkle is in love with Arabella Allen.



MAT AND GLOVE

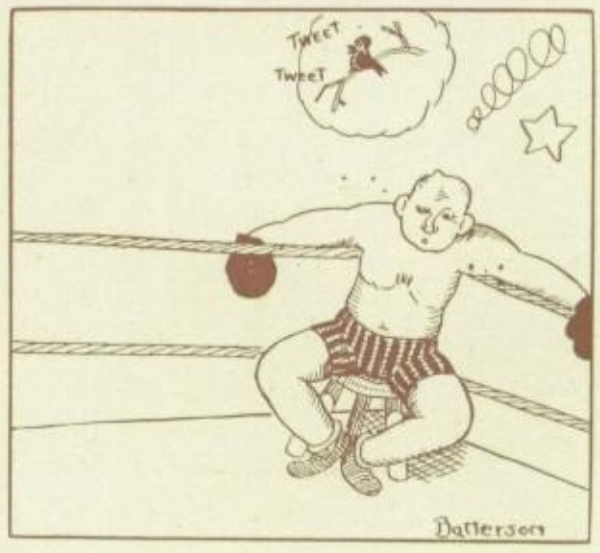
MAT AND GLOVE

Although the Mat and Glove Club was not organized until February of this year, it has already made rapid progress in furthering the interest of the school in boxing and wrestling. Since February the enrollment of the club has increased from eleven charter members to include more than twenty-five members. On April 22, the group went to Sespe Creek, Ventura County, and had the initiation of new members.

The greatest accomplishment of the club since its organization was to sponsor the Southern California wrestling tournament, which took place in the boys' gymnasium, April 28. Wrestlers from practically every large high school in Southern California competed in this event. Prizes were awarded to the wrestlers who were victorious in their respective classes.



In courting her, Winkle finds he has a rival.

MUSOLITE CLUB

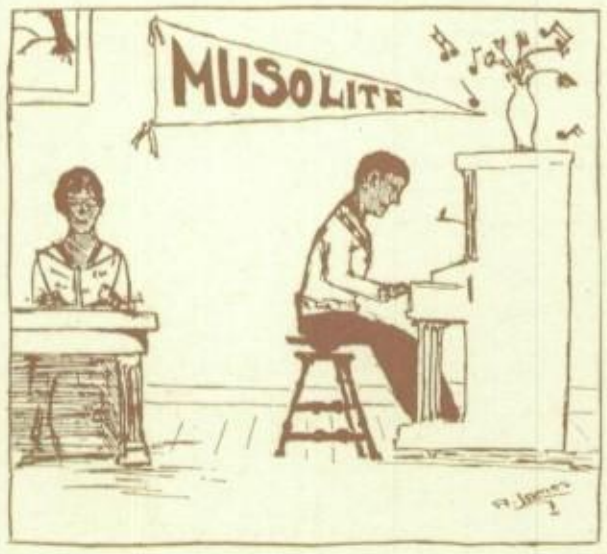
MUSOLITE CLUB

One of the long established organizations at Pasadena High School is the Musolite Club. The purpose of the organization is to create an interest in music and literature. Much musical talent has been displayed by its members at the regular monthly meetings. Mr. O'Mara, vice-principal of Pasadena High School, and adviser of the club, has taken a very active interest in the organization. Because it failed to elect officers until rather late, the group has not had as many social activities as usual.



During the first semester, the Musolite Club presented an assembly before the student body, in which musical numbers were offered by the most talented members.

NOKOMA CLUB

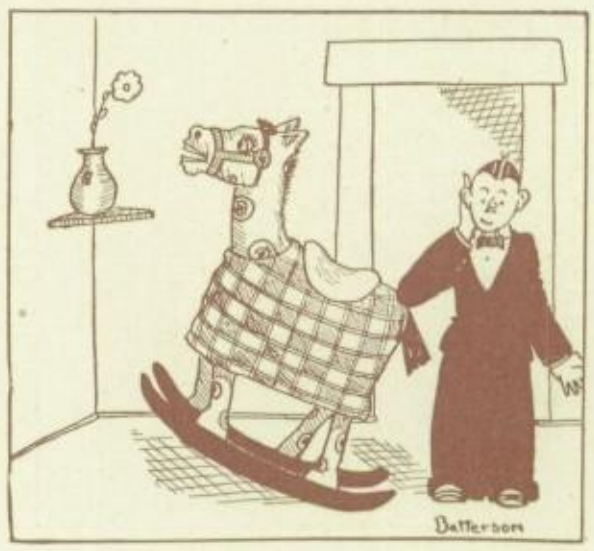
NOKOMA CLUB

One of the most unique and interesting clubs at Pasadena High School is the Nokoma Club. The purpose of the organization is to study hobbies, and promote interest in them through discussions and interesting talks. The club was organized in October, 1927, with Miss May Walmsley as adviser.

Hobby talks have proved an interesting feature of the advisory meetings. Some of the talks have been illustrated and others accompanied by exhibits of hobby collections. Outside meetings have been varied in interest, including a theater party to the Community Playhouse, where the play, "Red Bird," was seen, and a picnic at Brookside Park, which was featured by an interesting mock trial.

The other evening meetings proved of equal interest and value to the members.



Pickwick, returning to London, prepares to fight the suit entered by Mrs. Bardell.

NUMISMATIC CLUB

NUMISMATIC CLUB

"A country is known for the money it keeps." Although this adage is not quoted exactly as it should be, the meaning might well be applied as the reason for the forming of the Numismatic Club on February 3, 1926.

The purpose of the club is to study the different coins of the world and to interest its members in the collection of rare and unique means of exchange through the medium of metal.

Requirements for membership in the club demand that the student wishing to join be interested in coins, and passing in all school subjects. During the past year the club has had several evening meetings, at which the visitors and speakers have explained the reasons for certain coin issues. Recently the club donated to the library a collection of coins which is now used for display purposes.

The trial is decided in favor of Mrs. Bardell, and she is awarded 750 pounds damages.

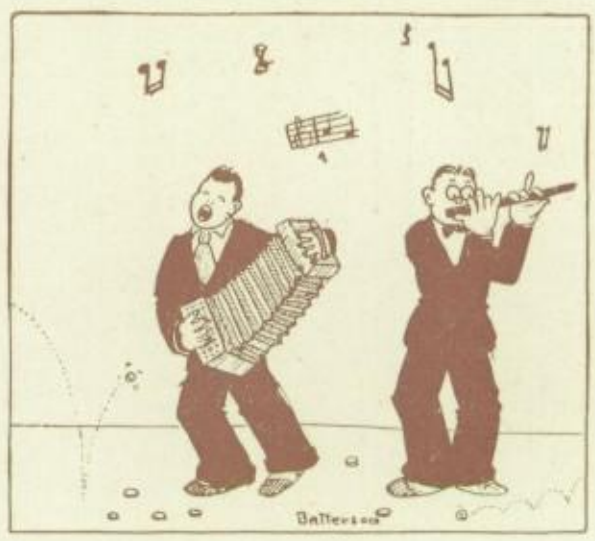
ORPHEUS CLUB

Left to right, top row: Lewis, P. Briano, Rust, Coates, Oulton. Second row: E. Briano, Krayenbuhl, Scott, Anderson, White, Wesley, Benson, Roess, Riordan, Blakeslee. Third row: Whipple, Preble, Haigazian, Turner, Jeannerette, Cover, Martha, Morrison, Webber, Hubbard. Fourth row: Dibble, Tremeear, Settle, Corson, Miller (S), Miss Parmley (adviser), Jones (P.), Yerxa (V.P.), Wark (T.), Miller, Maroder. Additional members: D. Anderson, Campbell, Capps, Davidson, Erickson, Gilloon, Hacker, Kendall, Kellogg, Kidder, Mills, Peterson, Pomeroy, Runge, Rose, Smith, Taylor, Tucker, Goode, Howland.

ORPHEUS CLUB

The purpose of this organization is to promote the appreciation of music and to serve the school through the talent of its members in presenting programs.

Tryouts for membership in the club are held once each quarter with not more than nine applicants accepted each time. Those admitted must be sufficiently advanced technically and artistically in piano, voice, or orchestral music in order to appear to good advantage on public programs. Several programs were presented during the year before several Pasadena clubs, including the Exchange Club of Pasadena, the Parent-Teacher Association of the Andrew Jackson School, and one for the Braille Club. In the competitive assembly contest held during the first semester of the school year, the club was awarded second place by the judges.



His refusal to pay finds Pickwick faced with a prison term.

PAD AND PENCIL CLUB

PAD AND PENCIL

The purpose of this organization is to create an interest in shorthand and typewriting and to present a broader aspect of business life in general, among the girls of the school who are in the secretarial course.

During the year several evening meetings were held, including a skating party, a Hallowe'en party, and a leap year party. These meetings have served to bring together in social relation the members of the club.

One of the activities of the year was the competitive assembly presented on May 1. Books were donated to the library as the constructive work of the year.

Requirements for membership are one semester of shorthand and one of typing.

PEN AND QUILL CLUB

Left to right, top row: Bruce, A. Ellis, Macklin, T. Newland, Matson, Guerrant, Milburn. Second row: Snyder, Ramsay, Williams, Parker, H. Ellis, Higbee. Third row: Markey, Rooke, Desenberg, Woolley, Nay, Bacon, E. Newland, Hamill, Ruediger. Fourth row: Price, Comstock, Bidwell, Miller, Brown, Beckham, Lataillade, Keever, Clow, Mellema, Evans. Fifth row: H. Macklin, Harvey, Glidden, Folts, Miss Atkinson (adviser), L. Jepson (T.), Hendrickson (V.P.), MacDonald (S.), D. Jepson, Cook, Ryden (P.), Whitney. Additional members: Davies, H. Ellis, French, Free, Griffith, MacMillan, Nevins, Pearson, Way.

PEN AND QUILL CLUB

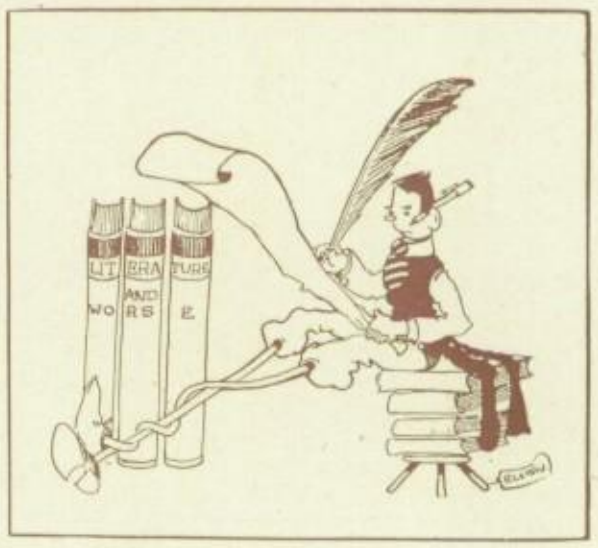
The Pen and Quill Literary Club was founded in 1923 at the John Muir Junior High School. In 1924 the club was continued at Pasadena High School.

The purpose of the organization is to create a greater interest in good literature and to make it more familiar to students.

One evening meeting is held at the home of some member each month, in addition to the regular advisory meetings. At the evening meeting the latest books, plays, essays, and articles are discussed, both by the members and by the adviser, Miss Dora Atkinson.

Any student with a grade of A or B in English and a passing grade in all other subjects is eligible to try out for membership.

The Pen and Quill Club ranked third in the scholarship rating made by the Inter-Club Council.



He, with his friends, visits Bath and attends a reception of society; at the same time Sam Weller attends a reception of the footmen.

PHILATELIC CLUB

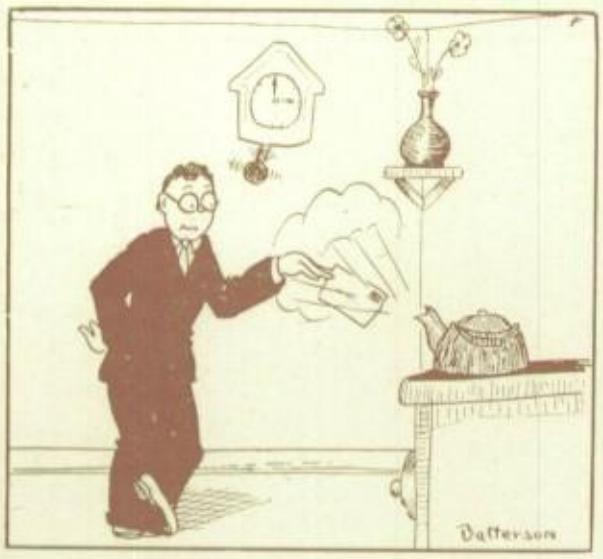
PHILATELIC CLUB

The Philatelic Club was organized to promote interest in the collection and study of postage stamps, and to give collectors an opportunity to get together for the purpose of trading stamps and exchanging ideas.

At the two evening meetings of the year, stamp contests were inaugurated, the winners being determined by their philatelic knowledge and by the neatness and arrangements of their collections. A speaker from the Pasadena Stamp Collectors' Club gave an interesting talk on United States stamps at one of the regular meetings. At several of these meetings, auctions were held in order to give the members a chance to enlarge their collections. Those who are interested in stamps are invited to visit the club during the coming year.



Winkle, because of an exciting adventure with a lady in a sedan-chair, departs hastily from Bath to a neighboring town, where he hears of Arabella's presence.

PRAGMA CLUB

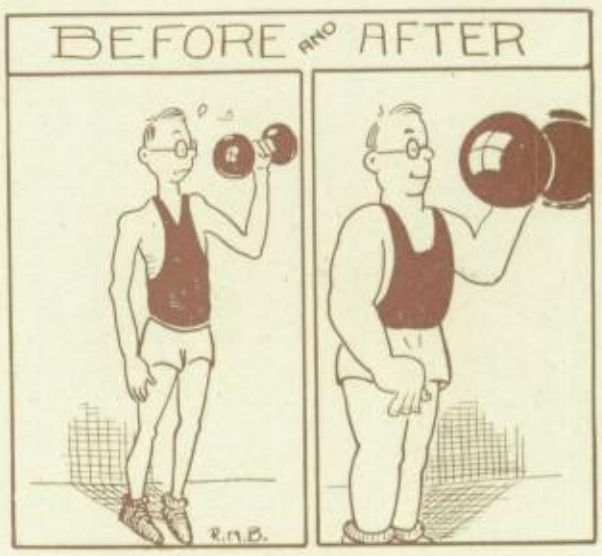
PRAGMA CLUB

The Pragma Club is an organization for the purpose of creating and developing gymnastic ability among high school and junior high school students. Though formed during the second semester of this year, there are now sixteen members, all of whom take an active part in athletic work.

During the year the club gave exhibitions at the Garfield and John Muir Technical High School night schools and presented assemblies at Jefferson, the McKinley, Marshall and Washington Junior High Schools, as well as in the competitive assembly given at Pasadena High School. An exhibition for the playground benefit was also given at the Shakespeare Club.



With the aid of Pickwick and Sam, Winkle has a midnight conversation with Arabella.

QUILL AND QUESTION CLUB

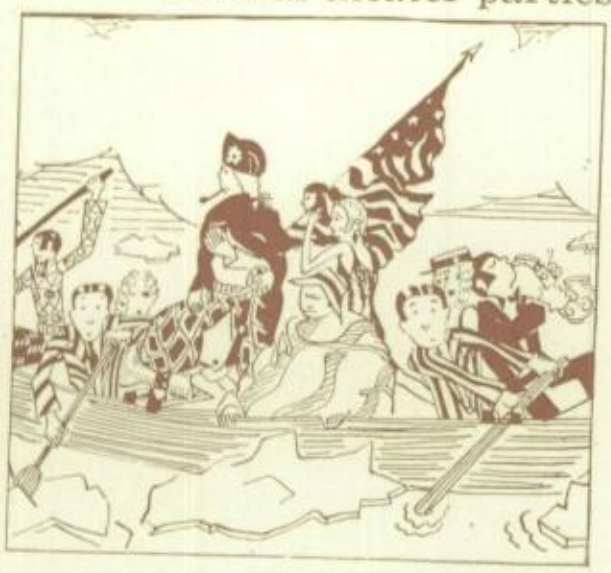
QUILL AND QUESTION CLUB

The purpose of the Quill and Question is to create and stimulate interest in history among the students of the school. The club was started in 1914 as a literary society, but when it was reorganized in 1926, the purpose was changed by the popular vote of its members. Two advisory meetings and an evening meeting at the home of a club member were held each month, during which debates and discussions on topics of historical interest were sponsored, in addition to very entertaining programs.

Several theater parties to pictures of historical value were held during the year under the direction of Mr. Fred Young, faculty adviser. At Christmas a needy family was cared for by the help received through the generous contributions of the twenty-four members of the club.



They narrowly escape getting caught by her father, who is not in sympathy with the courtship.

RHYME AND RHYTHM CLUB

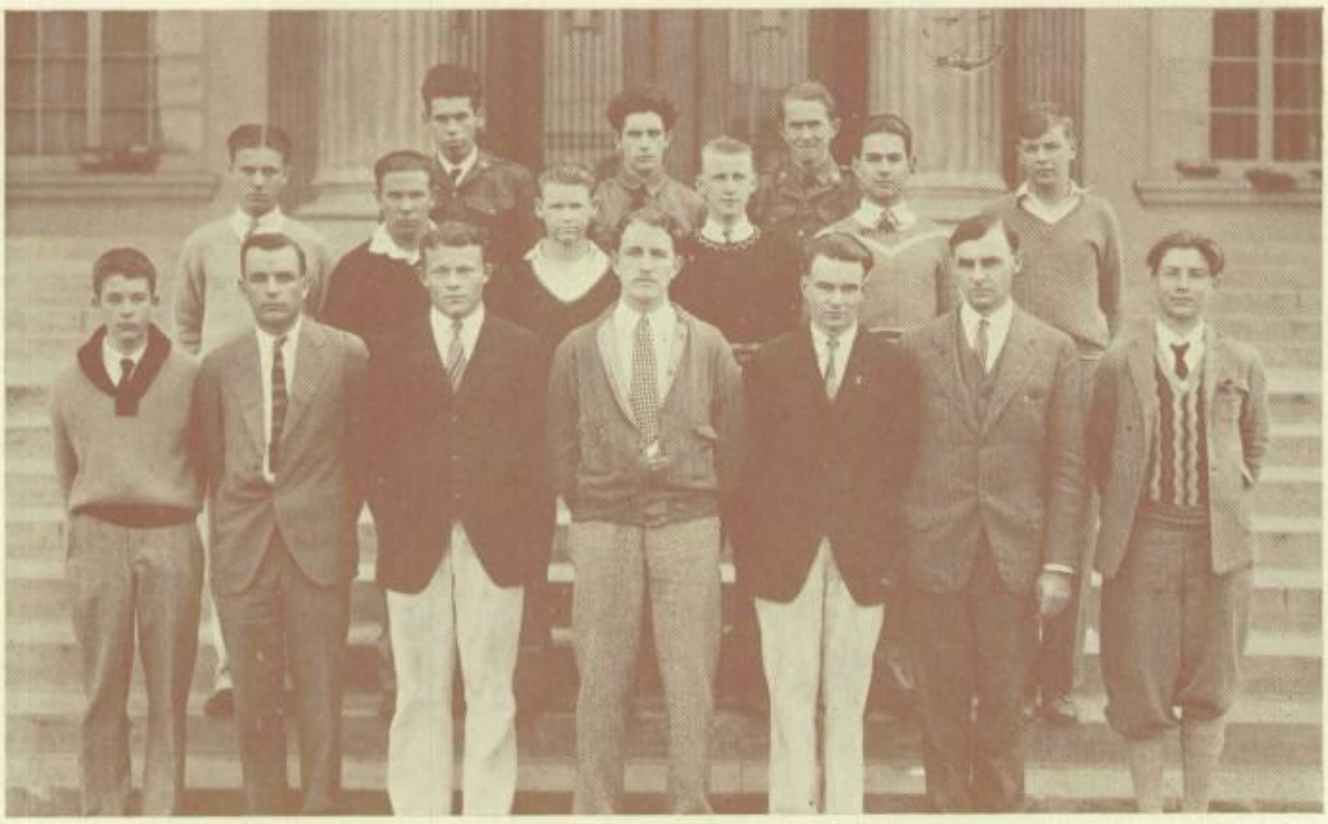
RHYME AND RHYTHM

The Rhyme and Rhythm Club was established three years ago for the purpose of promoting interest in poetry and developing in its members talents along poetic lines. During the last year, under the leadership of Mrs. Prince, faculty adviser, the club has sponsored a very active program.

One of the evening meetings was featured by a discussion of James Whitcomb Riley. Mr. A. W. Macey gave some personal reminiscences and read some of Mr. Riley's more noted selections. In addition to this, Mr. Macey, who is a poet himself, wrote a poem for the book of original poems kept by the club. At another meeting Miss Skinner gave readings from some of the modern poets. At a third meeting, original poems were presented by the members of the club.

The group also presented to the school ten beautifully mounted large pictures and about three hundred smaller pictures dealing with English and American literature.

Sam Weller meets a housemaid, Mary, across the way, and does some courting himself.



SILVER SCREEN CLUB

SILVER SCREEN CLUB

The Silver Screen Club has as its purpose the study of motion picture projection. An experienced operator with one or two helpers is provided during every period of the day to run any pictures being shown in the assembly room. Operators also assist in presenting programs after school hours.

Two types of members, active and associate, are included in the club. The former are able to assume entire responsibility in operating equipment, while the latter are apprentices learning to become active members. The sixteen members form a regular advisory studying the theories of motion picture projection, under the guidance of Mr. M. H. Finley as adviser.

"The Flag," a technicolor film, was presented in a competitive assembly program, under the auspices of the club.

At the end of his two months' grace, Pickwick is imprisoned, and proceeds to make the best of it.

Those who are studying Latin and are interested in Roman customs and literature are eligible to membership in the S. P. Q. R., provided they have had at least one year of Latin. At present there are over a hundred students who belong to this organization

Regular club meetings are held during advisories. In addition, during the first semester the annual Roman banquet was held, which was attended by members dressed in Roman style. Roman food was served, and the entertainment was also in ancient Roman style. A party was also enjoyed by the members during the second semester. An interesting feature of the club is the unusual titles of officers, which are comparable to some of the old Roman officers. The form of government follows closely that of ancient Rome. The name of the club, in full, is "Senatus Populusque Romanus," meaning "The Senate and the Roman People."

Among the other debtors he is astonished to find Jingle and Job Trotter, who are in the depths of poverty.

STAGE CRAFT GUILD

STAGE CRAFT GUILD

The Stage Craft Guild is probably the newest club at Pasadena High School, being organized less than three months before close of school. The first officers of the club, elected by the ten charter members, are: President, Hugh Hirth; vice-president, Mary Deethman; secretary-treasurer, Herbert Milker.

The purpose of the organization is to stimulate an interest in stage craft, which includes the designing of sets and the making of scenery. Membership was first restricted to students who had completed at least a year of art and a year of stage craft, but the membership requirements have been changed to include dramatic students interested in stage craft, whether they have taken a course in art or not.

The main project of the group has been to execute the designs for the scenery of the senior class play, "The Stubbornness of Geraldine," proposed by the stage craft class. The night of the play, members of the club had full charge of the stage, under the direction of Wesley Nightingale.

Additional members: Becker, Maxwell, Nicholas, Petteford, Randall, Rogers, Scott, Stewart, Stocks, Upton, Watkins, Williams.

J. S. GIFFORD

STREAK AND DAUB

With the purpose of fostering and stimulating student interest in art, the Streak and Daub Club has closed its fourth successful year in Pasadena High School. Composed of students interested in any of the varied forms of art, it is one of the largest and most popular organizations on the campus.

Under the able direction of Miss Juliet S. Gifford, the club has had, since the fall semester, many interesting and instructive meetings. Albert Stockdale, a well-known art student, a graduate of Pasadena High School, and former president of the club, talked to the members at one of the meetings.

Excursions to the studios of artists, and to various exhibitions of interest to art students form a part of each year's activities. Until the condemning of the stage this year, the club always decorated the stage and auditorium for each assembly and school entertainment.

Pickwick takes advantage of this condition and agrees to pay the charges against her if she will withdraw her claim for damages.

TEA CUP AND SAUCER

TEA CUP AND SAUCER

The Tea Cup and Saucer is a comparatively new club at Pasadena High School. The first meeting was held on February 29 of this year.

The purpose of the organization is to bring together, in friendly and common relationship, girls who are particularly interested in home economics, and to further the interest in this subject among the girls of the school. As a course in home making is required of all girls, the club was formed in answer to the interest displayed by those who now form its membership.

Although no outstanding action on the part of the club has as yet been practicable, several teas have been served to the girls in the Model Apartment, under the direction of Miss Osborne, faculty adviser.

She agrees, and thus both of them are freed.

THRIFT CLUB

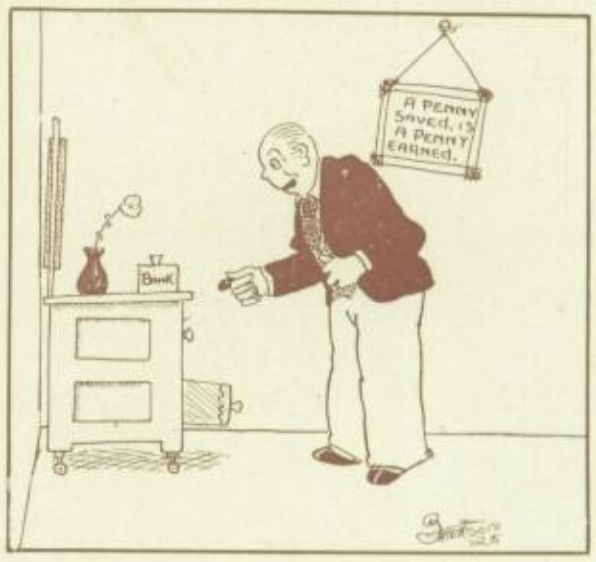
THRIFT CLUB

The Thrift Club was organized in February, 1927, for the purpose of promoting thrift. The club has numerous accomplishments to its credit. It inaugurated the plan of weekly thrift savings. In February, during National Thrift Week, a thrift assembly was held. The club has promoted habits of thought and action in thrift on the part of the students. Finally, the Thrift Club has been used to afford greater opportunity in leadership training and thrift stimulation. Because of the reorganization of the institution, the club will have a changed policy next year. It is planned to make next year's program of thrift different and more dignified than the present form.

The meetings of the Thrift Club are held every other week in room 208-C. Here different problems of thrift are discussed and debates and speakers are presented.



Upon obtaining his release, Pickwick finds that Winkle has succeeded in marrying Arabella in spite of her brother, who favored Bob Sawyer.

TRAVEL AND TRANSPORT CLUB

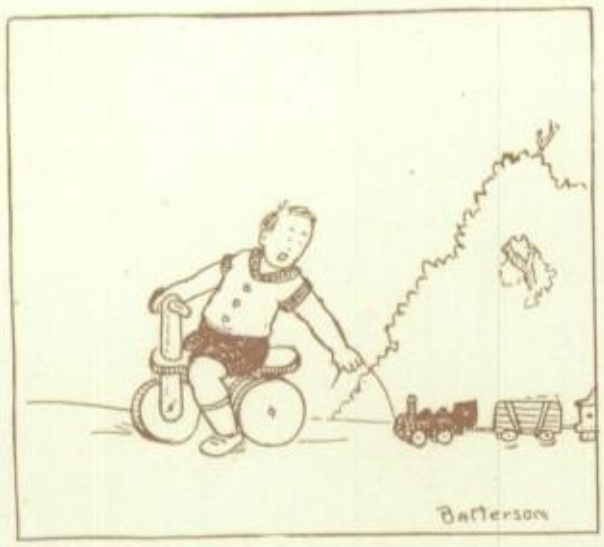
TRAVEL AND TRANSPORT CLUB

Organized during the second semester of this school year by several students interested in studying the methods, problems, and benefits of traveling, the Travel and Transport Club has already proved itself an active and worthwhile organization.

During the one semester of its existence, the group has made a special study of ships, first through a visit to the battleships in Los Angeles Harbor, which was the only excursion sponsored during the year, and through reading and reporting on books on the subject. Next year the club will probably make a special study of travel.

In addition to the excursion and regular advisory meetings, two evening meetings were held. With the assistance of Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, club adviser, these meetings were featured by interesting discussions and programs.



Pickwick reconciles the opposing factions, which include both Arabella's and Winkle's relatives, and brings them to accept the couple with favor.

TRIANON CLUB

TRIANON CLUB

The Trianon Club, which was formerly known by the name of Girls' Courtesy Club, is a girls' organization whose purpose is to cultivate true courtesy and to develop a gracious personality. A business meeting and a social meeting are held each month.

During the past school year the club has had a luncheon and two teas in the Model Apartment, several teas at the homes of individual members, a theater party, a bunco party, and a progressive dinner party. At these meetings the members have the opportunity of entertaining the group and of acting as hostess. The club also loaned "The Book of Etiquette," by Emily Post, to the school library.

Soon after settling this tangle, he succeeds in stopping Snodgrass and Emily Wardle from eloping—

TRIPLE "S" LITERARY SOCIETY

TRIPLE "S" LITERARY SOCIETY

The Triple "S" Literary Society has every reason to be proud of its excellent records during the past few years. Each year added laurels have been won by this club.

Every member of the organization is supposed to read at least two good books each month and be ready to give an oral report or comment on them at the regular monthly evening meetings.

Largely through the efforts of Miss Wolfe, adviser, the club presented the boys from Caney Creek in assembly. This assembly won the cup for the best club program the first semester. The group also sent $25 to Caney Creek to aid in the project there.

Recently, a scholarship drive was started to see which of the clubs had the highest scholastic average. The Triple "S" Literary Society placed second in this contest, a striking achievement because of the large membership of the club.

—by having them married in his own home.

"X" CLUB

"X" CLUB

To give students intimate knowledge in the realm of experimental research has been the purpose of the "X" Club. In the contest held recently to determine the scholastic standards of the various clubs, the "X" Club won first place.

Several members of the group gave lectures on scientific subjects of interest. In addition to this the club presented a program before the Kiwanis Club of Pasadena, took an active part in the extensive exhibition sponsored by the Science Department, started a collection of autographed pictures of famous scientists, and have attended many of the lectures at C. I. T.

Students interested in the extensive field of science will find this club a source of knowledge and inspiration.

These errands of sanction completed, Pickwick dissolved the Pickwick Club.

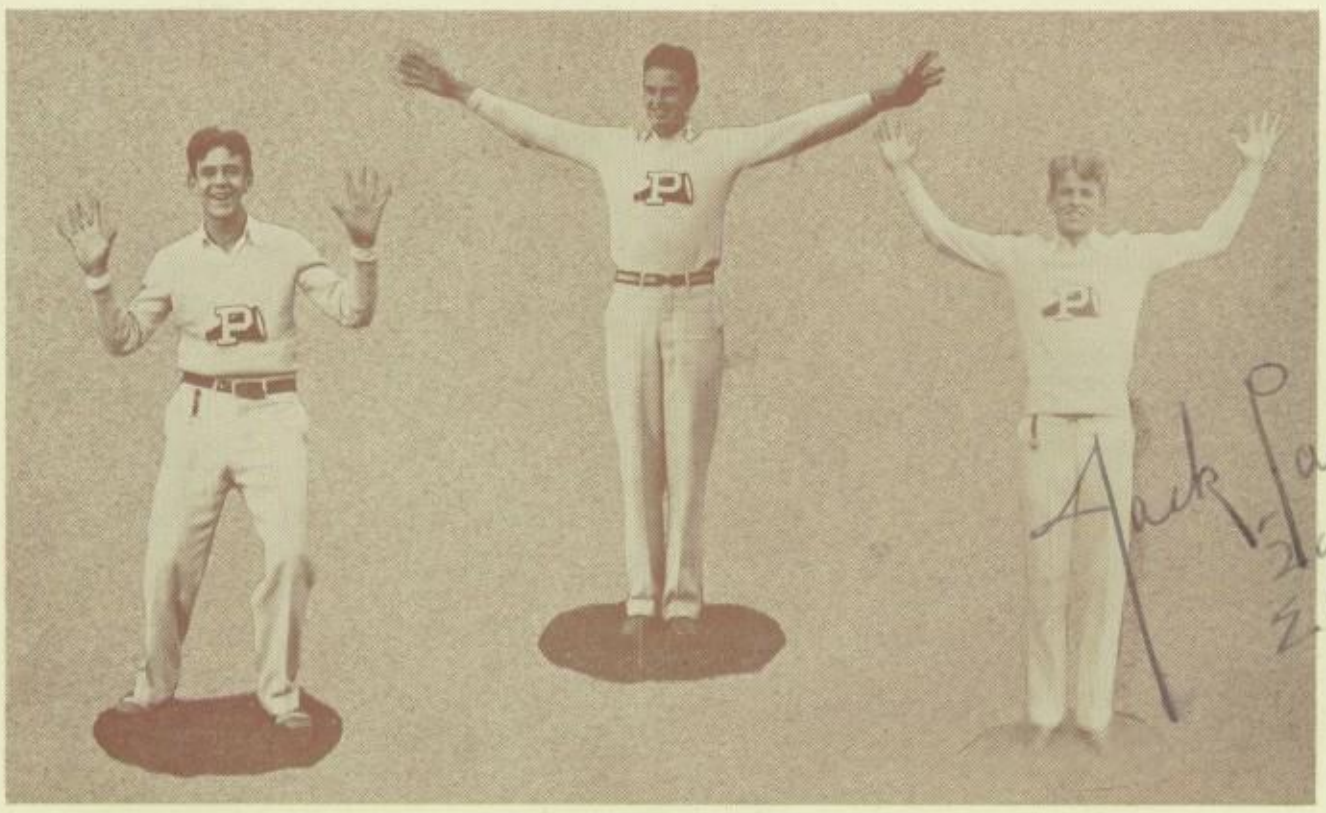
The Battle of Life



YELL LEADERS

Jim Scott Bud Miller Jack Layng

"Let's give a big yell for every good play or spirit of gameness shown, whether it is in the Bulldog team or with the opponents." Such was the sporting spirit the white-clad triumvirate of Bud Miller, Jim Scott, and Jack Layng, instilled in the hearts of the rooters. The results were fruitful, for the Red and White teams enjoyed the best athletic season in many years. Whenever the teams needed encouragement or whenever a player was removed from the game after having done his best, there were cheers.

Bud was the head yell leader and attended every game to lead the rooting section.

Curly-headed Jim Scott and Jack Layng were worthy assistants, and served as the right and left hand men.

OUR MASCOT

The old banged-up student body office Bulldog mascot was replaced at last by a real "bool purp in the flesh." Kelly Powers' stubby little puppy became a familiar sight strutting proudly in a red and white blanket at the games.

"The Battle of Life," a short story by Charles Dickens, tells of the love of two beautiful girls.

Varsity Football Review

In his second year as varsity mentor and with six returning lettermen, Coach Harry B. Milholin piloted his charges to the first Coast League championship. A great line on the defensive and one of the most powerful and effective passing attacks ever seen in a high school won five of the seven league games.

PASADENA 9, WHITTIER 6

A neat place kick by Al Cox, in the last three seconds of play, won the first league game. The Bulldogs scored in the second quarter with a magnificent passing attack; "Torchy" Van Ornum and Al Cox did the work. Captain Pendleton and Wayne Adams were the big Whittier stars.

PASADENA 12, SOUTH PASADENA 2

Minus the services of Cox and Randolph, the Red and White managed to trounce the southern neighbors, 12 to 2. Passing and end runs featured the Bulldog attack. Strutt accounted for both touchdowns.

PASADENA 13, SAN DIEGO 9

The Bulldogs avenged themselves for two previous defeats by the Hilltoppers in scoring a 13-to-9 win at the Rose Bowl. Great line plunging by Captain Tom Mallory, coupled with a smooth passing attack, accounted for the victory. The Red and White began the fourth quarter on the short end of a 9-to-6 score, but a fast heave from Van Ornum to Cox over the goal line spelled defeat for the Greys.

PASADENA 15, ALHAMBRA 0

With the great Mohler on the injury list, the Moorish one-man-wonder team was thoroughly humiliated by the Bulldog warriors. Both touchdowns resulted from passes. The Red and White line was at its best, on offensive and defensive. The Moors never had possession of the ball in Bulldog territory during the whole game.

PASADENA 6, SANTA ANA 12

The Red and White lost its first league game Armistice Day in the Rose Bowl to the Saints. A practically perfected defense against passes, and fast, deceptive offensive plays were too much for the Bulldogs. Musick, Santa Ana quarterback, starred. A desperate passing attack in the fourth quarter gave Pasadena its lone touchdown.

PASADENA 6, LONG BEACH 2

Once again the proverbial enemy, Long Beach, met defeat from a team that wouldn't be beaten. "Stop Middlestedt!" was the battle cry, and stop him the Red and White men did, but not without his giving them frequent chills by his sensational open field running. A fifty-five yard pass, "Torchy" to Al Cox in the last seconds of the first half, resulted in the only touchdown of the game. The Bulldog line played its best game of the season, stopping the elusive Jackrabbit captain time after time. Good old reliable Fred Shepherd and Al Percell did great work. Long Beach was stopped several times within the shadows of the Bulldog goal by a great fighting team.

PASADENA 6, GLENDALE 16

A spectacular 55-yard run by "Streak" Strutt was the only thing that kept Pasadena from being thoroughly humiliated by the revamped Glendale team. Team work being sadly missing in the Red and White squad, together with several bad "breaks," paved the way for the Dynamiters' victory.

CAPTAIN TOM MALLORY CAPTAIN-ELECT GEORGE NORENE
COACH HARRY MILHOLIN

PASADENA 0, HUNTINGTON PARK 18

The effects of a long and strenuous season showed in the play-off with Huntington Park when a sadly disorganized, punch-lacking Red and White team met defeat from a light, fast Spartan squad. The Crown City passing attack failed, passes were intercepted, and, for the most part, the Bulldogs were thoroughly outclassed. Ford played the most outstanding game in the backfield, and Shermer, Percell, Norene, and Shepherd were the mainstays in the line.

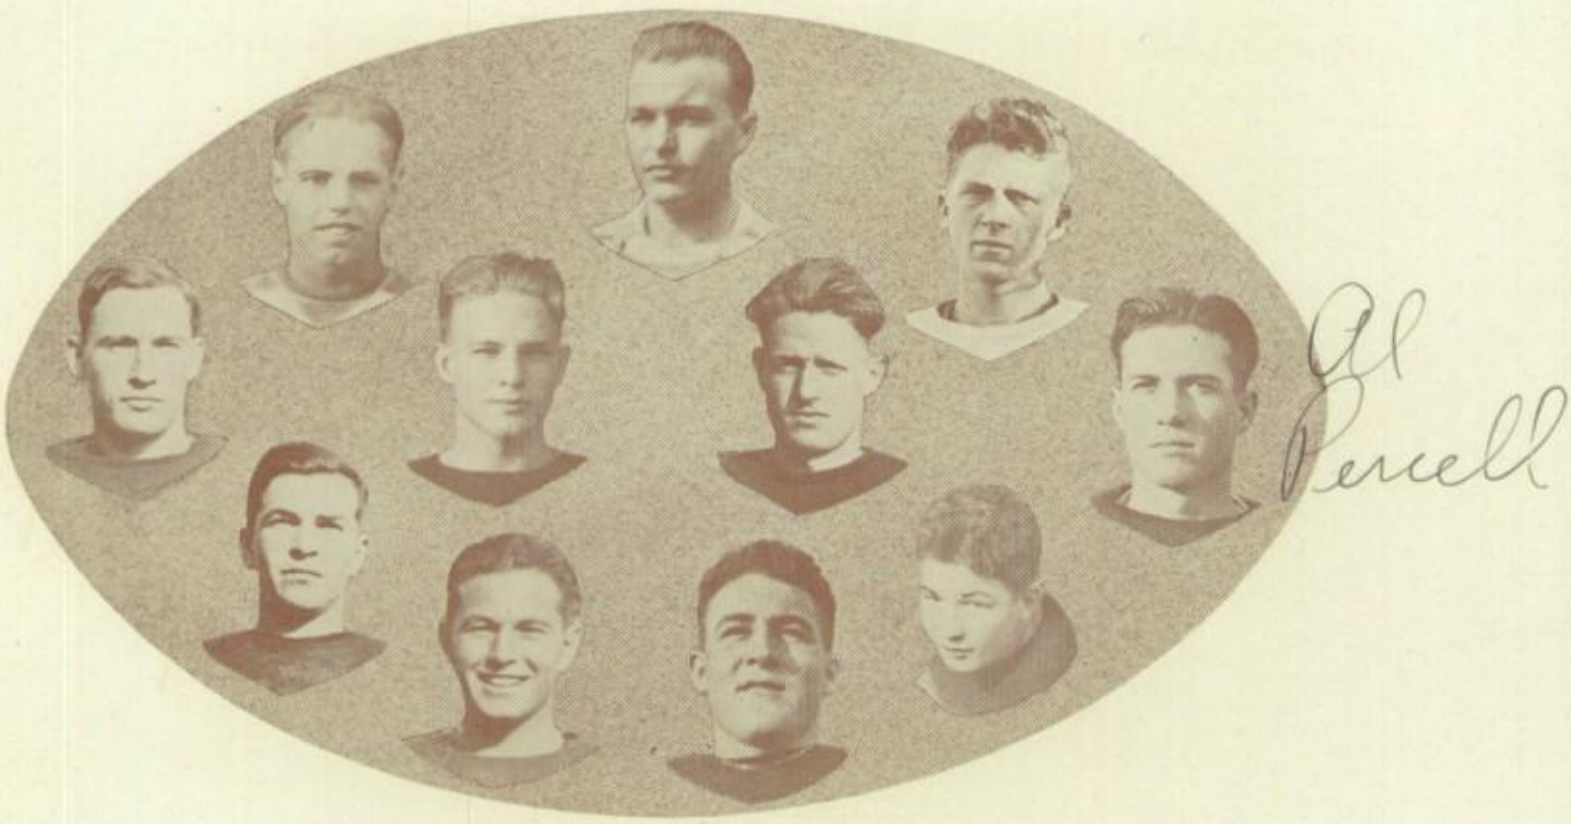
One of the lucky pair is Marion, one of Dr. Jeddler's daughters.



LETTERMEN

Left to right, top row: Cox, Randolph, Van Ornum. Middle row: Shermer, Mallory, Norene, Percell. Bottom row: Richardson, Turner, Shepherd, Cobbe.

TOM MALLORY, captain and fullback. Plenty of the old Bulldog fight, great defensive work, and line plunging ability secured for Tom fullback on the mythical All-Coast league team for the second consecutive year.

OLIVER SHERMER, end. Ob was a veteran end back from last year's team and, despite quite a bit of trouble from a bad shoulder, played excellent ball.

CHARLES RANDOLPH, quarterback. Chuck demonstrated what the good signal-caller should know and consequently grabbed the quarterbacking position for the second consecutive year. Chuck called for passes and plenty of them.

JACK VAN ORNUM, halfback. Torchy was the Bulldog triple threat man. He did the punting, carried the ball, and heaved passes all over the field. Another All-Coast league man.

GEORGE NORENE, center and captain-elect. In his second year of football at P. H. S., George was installed as first string pivot man. He did consistently good passing back all season, winning a place on the All-Coast team.

AL PERCELL, end. Good receiving of passes and breaking up of end runs made Al a very good wingman. "One of the best ends I've ever had," says Coach Milholin.

AL COX, halfback. Al was on the receiving end of Torchy's long heaves and scored many touchdowns.

CHARLES COBBE, tackle. When Red missed a man, he got up and went after him. Possessed that "never give up" fight in abundance.

FRED SHEPHERD, guard. An outstanding linesman. Always there with the fight that brought him a position on the mythical All-Coast league team.

GENE TURNER, guard. A new man in the line who strengthened the team considerably. Gene will be back next year.

JOE RICHARDSON, tackle. Heaviest man on the team and plenty fast. When he went down on a punt, he got his man.

The other is Alfred Heathfield, ward of the same genial philosopher.

Left to right, top row: Kidder, Hassler, Strutt, Collins. Middle row: Elowitz, Covey, Frasier. Bottom row: Powers, Wayman, Thompson, Hess.

NORMAN ELOWITZ, end. Norm proved to be another good substitute end who did his best playing streaking down the field on punts.

ROBERT KIDDER, end. Bob proved to be a very good substitute end and gave the first string wingmen a run for their money. He had the habit of smearing ambitious end runs of opposing gridsters.

MORTON HASSLER, quarterback. Mort was a worthy understudy of "Chuck" Randolph and ran the team with exceptional ability. His work in the game with South Pasadena was outstanding.

ERIC STRUTT, halfback. Streak Strutt, playing his third year of football at P. H. S. was Coach Milholin's best reserve backfieldman. His excellent playing in the Glendale game with a 55-yard run was especially commendable.

LAWRENCE COLLINS, guard. Collins, also of last year's lightweight team, played good consistent ball all season. He was interchanged with first string linemen frequently.

JIM FRASIER, end. Coach Milholin was long on ends and Jim was always ready to relieve a first string man. Although he was fairly light, speed and spirit made him a menace to opponents.

FRED HESS, guard. Fred's fighting spirit and his encouraging attitude proved deciding factors in the staunchness of the line.

ELLIS THOMPSON, center. Thompson was second only to George Norene in the center position. Always ready to do his best, Ellis was an excellent reserve man.

KAY WAYMAN, end. Light but fast, Calef from last year's championship lightweight team proved to be a valuable asset in the line. His speed enabled him to break up many of the opponents' trick reverse plays.

WELDON POWERS, tackle. Powers was the boy who made the first string tackles hustle all season to hold their position. His playing in the line was of sterling quality.

ART COVEY, center. Art was there with the goods at the pivot position when needed. His ability as a center was evidenced on several occasions.

At the birthday breakfast, Alfred is given his inheritance by two lawyers that are present, Mr. Craggs and Mr. Snitchey.

LETTERMEN AND MANAGERS

Left to right, top row: Tarr, Wotkyns. Middle row: Higgins, Ford. Bottom row: Paine, McCarthy.

WILBUR HIGGINS, tackle. Higgins shone best in breaking through the line and nailing the man with the ball before he got very far. His line work at the beginning of the season almost rewarded him with a first string position.

WINFIELD TARR, manager. Another student who gave of his time and ability to further the success of the team by working together with Wotkyns and helping the gridmen before and after games.

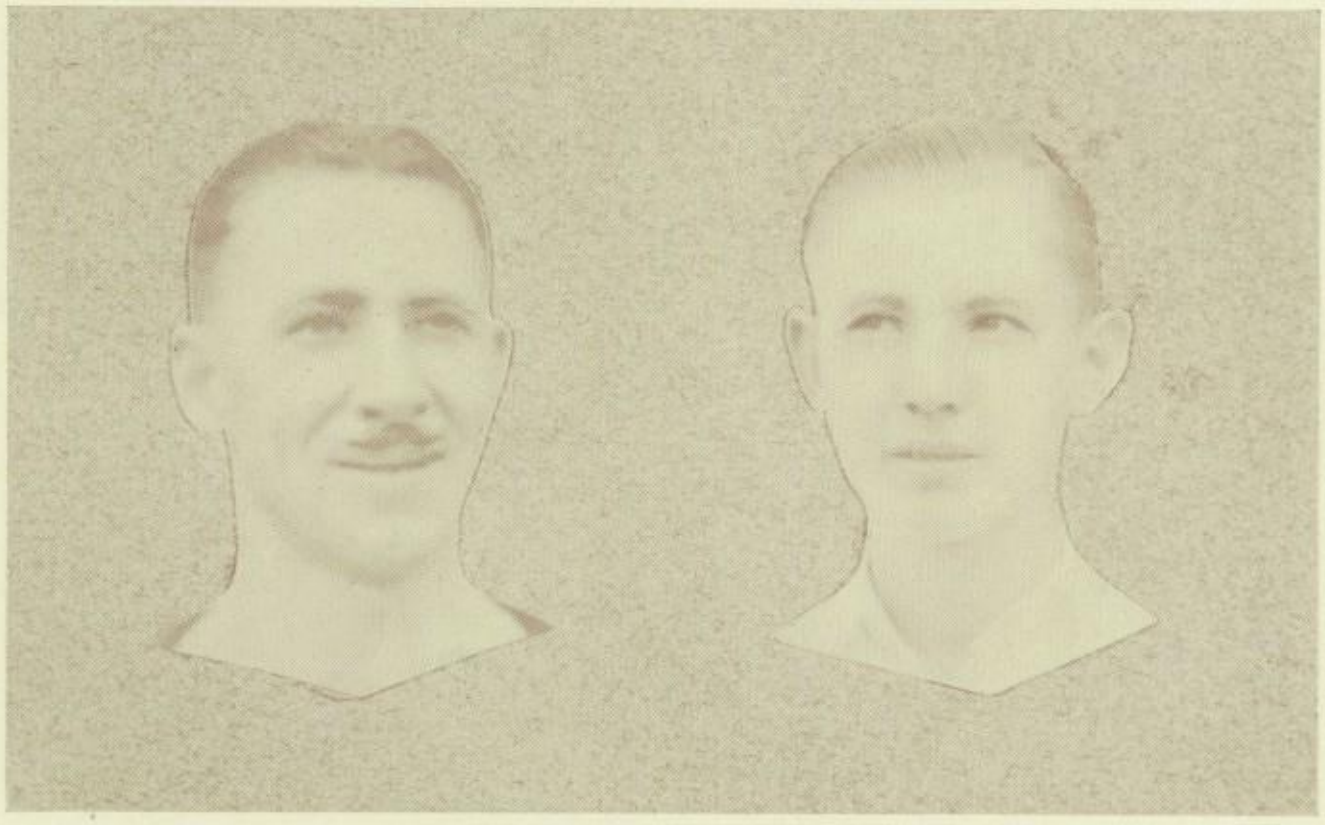
ELIOT WOTKYNS, manager. Doing a job that took time and plenty of work but gave no glory, Eliot arranged all team transportation and took care of suits and necessary wearing apparel.

PAUL FORD, halfback. "Flivver" from the lightweights only got to show his stuff in a varsity suit in the Huntington Park game. He was the outstanding Pasadena backfield gridster with spectacular ball carrying, passing, and playing on defensive.

PHILIP MCCARTHY, trainer. Phil was the fellow who rubbed out sore muscles and "Charley horses" all season. He put the gridmen in fighting trim and deserves no little amount of appreciation for work that was done in the dressing room.

DAUPHIN PAINE. "Doc" was the student physician and patched up the battered warriors of all three football teams. Working quickly and efficiently, he did most appreciative work all season.

After the meal the carriage arrives which is to take Alfred to London, where he is to seek his fortune.



COACH LELAND C. MCAULEY CAPTAIN JACK HOLLANDER

MIDGET FOOTBALL REVIEW

The first championship midget team in the history of Pasadena High School was developed in the 1927 season by Coach Leland C. McAuley, whose proteges won all their games and amassed a sum of 120 points to their opponents' 18.

The squad developed some exceptional men in all departments of the team. All of the backfield men were of stellar quality, and the line was equally as good.

PASADENA 20, WHITTIER 0

The midgets avenged themselves for two consecutive defeats by taking the Poets into camp by a 20-to-0 score. The whole team worked smoothly together.

PASADENA 6, SOUTH PASADENA 0

The Bullpups managed to win a raggedly played game from the Tiger kittens, 6 to 0. Jackie Pierce, fullback, starred for the local aggregation.

PASADENA 14, ALHAMBRA 0

Still unscored upon, the tiny fellows set an example for their big brothers by tromping on the Moors for two touchdowns. Greenleaf covered himself with glory, galloping 65 yards for one touchdown and scoring another.

PASADENA 41, SANTA ANA 6

The midgets liked the fast field in the Rose Bowl and proceeded to romp all over the little Saints. Greenleaf and Pineda ran the Santa Ana line ragged.

PASADENA 13, LONG BEACH 0

The 110's avenged their class for two straight defeats, by running roughshod over the Beachers. Quarterback Pineda bucked the line for the first score, and McGee intercepted a pass for the second touchdown.

PASADENA 26, GLENDALE 12

In the hardest fought game of the year, the midgets won the Glendale game and, with it the Coast league championship, when they came from behind to beat the Dynamiters 26 to 12.

LETTERMEN

Left to right, top row: Starret, Pineda, Pierce, Greenleaf. Middle row: Friend, Hollander, Carney. Bottom row: McGee, Rockwood, Lagerstrom, Dean.

JACK HOLLANDER, captain and center; led his men to the most successful midget season in P. H. S. history.

GEORGE FRIEND, end. He was on the receiving end of a very efficient passing attack.

GABRIEL STARRET, halfback. Played a bang-up defensive game and was always good for a gain by line plunges.

MANUEL PINEDA, quarterback. Mannie generaled the team through many tight places with the adroitness of a veteran signal caller.

JACK PIERCE, fullback. Although out for a part of the season, Jackie was one of the best backfield men in the league.

LEWIS GREENLEAF, halfback. The most sensational backfield man in the league. Great speed and kicking ability made him an ideal triple threat man.

JAMES CARNEY, end. Another end with the consistent habit of getting his man or the ball.

JOHN DEAN, tackle. A consistent batting linesman. Always there with the goods.

PATRICK LAGERSTROM, guard. Playing where there is little glory, Pat did excellent work in the line.

ROBERT ROCKWOOD, guard. A stone wall on defense and opener of big holes on the offense. Rockwood turned in a season of very creditable line work.

JAMES MCGEE, tackle. Scored two touchdowns although he played tackle. Stopped them hard and often.

As he bids his fiance good-bye, the onlookers note a look of dislike on Marion's face.

Left to right, top row: D. Zaikowsky, Hatlen, Long, Lowe. Middle row: Lee, McNeil, Griffith. Bottom row: McFayden, M. Zaikowsky, Wood, Bush.

BOB LEE, end. A hard man to take out and always there when passes started sailing.

DIMITRY ZAIKOWSKY, tackle. Veteran of last year who carried on his good work.

TED HATLEN, quarterback. The reserve general who was always qualified to replace Pineda in emergencies.

MILLARD LONG, fullback. Besides being the heaviest line plunger on the team, Millard did great defensive work.

JOHNNY LOWE, halfback. When a few yards through the line were needed, Johnny took the ball and made them with steam-roller line plunging.

JACK GRIFFITH, tackle. A brainy linesman who stopped everything that came his way.

BOB BUSH. Taking care of football suits and other equipment throughout the season, Bob earned his pin as one of the managers of Mac's charges.

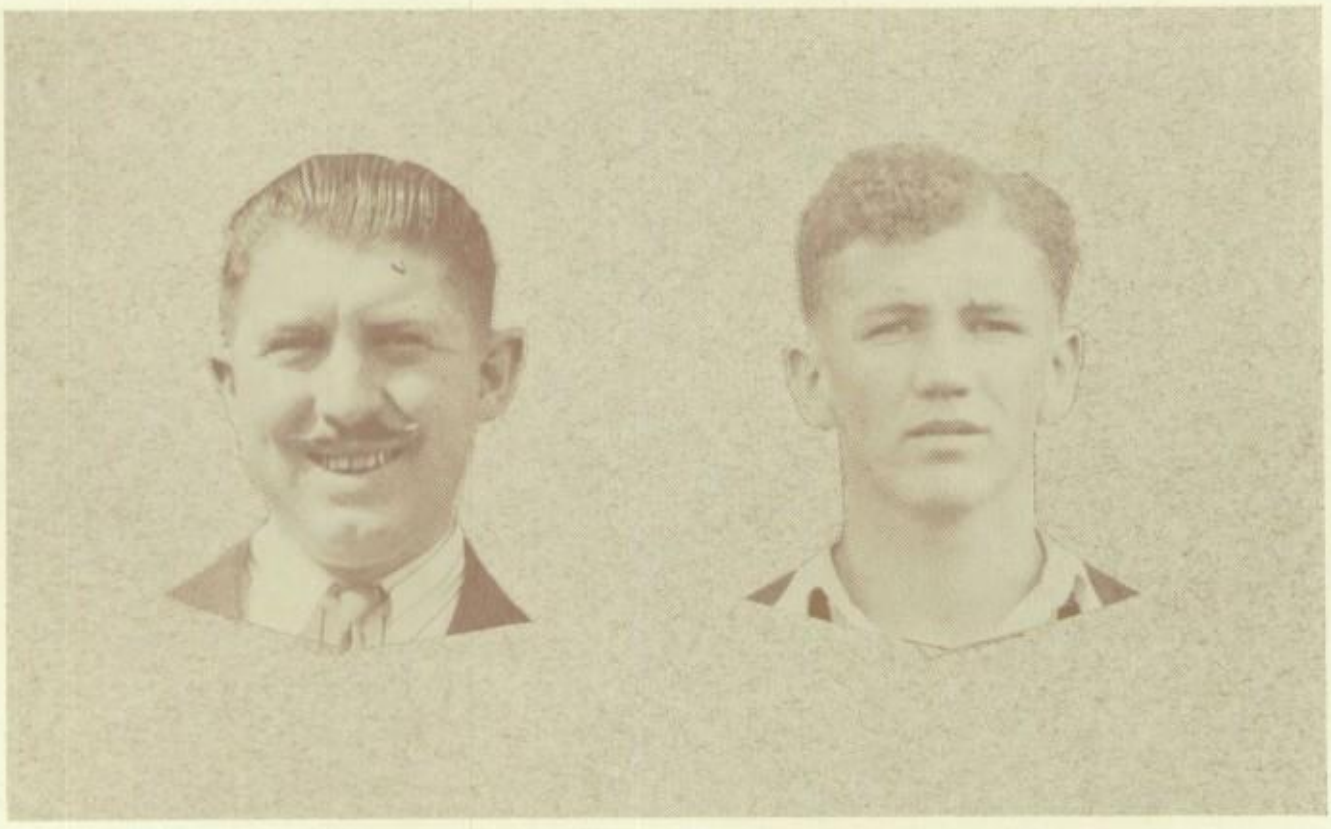
LLEWELLYN WOOD. Acting in the capacity of head manager and coach pro tempore, Babe did good work all season, which received favorable comment from both players and coach.

MICHAEL ZAIKOWSKY. Mike was the third member of the midget managing triumvirate and did his share in helping the little fellows through a fruitful season.

GORDON MCFAYDEN, guard. Gave his best in line work with a powerful drive.

DOUGLAS MCNEIL, tackle. Little "Arizona," with the ferocious spirit of a wildcat, was Mac's steadiest reserve linesman.

When he passes out of sight over a hill, Marion will not wave, but falls weeping on her sister's bosom.



COACH CLAUDE HIPPLER CAPTAIN FRANK LESTER

LIGHTWEIGHT FOOTBALL REVIEW

With but three returning lettermen from last year's Coast league championship team, Coach Claude Hippler built up a powerful aggregation that won six out of seven league games.

PASADENA 33, WHITTIER 0

The lightweights made a very auspicious beginning in trouncing Whittier by a score of 33-0. The local triumvirate, Ford, Lopez, and Miller, displayed a brilliant passing attack that accounted for five touchdowns.

PASADENA 31, SOUTH PASADENA 0

The South Pasadena lightweights were just out of the locals' class and lost a very uneven game. Ford scored first with a sensational 30-yard run. In the second half Louie Lopez and Flivver Ford registered two touchdowns apiece.

PASADENA 13, SAN DIEGO 12

The Hilltoppers were the first league team to cross the Bullpups' goal line. San Diego tallied first on line plunges. Then Miller tossed a long pass to Ford for a touchdown; Flivver converted. Pasadena scored again in the third quarter, and the Greys plunged to a second touchdown in the fourth. They failed to convert.

PASADENA 18, ALHAMBRA 0

Showing signs of wear from the San Diego game, the locals played a very mediocre game against the weak Moors. All scoring resulted from passes.

PASADENA 14, SANTA ANA 6

The Bullpups showed no signs of improvement over the previous game when they met the supposedly weak Saint team. Deceptive reverses and crisscrosses almost spelled defeat for the locals, who managed to score two touchdowns against one for Santa Ana.

PASADENA 6, LONG BEACH 7

The Bullpups tasted first defeat from the arch rivals, Long Beach. The Jackrabbits scored early with a short pass and then converted. Hippler's aggregation came back strong after the score and retaliated with a touchdown when Miller bucked the ball over from the two-yard line.

PASADENA 7, GLENDALE 6

In the last game, Coach Hippler's men won by recovering a fumble in the fourth quarter and converting after the Dynamiters had plunged down the field for six points.

Seven years have passed.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM

In order to provide something of interest for the rooters between the halves at the football games and to develop likely prospects for the track team, Coach Hippler organized a cross country team. Several meets were held both with league teams and neighboring schools.

Led by Captain Hamp Macomber, the marathoners won from the Moorish team by one point. Long Beach with the great miler, Hall, defeated the Red and White by a large score. Smarting under the defeat from the traditional rival Beachmen, the Bulldogs broke into the win column again with a well-earned victory over Glendale. Several meets were held with high schools of Los Angeles and the locals fared quite well.

Left to right, top row: Atwell, Capps, Earley. Middle row: Strutt, Higgins, Matter, Kidder. Lower row: Hoene, Wotkyns, Harrison.

DICK ATWELL, forward. Dick developed into the most consistent shot on the team and was high point man in several games.

CLIFTON CAPPS, captain and guard. Clif was Pasadena's contribution to the mythical All-Coast League basketball team. His playing, both defensive and offensive, was unexcelled.

HAROLD EARLEY, forward. Harold was Dick's mate in the forward berths, and lots of pre-season practicing made him a very good floorman.

ERIC STRUTT, guard. Eric proved to be a good basketball man with lots of fight, speed, and endurance. He was Coach Dunn's best reserve guard.

WILBUR HIGGINS, center. Will was the only letterman back from last year's team, and he grabbed a position on the first string at the very beginning and held it all season, despite lots of competition.

MERLE MATTER, forward. Merle was the most promising forward in the early season and was high point man in several games. He was lost to the squad in February by the ninth semester ruling.

ROBERT KIDDER, guard. A sterling defensive player, Bob could wreck just about any scoring formation that tried to break through the first line of Bulldogs.

ROLAND HOENE, center. Another long boy who did not even have to jump, Rollo did his stuff every time he got in the game. He pushed Will hard for that first string berth.

ELLIOT WOTKYNS, manager. All the griefs that can beset a manager who has to take care of equipment, men, and provide transportation, were met with and cared for by Elliot. He rendered wonderful service.

DE WITT HARRISON, center. De had a lot of altitude that helped him sink the casaba over the heads of the opposing guards. He had a nice way of smearing dribbling attacks.

Michael Warden says he will remain in England for one month.

LIGHTWEIGHT BASKETBALL SQUAD

During this time he hopes to win the hand of Marion.

LETTERMEN

Left to right, top row: Vines, Macrory, Reed. Middle row: Dauble, Shirar, Galbraith, Hendrickson. Bottom row: Lopez, Carter, Cabot.

GEORGE MACRORY, captain and forward. Clever floor work and consistency on sinking short shots made George one of the best forwards in the league.

ELLSWORTH VINES, center. The Elusive Ellsworth possessed the uncanny ability to loop baskets from every angle on the court. His height enabled Mac to use the famous tip-off play.

GLENN REED, forward. Although Glenn did not have the shooting ability of Vines or Macrory, his fast passing and all-around floorwork brought him a first team berth.

PHILIP CARTER, guard. Carter made things hum when he got in the game as guard. His clever dribbling vexed many an opponent.

KARL DAUBLE, guard. There was nothing sensational in Karl's playing but he could always be depended on to substitute for the first string guards in fine style.

HARRY GALBRAITH, guard. Not only a bear on defense, but also an important part of Mac's powerful offense was Harry, who covered the whole court.

JACK SHIRAR, guard. Jack had the habit of breaking up opponents' offense when it got too near the basket for comfort. His steady work all season had much to do with the success of the team.

WALTER HENDRICKSON, center. Always ready to replace Vines was Walt, and his height enabled him to break up many high passes and loop baskets over the other players' heads.

LOUIS LOPEZ, forward. Speed and good footwork made Louie Mac's best reserve forward. He saw plenty of action, frequently replacing the regular forwards.

JOHN CABOT, guard. Shorty Cabot played good ball on the defense when he was in the game. He will be back for the team next year and promises to play a fine game.

At the same time, news comes to the Jeddler household that Arthur will come home in a month.

A month passes quickly, and a party is given to celebrate the return of the young lover.

Left to right, top row: Shimanouchi, Pupis, Hollander. Middle row: Zaikowsky, Pineda, Pierce, McNeil. Bottom row: Feltrop, Greenleaf, Conover.

AL PUPIS, center and captain. Al's steady playing all season made him a good captain. Being a good shot and able to outjump most centers, he was one of the best men in the league.

JACK HOLLANDER, forward. Although Jack was out part of the season, he held down a first string berth. Jack was the best shot on the team and usually rated high point man.

GEORGE SHIMANOUCHI, forward. Fast, clever dribbling and ability to sink his short shots made George one of the most feared forwards in the league.

MANUEL PINEDA, guard. An important cog in Coach Milholin's famous defense was Mannie, and he broke up many plays under his own basket.

JACK PIERCE, guard. Down on the offense and back on the defense were Jackie's duties, and he did them in fine style. Pierce helped to roll up the score by sinking long shots.

DOUGLAS MCNEIL, forward. Doug was Harry Bee's best reserve forward and he worked well with the other forwards on the offense. Ability to keep control of the ball resulted in his being a very good floor man.

HERBERT CONOVER, forward. Another excellent forward was Chubby. He was a good dribbler and shot, which enabled him to see plenty of action.

LEWIS GREENLEAF, guard. Greenleaf used his football ability to advantage on the basketball court when strenuous offense or defense was needed. He was one of the best guards on the squad.

DIMITRY ZAIKOWSKY, center. When Coach Milholin needed a good substitute, Dimitry was there with the goods. His playing in the South Pasadena game was commendable.

FRANK FELTROP, forward. Although Frank did not get much chance to show his ability, his playing was of sterling quality during the time in which he was in the game.

As Arthur approaches the house, he hears a terrible scream.

COACH CLAUDE HIPPLER CAPTAIN LANE PRIOR

VARSITY TRACK REVIEW

After holding the Coast League title for two seasons Pasadena high school relinquished it to Long Beach in 1928.

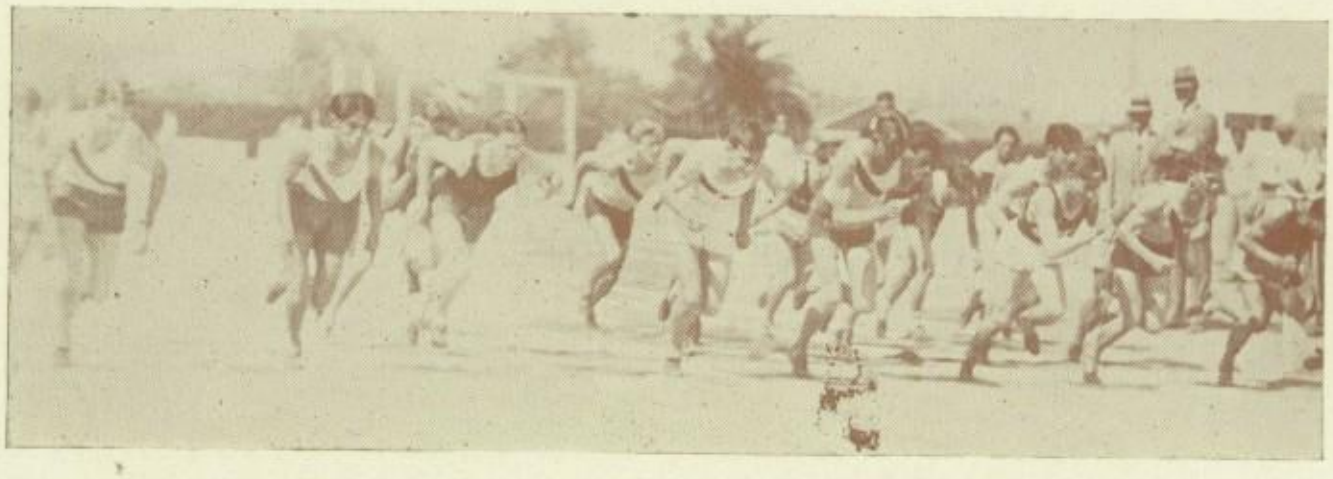
An easy victory over the South Pasadena Tigers opened the season for the Hipplermen. Every first place was won by the Bulldogs who rolled up a score of 101 2-3 to 11 1-3.

Another win almost as easy as the first was scored by Pasadena in the second meet of the season, when the Alhambra team was swamped by an overwhelming score.

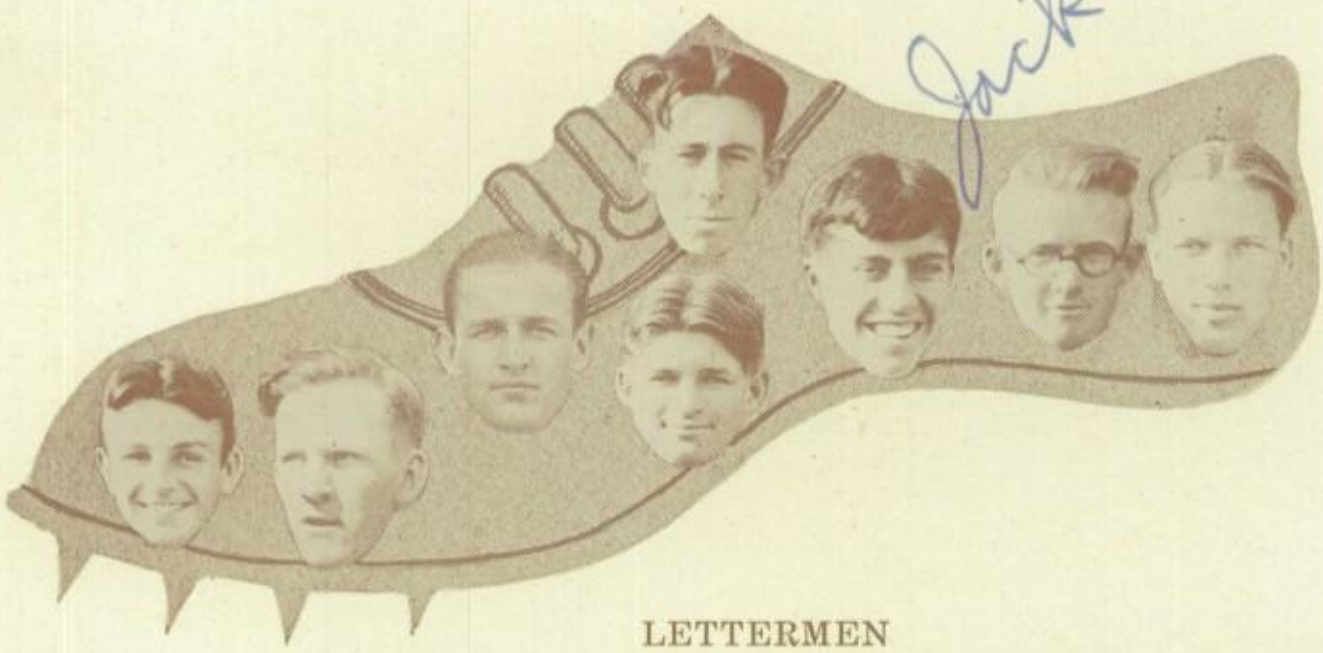
Unable to equal the strong combination of Wykoff, Slocum, and Zaun, Pasadena's track stars dropped their first meet by a score of 67-46. The Red and White made clean sweeps in the pole vault, shot, and hurdles.

Of the sixteen Pasadena men who qualified for the Coast League meet, Withall was the only man to win a first place. He scored in the shot put. Elowitz, Pyle, Prior, Stevens, and Smith won points.

Captain Lane Prior and Tommy Long were the only wearers of the Red and White who scored in the Southern California meet. Both tied for third place in the pole vault. Smith scored third in the javelin, but no points were awarded in this event.



He runs toward the cottage and meets Grace, who tells him that Marion has disappeared, likewise Michael Warden.



LETTERMEN

ERIC STRUTT, high jump and low hurdles. Streak was a consistent point winner all season.

KARL OSTBERG, mile. Ostey was the big find of the year. He was the best Red and White miler out for the team, and won several first places.

KAY WAYMAN, quarter-mile. Kay tried hurdling, then the 880, and ended the season running a fast 440. He took several firsts.

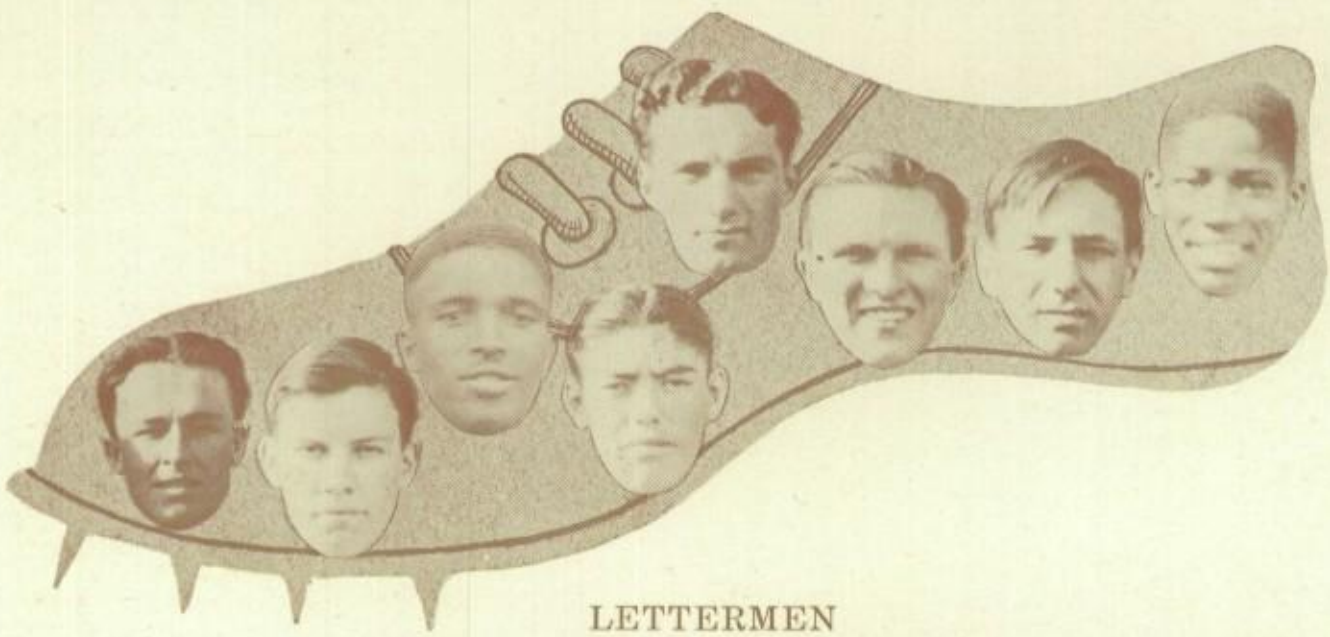
LANE PRIOR, captain and pole vault. Lane was the second best vaulter in the Coast League and one of the best in the South. He did a consistent 12 feet or better all season and tied for third in the Southern California meet.

WELDON POWERS, shot put. Despite an early season injury, Weldon gathered a bag full of points for the Red and White with second and third places.

JACK PIERCE, pole vault. Jackie was the best midget pole vaulter in the South last year and was a member of this year's varsity vaulting triumvirate.

RAYMOND PYLE, century, furlong, relay. "Get to the tape first," was Pyle's motto, and he copped first places in the dashes all season.

HAROLD SMITH, javelin. Harold proved that football men can throw other things than pigskins when he placed in the javelin event at the Southern California meet.



LETTERMEN

GORDON WITHALL, shot and discus. Gordy was the best shot putter in the Coast League and won first in all dual meets and in the Coast League meet.

RUT MCCOMB, hurdles. Rut showed a vast improvement over his high hurdling of last year and placed high in several meets.

PAUL FORD, hurdles. Ford, holder of the Southern California midget 120-yard low hurdle record, stepped out in the varsity class this year and made a good showing in the 220 lows.

MANUEL PINEDA, mile. Mannie was Ostberg's big rival in the mile and kept right on his heels all season. He ran exceptionally well for a little fellow.

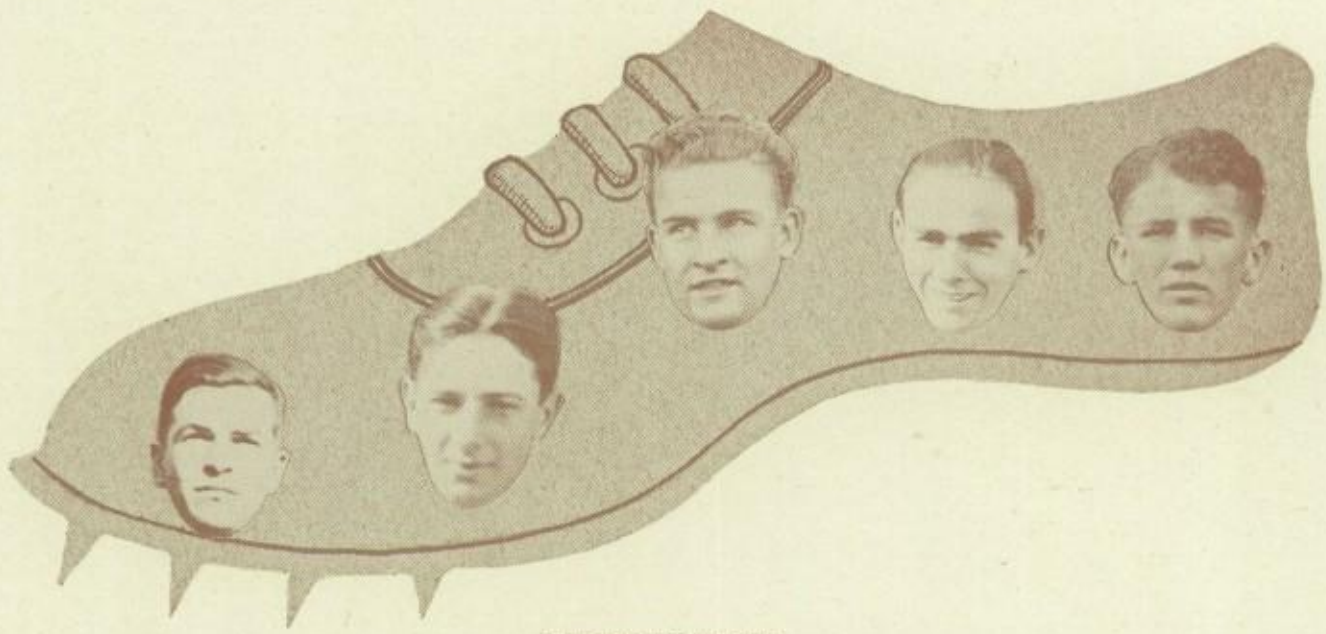
THOMAS LONG, pole vault. Tommy was the third of the leaping triumvirate and usually helped to complete a Red and White sweep in the pole vault. He placed in the Southern California finals.

FRED COX, half mile. Cox continued his good work where he left off last year and was an invariable winner in fast time.

BURNIE CRAIG, high jump. Burnie could jump, stretch out, and hitch himself over the bar when it was plenty far from the ground. A consistent performer all season was Craig.

JOHN STEVENS, century, furlong, broad jump, relay. John O. came from junior high school with a remarkable athletic record attached. He did good work, taking many firsts for the Red and White.

The world is six years older since that mysterious night.



LETTERMEN

JOE RICHARDSON, shot put. A steady heaver of the iron pellet, the Commissioner of Athletics could always be counted on to deliver several points when they were needed.

NORMAN ELOWITZ, hurdler. Despite an injured foot, Norm held his position as timber topper, par excellence, for the Red and White track men. He won every dual meet race he entered.

BERNARD BODINE, manager. Preparation of the track for home meets was the main task of Barney. He did good service for the team.

GORDON WOOD, manager. Gordie had a lot of grief rustling cars for transportation of Coach Hippler's charges.

FRANK LESTER, manager. No manager ever worked harder than Frank. He rendered good service to the team and the school.

ADDITIONAL MEMBERS

GEORGE ROSS, high jump. George was one of Hippler's best jumpers and straddled the bar up with the best of them.

JACK MCMANUS, shot and discus. Jack was an early season prospect, but the love for the manly art of bone crushing succeeded in luring him back to the mat.

WILFRED IWAN, broad jump. Will was another good broad jumper and earned his letter by virtue of his early showing.

GORDON HAWKINS, broad jump. Click, swish, and Gordon would land far out in the sand pit to collect some more points for the Bulldog team.

WRESTLING SQUAD

WRESTLING REVIEW

In the second year of its organization at P. H. S., wrestling took a decided step forward in prominence. Many aspirants came out for the team, notable among them being football men, and the results showed a marked improvement over last year. Bob Sharp, well-known wrestler of Southern California, coached the boys.

The matmen began a strenuous year by tackling the strong U. C. L. A. team in the initial contest. Although the locals lost 26-6, several good prospects were found in the Pasadena squad.

Tom Mallory, former football captain, and Ezra Smith featured the second mat tussle with Glendale. Mallory lost by a ten-second advantage after two extra sessions had been wrestled. Knowles, 125-pounder, was the only Pasadena rough and tumbler to win his match.

Red and White tusslers won their first league match of the year against the southern Moors by a score of 20-13. Two forfeitures and two wins by falls gave Pasadena the victory.

Woodrow Wilson High School of Long Beach took the Bulldogs' measure in a 23-10 score in the next match. Captain Gordon Lester and Norman Gertmenian were the only Crown City crushers to win in their classes.

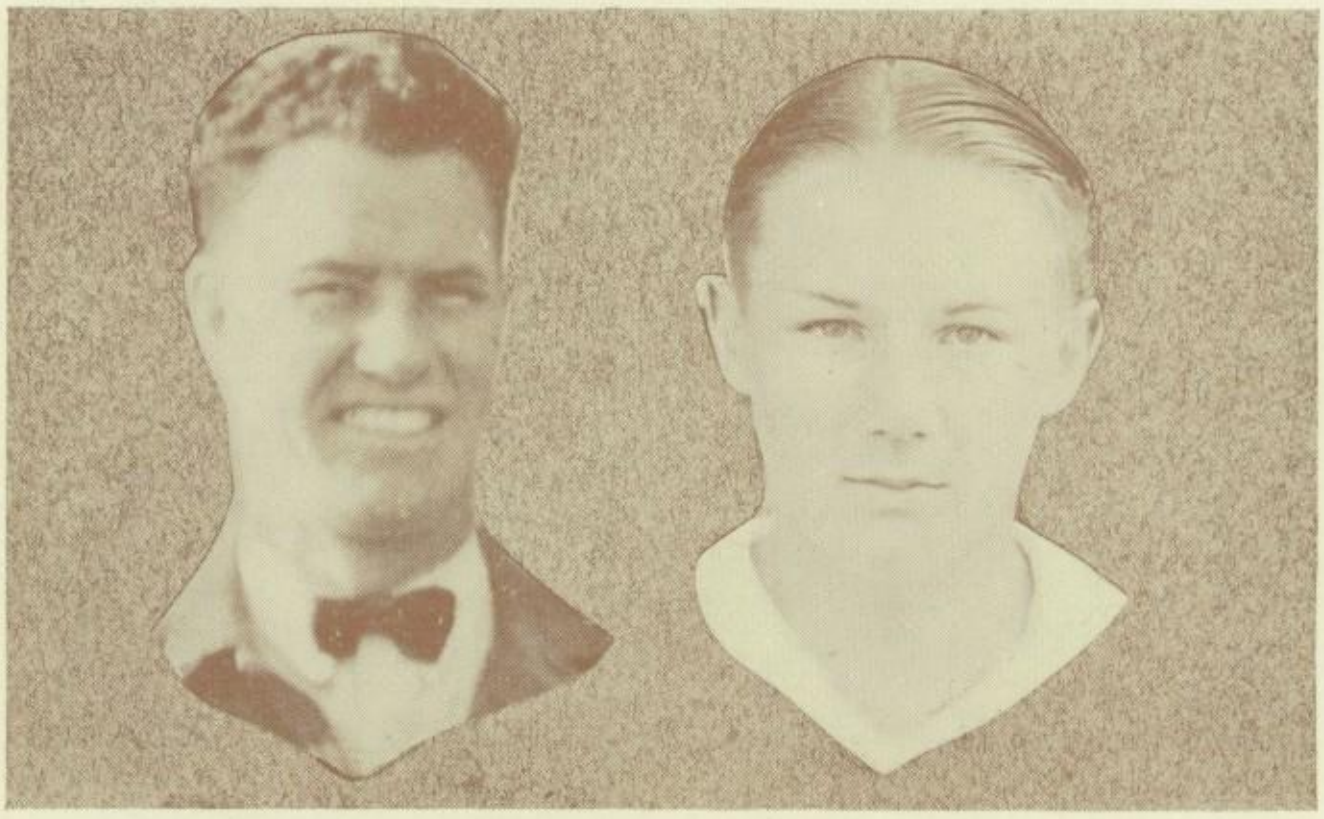
Then the Yellow and Green of Long Beach came along and dealt the locals another bitter pill in a 21-10 count. Knowles and Switzer were the Red and White winners.

Some lost prestige was regained for the Red and White bear huggers when they won over the Santa Ana Saints by 15 points. Several bouts were forfeited to Pasadena.

Against the San Diego Hilltoppers, Captain Lester and his crew suffered their worst defeat by dropping every match to the Greys.

In the Southern California wrestling meet, the Bulldogs did not make such a good showing as Switzer, 135-pounder, was the only Red and White tussler to win his way into the finals and then he lost to the San Diego finalist.

The host of the inn discovers that he is Michael Warden, and he runs to tell Mr. Snitchey.



COACH R. FRANK BAKER MANAGER TED HATLEN

MIDGET TRACK REVIEW

The Pasadena midgets took second place in "A" division of the Coast League, losing the final meet to Glendale. The first meet of the season was dropped, 43-25, to South Pasadena, but the meet had to be held again because of ineligibilities on the Tiger cubs' line-up. The second meet went to the little Bulldogs by a close score.

The midgets next won a close meet from the Alhambra Moors, but dropped the title meet to the Dynamite caps from Glendale.

SWIMMING REVIEW

VARSITY

The swimming season opened at Pasadena High School with an inter-class meet to find good prospects for the school team. The Seniors came out of the brine victorious by five points, over the next highest, the Juniors.

In the first outside meet, the Bullfrogs took on the tough assignment of ducking the strong U. C. L. A. water men. They came through, however, and won by the one-sided score of 56-26. For the locals, Mackerras and Drageset shone, winning 10 and 9 points, respectively.

Next on the schedule came Huntington Park, and it presented a more formidable aspect, one big enough, in fact, to win a close decision over the P. H. S. wingmen. Again Mackerras was Bulldog high point man, winning the 50-yard free style and placing second in the 100-yard.

MIDGETS

The Class C swimmers started the season with a loss to the Beachers, Long Beach, by a score of 33-22. Matson, P. H. S. man, took first money in both the 50-yard backstroke and breast stroke.

A margin of one point gave the little men a victory in their second swimming meet with Huntington Park. For the locals, Matson and Sheldon each copped two firsts. Sheldon took the 100-yard and 50-yard free style from a fast field, and Matson copped the back stroke and breast stroke.

He receives no answer from Michael. In the garden of Dr. Jeddler's household, Grace is surprised by Marion.

WATER POLO SQUAD

WATER POLO REVIEW

Scarcity of returning veteran watermen and lack of coaching during the early season resulted in the Red and White water polo team faring through a rather poor schedule. Leland C. McAuley, the regular squad coach, was busy quite a while after league basketball season had ended, trying to pilot his lightweight floormen to a Southern California title. Consequently, the water dogs had to go through the early season as best they could with Captain Johnny Koch as instructor.

The team opened the season with a practice game against the Fullerton tank men, but took a 13-5 defeat from the more experienced seven. The league schedule included games with Hollywood, Los Angeles High and Long Beach Polytechnic High. There were two games with each school, but the P. H. S. fishmen failed to win any. Many of the games, however, were lost by close scores, and had the locals had more experience in working together, they would doubtless have broken in high on the win column. Quite a few of the men will be back next year, and they should form a steady nucleus for future teams.

The latter tells her that she ran away to the home of her aunt, Miss Jeddler.

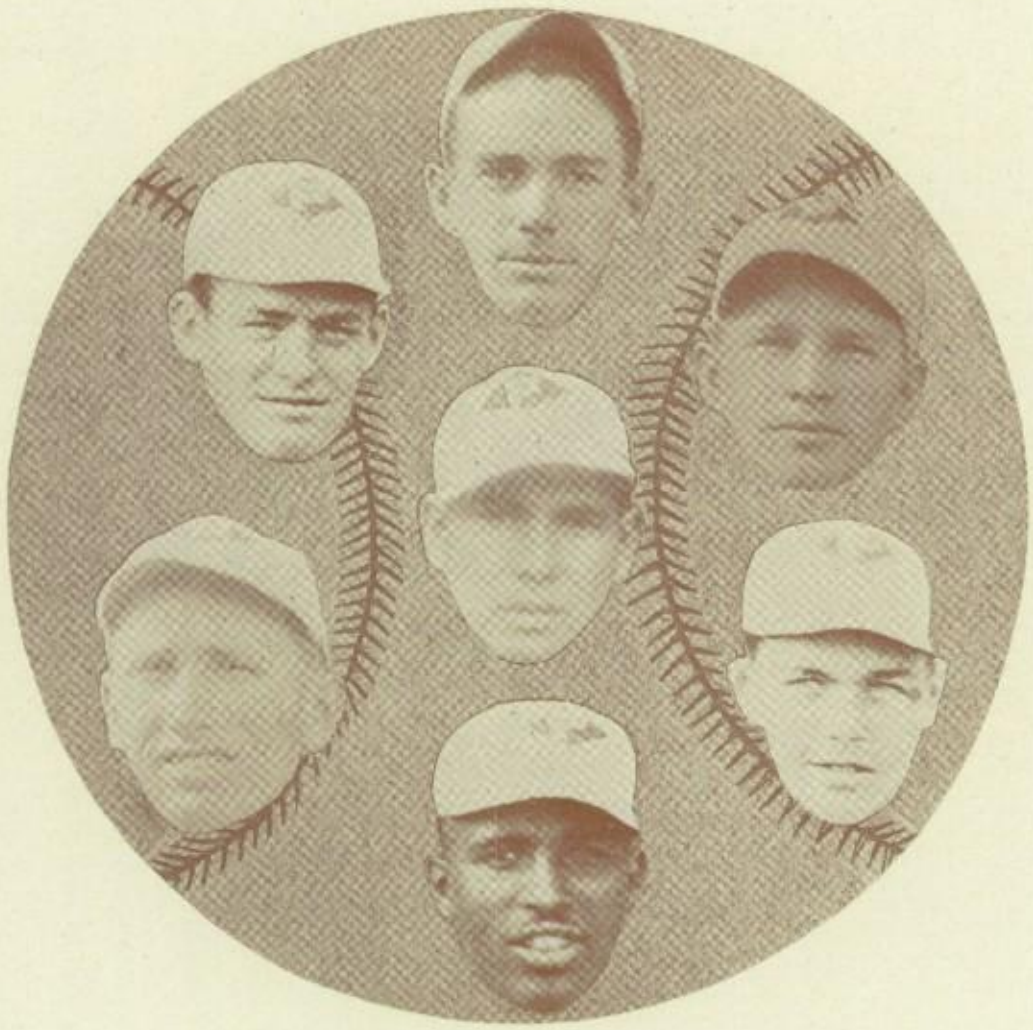
She had gone six years ago because she felt that Arthur really loved Grace and not herself.



LETTERMEN

Bottom row: Morgan, Ford, Cabot.

TOM MALLORY, catcher. Heavy hitter and sterling catcher, Tom played a wonderful game this year. There were few baserunners fast enough to beat Tom's throw to second.

CAPTAIN DICK ATWELL, shortstop. A high batting average that was equalled only by his fielding abilities made Dick the most consistent infield man on the team.

RALPH BLACK, first base. A sure snagger of good throws and bad, Blackie was a valuable man on the diamond sack and with the stick.

RAY MILLER, pitcher. One of the best moundsmen in the league, Ray pitched a wonderful season. His strike-out record was one to be proud of, while his no-run, no-hit game with South Pasadena will probably be long unequalled.

PAUL FORD, right field. Out by the bleachers, Flivver retired many a long-hitting batter by his spectacular catches. He was a consistent man with the bat.

LEN MORGAN, third base. Len held down the red hot corner all season by his steady fielding. His slugging ability made him one of the most powerful hitters in the circuit.

JOHN CABOT, second base. As a keystone bagger there were few who could play like Johnny. He built up a good batting average by his steady bingling.

The Jeddler family is overjoyed at this happy reunion.

Left to right, top row: Johnson, Hart, Jones. Center: Earley. Lower row: Clark, Manager Wotkyns, Richardson.

GWYNNE JONES, fielder. Heavy stick work coupled with good fielding brought Jones center field position on the first team. When he connected with the ball, the fielders had to go 'way out for the ball.

JOE RICHARDSON, fielder. Joe's heavy stick work came in handy when a run was needed. He was also a good substitute pitcher.

PAUL CLARK, fielder. Clark's big asset to the team was his timely pinch hitting. Several times he drew the game out of the fire for the local pill swatters.

LESTER HART, fielder. Les grabbed off the left field berth and held it most of the season. He hooked everything that came his way.

HAROLD EARLEY, pitcher and fielder. Earley was the second string pitcher and often played left field on the first team. His heavy hitting at the beginning of the season brought in many runs.

ELLIOT WOTKYNS, manager. Elliot again secured the job of varsity manager and helped the team all season. He arranged transportation and things necessary to put over a good baseball season.

RAYMOND JOHNSON, infielder. Playing shortstop was Ray's specialty, and he never passed up a chance to do his stuff on the first team. He replaced Captain Atwell when Dick got hurt in the game with South Pasadena.

It is whispered about the village that Marion finally married Michael Warden.

GOLF TEAM

GOLF REVIEW

In the second year of its organization the golf team went through a good season. With Bill Crowell as coach and Ray Hanes as captain, the local divot diggers gathered high honors in district No. 2, which includes Hollywood, Alhambra, Owensmouth, Franklin, and South Pasadena.

The first league match was held with Alhambra, and the Red and White mashie swingers emerged victorious, 3-2. Carl Cartwright, Pasadena's third man, saved the day by winning his match 1 up on the twentieth hole.

The players drew a bye the next week when South Pasadena forfeited, but they lost a practice meet to Whittier. The turf wreckers next lost a league meet to Van Nuys, 3-2, and followed up with a 5-0 win in a practice meet over Burbank. However, the decision was just reversed after the Glendale encounter, for the Bulldogs were forced to bite the divots and received a goose egg for their troubles.

Captain Hanes and Carl Cartwright were the consistent winners for the local squad.

The story ends, as all love stories should.

TENNIS TEAM

TENNIS REVIEW

Another successful season was completed when the Pasadena racquet wielders won the Coast League championship for the third consecutive year. The pivot man of the Pasadena team was Captain Ellsworth Vines, who, besides winning every first singles match in the dual meets, won the Ojai singles championship and the Southern California singles title. Nelson Dodge and Glenn Reed played a good consistent brand of tennis all year, assuring the team of a win in the first doubles.

The results of the dual matches for the year are as follows:

Pasadena 17, Whittier 0.
Pasadena 12, South Pasadena 5.
Pasadena 17, Alhambra 0.
Pasadena 14, San Diego 3.
Pasadena 13, Santa Ana 4.

Coaches

Miss Elizabeth Jensen

Another banner year in girls' athletics has passed under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Jensen, head of the Girls' Athletic Department. She has been at Pasadena eight years, two of which she has been the head of the department. Her efficiency is of the best when it comes to maintaining high standards in athletics.

Miss Loreta Henrichs

Most of Miss Henrichs' time in her past few years of teaching has been devoted to dancing. The dancers for the operetta and various other programs have been prepared by her. Besides carrying on her dancing class, Miss Henrichs was in charge of the track season.

Miss Jean Young

Although Miss Young has been with us only three years, she has shown great ability in adapting herself to our ways. She has done much with the baseball and handball teams this year.

Miss Mildred Margadant

Proving her ability as a coach, Miss Mildred Margadant turned out the best wall-scaling teams ever seen at P. H. S. She has been with us four years, during which time she has sustained a high spirit among the girls.

Miss Edith Gillette

Besides carrying on her many athletic duties, Miss Edith Gillette has found time to prove a very capable and enthusiastic adviser and leader of the Girls' Athletic Association. This year she has assumed the entire responsibility of the swimming teams.

Miss Dorothy Bates

As a newcomer in our ranks, we have with us this year Miss Dorothy Bates. She is a graduate of the Battle Creek Health College and Columbia University. Miss Bates has also taught at Porto Rico University and Pomona College. This year she has proved a very able tennis coach.

The story deals with the stir created by the arrival of two city gentlemen in a small country village.

The Village Coquettes in Action

HOCKEY

This year hockey has proved to be indeed, a major sport, for more girls than ever before turned out for the first practice.

All the teams were evenly matched. As usual the rivalry between the Juniors and Seniors was great. However, the Seniors won the heroic battle, due to hours of practice and cooperation.

HANDBALL

This year a new sport, handball, was introduced into the girls' inter-class competition. All the girls received the new sport with a great deal of enthusiasm. Miss Young was in charge of teaching all classes the fundamentals.

At the recent play-day Pasadena won all her matches in the handball schedule, showing that a sport can be mastered in a short time.

BASKETBALL

Basketball again had an exceedingly successful season. Although basketball has been played for quite a few years at P. H. S., yet the interest and competition among players and classes is very great.

The Senior team beat every one in sight and the Junior-Senior brawl ended in an overwhelming score favoring the Seniors. As a result the varsity team was made up of the Senior members.

TENNIS

Tennis this year at P. H. S. has proved very successful under the direction of a new coach, Miss Bates. After a round-robin tournament was held, the girls to represent us in outside competition were chosen. Schools played were Fullerton, Glendale, Alhambra, El Monte, and South Pasadena. The players have also featured in play-day programs.

SPEEDBALL

Although a comparatively new sport, speedball is steadily gaining favor among the girl athletes. The game, a vigorous combination of soccer, basketball, and football, requires head work, foot work, and hand work.

The Seniors again proved their strength by defeating the Junior team, 11-8. No one can say that the old Bulldog spirit was lacking in either team.

TRACK

Although fewer girls turn out for track than for any other sport, this activity had an unusually successful season. The Seniors won the interclass competition. In the Pasadena playday the local girls took first place in every event.

Both Senior and Junior teams showed up with plenty of vigor and action. In the Pasadena playday, Pasadena was beaten by the Long Beach aggregation.

WALLSCALING

As yet there is no outside competition held, but there is plenty of it in the inter-class meets. All of the three class teams were very speedy and quick. In the final Junior-Senior meet it took the Seniors 20 seconds against the Juniors' time of 21.2 seconds to clear the twelve-foot board. The varsity team made the best time ever recorded at P. H. S., 19.4 seconds.

SWIMMING

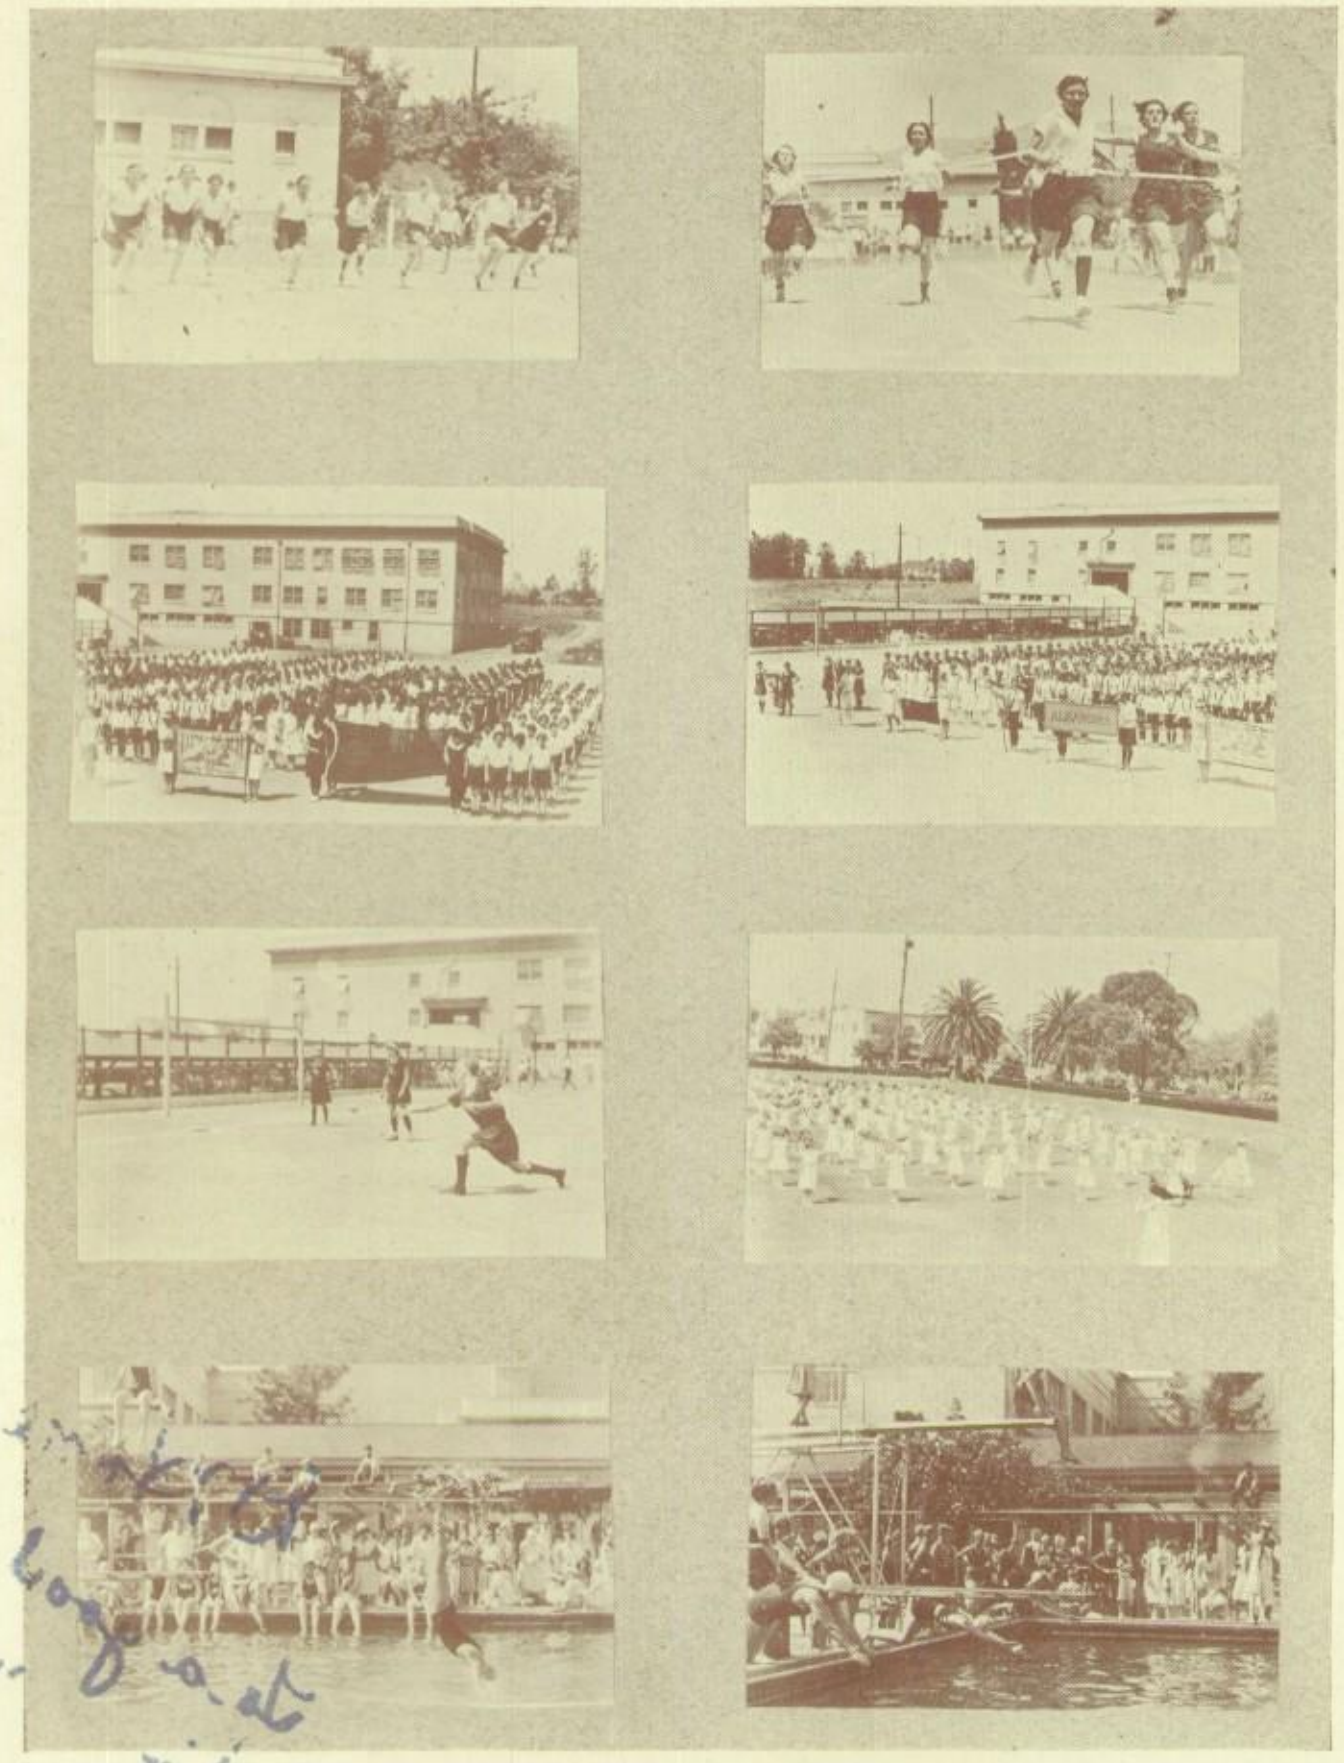
The Juniors seemed to have triumphed in swimming this year. In the inter-class meet the Juniors were victorious.

The Pasadena girls also won first place in the Pasadena playday. There has also been a novice meet.

SQUAD LEADERS

The squad leaders of the various gymnasium periods have formed a club. The purpose is to instruct the girls in leadership. Through this club the girls have found how to carry out their work.

The squire announces that he has been misled by Mr. Flam, and so he apologizes to his tenants for his actions.



GIRLS' PLAY DAY

Flam is given up to the justice; Lucy and Rose and their suitors are re-united, to the joy of all the villagers.

Remember, me as the one who loved so awful done and yet never saw you. It sure was fun. Dode and I don't mean maybe
